Lausanne Parley Date Postponed To November 20

Change Is Made to Suit British Desire for Delay, Says Paris Announcement.

CONSTANTINOPLE LIKE BIG POWDER MAGAZINE

Explosion May Come Any Hour—British Are Doing Utmost to Preserve Peace.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lausanne, November 12.—Ismet Pasha and the entire Turkish delegation to the peace conference, numbering 18, arrived here at 9 o'clock tonight. They came aboard the Orient Express and drove to a hotel which was bedecked with flags. A large crowd gathered at the station to watch the arrival.

The American minister, Joseph C. Grew, was in Lousanne today and engaged rooms for Rear Admiral Mark Bristol and the American ambassador to Italy, Richard Washburn Child, Mrs. Child and himself, but he did not know when the American unofficial observers would reach here because of the uncertainty of the conference plans.

PARLEY POSTPONED.

Paris, November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The French foreign office today announced that the date of Greco-Turkish peace conference at Lausanne had been tentatively set for "not later than November 20."

Originally the date set was November 13, but the British government desired a postponement. It was said today that the British were arguing for a still later date but the French government considers a week's postponement ample.

The same uncertainty also clouds the proposed preliminary meeting between the representatives of Great Britain, France and Italy. The British desire a sort of inter-allied conference to precede the Lausanne gathering, while M. Poincare, the French premier, thinks simple "conversations" will be adequate. He has suggested that he can see Lord Curson, the British foreign secretary, while Lord Curzon is passing through Paris on his way to Lausanne.

Italy's position is rather vague. Rome dispatches have said that Premire Mussolini was not ready for the conference. They did not indicate, however, when he would be prepared to be represented at Lausanne, or what would be his attitude to conversations between the principal allies.

Most of the French delegation, headed by M. Bompard, intended to leave for Lausanne tonight, but their trip was cancelled when M. Poincare decided that he would await the arrival here of Lord Curzon. Meantime the French have not completed the organization of their corps of experts but it is likely that General Weygand and Admiral Lacaze will be respectively the delegation's military and naval advisers.

The Turkish delegation headed by Ismet Pasha, which left Constantinople last Thursday, may not remain at Lausanne, where it arrived tonight, but continue on to Paris. The French government has asked the Angora representative here, Ferid Bey, to notify Ismet of the postponement and to invite the delegation to come to the capitol.

Premier Poincare will be busy with a speech in the chamber of deputies next Friday, so that it is expected whatever interallied conference or conversation is finally agreed on it will take place Saturday or Sunday M. Poincare, it is said, is even willing to go to Lausanne for a talk Sunday with Lord Curzon and Dr. Mussolini, particularly if this would serve the convenience of Mussolini. Everything in this connection, however, is as much in the air as the plans for the Lausanne conference have been.

The French feel that there is every

SENIORITY RULE ON CHAIRMANSHIP MAY BE DROPPED

Senator McCormick Suggests Abolition of Rule on Chairmanships of Senate Committees.

"IRREGULAR" SOLONS WILL OPPOSE RULE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, November 12.—Abolition of the senate's seniority rule by which the chairmanship of a committee goes to the member with the longest continued service thereon is suggested by Senator McCormick, Illinois, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, in a letter to Senator Lodge, the republican leader, made public today.

The letter also urged that the steering committee, of which Mr. McCormick is a member, be made representative of all sections and thought on the republican side and disclosed that Senator McCormick had discussed the question with Senator Curtis, of Kansas, assistant republican leader, and other leaders.

Stating that the seniority rule "served very well in the old days," and had resulted generally in appointment of good chairmen, Senator McCormick wrote Senator Lodge that "the republican conference and the republican steering committee owe it to the country to put aside the rule, just as the conference owes it to the country to make provision for the selection of a truly representative steering committee which shall meet regularly and as occasion requires with the corresponding committee of the house."

His Argument.

Senator McCormick declared that while in a majority of instances "the men who have become chairmen through seniority have been good chairmen, there have been others who were unfitted for their posts by reason of extreme old age, or of failing health, or because of grave differences of opinion with the majority of their republican associates."

The seniority system also prevails in the house.

Notice already has come from senators of the "irregular" republican group that they intend to fight the seniority rule and demand what they consider adequate representation. Their fight is expected to center about two or three important chairmanships. The democrats have not shown any inclination to abandon the seniority rule.

Chairmen of three important senate committees, finance, naval and postoffice, are to be chosen in the next congress. Chairman McCumber, finance; Townsend, of the postoffice, and Senator Poindexter, in line for the chairmanship of naval committee, will be out after March 4, Senator Smoot, Utah, is in line for the finance committee chairmanship and Senator Sterling, South Dakota, for postoffice. Lodge now ranks second on naval committee, but it is expected he desires to continue at the head of foreign relations. Senator Hale, Maine, under the seniority rule, would be in line for the naval chairmanship.

Many Changes.

On the finance committee, besides the chairmanship there will be one democratic and three republican vacancies in the new congress, Senators

LIST OF PASTORS FOR METHODIST CHURCHES READY

Appointments for North Georgia Conference Will Be Announced at Final Session on Monday.

LOVE FEAST IS HELD AT WESLEY MEMORIAL

Bishop Murrah Delivers Sermon of Occasion, Asserting Every Human Heart Is Asking "What Is Truth?"

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Sunday was a day of rest and worship for the members of the north Georgia conference, which has been in session since Wednesday at Wesley Memorial church. The spirit of reverence and worship appeared to possess every man, and the day proved of deep spiritual benefit to all of them.

Visiting ministers occupied Atlanto pulpits, many of the Methodist congregations hearing their former pastors. Reports from churches that heard visiting ministers are that good services and sermons were enjoyed everywhere.

At Wesley Memorial church, the seat of the conference, the services began at 9 o'clock, when Rev. Sherman R. England conducted an old-time love feast. More than a thousand people attended. The songs of olden days were sung, and scores of Christian men and women told of their joy in the religious life and of their faith in the Son of God. Many times it was observed that tears came into the eyes of scores of those present.

Mr. England, conducting the love feast, stated that he had been preaching 40 years, and his only appointment to bring sorrow to his heart was two years ago, when he was made presiding elder on the Marietta district. He said he wanted to stay in pastorate. Since Mr. England is a great singer of the old-time songs, he says he has been singing his way from church to church all over the mountains of northeast Georgia.

Bishop Murrah Preaches.

At 11 o'clock Bishop Murrah delivered the sermon of the hour. Seated on the platform at the time were Bishop W. A. Candler and Bishop H. M. DuBose. Bishop Murrah chose for his text the passage in the gospel of John, seventh chapter, thirty-seventh verse, and spoke of Jesus Christ as the water of life to quench the thirsts of all human hearts and needs. Referring to the water given the Israelites in the wilderness, he said that water was only a type of the spiritual water that was to come. As spirit is greater than flesh, so is the water of life superior to that water of the wilderness, which was only for the physical man.

Bishop Murrah's sermon was deeply devotional and spiritual. He thought every human heart was asking the question, "What is truth?" and making a demand for truth. The bishop said Jesus Christ alone is truth, not an abstraction, but a personality, revealing the truth with reference to God, and the only satisfying source of truth for the individual, for society, for civilization and the world, and declared that the cry of the soul cannot be satisfied or hushed by false science nor petty theorizing.

Following the sermon, Bishop Murrah ordained the following men to deacon's orders: J. E. Statham, T. H. Williams, A. O. Baggerly, W. B.

Man and Wife Injured in Car-Auto Collision

Mr. and Mrs. Watford Are Taken to the Grady Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Watford, who live on Lakewood avenue, were carried to the Atlanta hospital suffering from injuries received about 3:15 Sunday afternoon in a collision between the automobile in which they were riding and a street car of the Georgia Railway & Power company.

Neither is thought to be seriously hurt, according to surgeons at the hospital, who stated Mr. Watford probably had a sprained back, while his wife had a badly bruised lower limb. They were expected to be able to leave the hospital during Monday.

Details concerning the accident had not been learned at a late hour at night. It is claimed that the street car which figured in the collision was out-bound. The crash occurred in Mason drive. The force of the impact caused the automobile to overturn and it was wrecked, it is said.

C. L. Whitehead, ambulance driver for Greenberg & Bond, made a record run in bringing the injured parties to the hospital.

DIVERGENT VIEWS ON REFERENDUMS SHOWN BY VOTING

PROHIBITION ISSUE GIVEN EVEN BREAK

South Dakota Puts Lid on Sunday Amusements, and Massachusetts Rejects Movie Regulation.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago, November 12.—The shifting political opinion of the country's voters recorded as widely divergent views on legislative proposals as on the candidates involved in last Tuesday's elections, according to the latest returns from all parts of the nation tonight.

Relaxation of the present drastic prohibition laws, the soldiers' bonus, measures seeking governmental economy, demands for greater expenditures of the public funds, new taxation projects, measures designed to benefit the farmers and Sunday blue laws were some of the propositions upon which the voters recorded their opinions.

Returns Delayed.

Because of the greater attention directed to the candidates the returns from the state referendums were delayed, many of the issues still remaining in doubt. In several cases the outcome will not be decided until the official vote has been canvassed.

On the prohibition issue, Illinois polled an almost two to one vote in favor of beer and light wine and Ohio defeated the same proposition, but by a smaller majority. While Massachusetts rejected a measure providing for more stringent state prohibition enforcement, California voted in favor of a similar proposal. Prohibition supporters explained the size of the Illinois majority by declaring that they had advised their adherents not to vote on the issue.

For Soldier Bonus.

Four of the five states in which the question was up polled heavy votes for the soldiers' bonus, while in the fifth, Oklahoma, the verdict also was favorable, but the majority smaller. Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and California returned unmistakable majorities in favor of adjusted compensation through the payments of state funds. In Oklahoma an official count may be necessary.

In South Dakota the question of Sunday amusements was before the voters, who decided by a two to one vote in favor of a strict ban on all Sunday festivities, while a measure providing for state regulation of motion pictures was rejected in Massachusetts.

Among other questions acted upon were the following:

Minnesota voted to loan the state credit to help its farmers; Michigan opposed a state income tax; South Dakota rejected a proposition that it engage in the banking business and Nebraska indorsed an anti-picketing law.

4-YEAR-OLD GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Martha Culver, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Culver, 129 Grant street, received a fractured collar bone and other injuries when knocked down by an automobile in front of her home Sunday morning. She was carried to the Grady hospital for first aid treatment and then went home.

A woman whose name the parents of the little girl did not learn was driving the automobile. She stopped immediately and rendered all the aid possible, carrying the little girl to the hospital.

Police investigated the accident, but at a late hour at night had not furnished a report at headquarters.

CHATHAM COUNTY ELECTION CONTEST NOTICE RECEIVED

Irregularities in counting ballots in last Tuesday's general election in Chatham county in the congressional race between Don Clark, republican candidate and R. Lee Moore, democratic nominee, are charged in a formal notice of contest by Attorney B. H. Sullivan, counsel for Clark, received Sunday at the office of Governor Hardwick.

In filing the appeal for a recount of ballots Clark charges discrimination of election managers, in failing to credit him with votes. The contest is directed only in Chatham county and not the entire district.

Fuel Administration Orders Other Railroads to Provide L. & N. With Cars Within Ten Days.

ACTION TO PREVENT FUEL FAMINE HERE

Governor of Alabama to Call Conference of Governors of Southeast to Confer on Coal Problem.

COAL CONFERENCE CALLED

Invitation was received Sunday by Governor Hardwick from Governor Thomas E. Kilby, of Alabama, to attend a conference at Montgomery on Wednesday, November 15 of chief executives of Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama and Georgia, to discuss means of remedying the coal crisis in these states. Governor Hardwick being absent from the state, Julian McCurry, his private secretary, announced that Georgia would be represented at the meeting by Colonel John T. Boifeuillet, fuel administrator for Georgia.

In his wire Governor Kilby stated that unless the coal crisis was relieved in Alabama, probability of the closing down of public schools and other institutions, was imminent.

Immediate relief from the coal shortage in Atlanta and the southeastern states is foreseen in the action Sunday of the fuel administration in Washington in issuing instructions to railroads of the country to supply the Louisville and Nashville railway with 4,000 cars with which to handle coal shipments to this section within the next ten days beginnings Monday. This information was given in a wire received by B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Following a meeting of officials of the local chamber last Friday, in which the office of the fuel administration was apprised of the situation existing in the southern states, with regard to the coal shortage, efforts to relieve the crisis in Atlanta and other cities in the southeast were made, the iniative being taken by local business men connected with the chamber of commerce.

At the meeting it was brought out that reason for the coal shortage in this section was due principally to the lack of cars for transporting the coal from the mines in Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky to southeastern points. The Louisville and Nashville railway, which commands access to these mines, reported there was plenty of coal to be had at the mines, but, owing to a car shortage, it was unable to supply the demand.

With the assignment of 4,000 cars from eleven different railroads of the east for the exclusive purpose of providing coal for this section, it is believed that Atlanta and vicinity will experience little inconvenience from the belated blasts of Jack Frost.

The wire from the office of the national fuel administrator to the Atlanta chamber follows:

"In reference to your wire of Friday relative to the fuel situation in Georgia and adjacent states, this office takes pleasure in notifying you that instructions have been dispatched to eleven different railroads in the east to provide 4,000 empty cars to the Louisville and Nashville railroad, beginning Monday and extending ten days therefrom."

CHAMBERWORKERS ON HOME STRETCH

Confident That Final Week's Activities Will Net Splendid Results. New Working Plans.

Plans of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to make Atlanta a city of 500,000 population by 1930 are founded on precedent, say officials, and is entirely possible in view of the record of other cities.

New "blood" and fresh working plans and new lists of prospects will serve to make the campaign this week more energetic and effective than the week going before, it is stated, and the work of enlarging the chamber budget to the point necessary to enable it to carry out the movement for a "half million" city will be speeded up materially.

In connection with the plans for bringing new industries here, through the establishment of the proposed industrial bureau, it is pointed out that Memphis, Tenn., has secured 150 new industries during the past year. Granting that the average number of people one industrial establishment would bring to the city is 200, it is

RED CROSS DRIVE FOR MEMBERSHIPS UNDER WAY TODAY

Clubwomen and Churchwomen of Atlanta Will Conduct Canvass Under the Leadership of Mrs. Slaton.

BANKS ARE ASSISTING IN ROLL CALL DRIVE

Workers Are Confident That Before Tuesday Night Comes They Will Have Enlisted 40,000 Members.

ALL ATLANTA IS URGED TO JOIN RED CROSS.

—The Atlanta chapter needs YOU—needs 40,000 members and more.

—The good women of Atlanta will supply you from many downtown booths, with buttons and membership cards. So—Dig for your subscription and become a member for 1923.

—Make it as big as you can and will, for it goes for the relief of the suffering of your fellow man.

Everybody knows about the sixth annual roll call of the American Red Cross.

For weeks the newspapers of Atlanta have told them about it almost daily. They have read it on street car cards, window posters and upon the windshields of hundreds of automobiles.

Likewise, everyone knows about the splendid relief service performed through the "Great Mother" of humanity, so well exemplified in the good work of the Atlanta chapter in this city and county.

The roll call is now on. Monday and Tuesday will be the only days of street solicitation of members.

Woman Are in Charge.

The work of enrollment is in the hands of Atlanta's club women and church women who, in many committees, are taking charge of the downtown booths—a hundred or more of them—from which Red Cross buttons and membership cards will be issued.

Hundreds of Atlanta's good women have volunteered for the work. They are not only going to become members themselves and pay for the privilege, but they are going to give their time and effort toward making this the biggest and best annual roll call the Atlanta chapter has ever had.

They will enroll you as a Red Cross member for the coming year for as little as one dollar. But you don't have to stop there. You may give for your membership as your heart prompts, confident that every penny of your added subscription will go to humanity relief work right here at home. Many newsboys and

BOTTLERS START CONVENTION TODAY

Big Meeting, With 3,000 Delegates Attending, Will Be Called to Order at Auditorium-Armory.

The fourth annual convention of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages will start today. More than 3,000 delegates will be in attendance.

The convention sessions and the supply men's exposition will be held in the Auditorium-Armory. The exposition which includes an array of exhibits essential to the bottling industry will be open to the public the first two days of the convention.

Social functions are on the program, extensive plans having been made for the entertainment of the delegates. The principal business session will be held in the auditorium, but there will be many "conventions within the convention."

Secretaries of the state associations will hold their annual conclave at Taft hall at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and at 10:30 o'clock Saturday, the day after the convention comes to a formal close, the "Whistle" bottlers will hold their annual convention at the Ansley hotel.

Many States Represented.

Delegates from virtually every state in the union will represent their respective concerns at the convention which, it is said, will be the largest held in Atlanta this year. Between 400 and 500 from the "Whistle" corporation alone will be in attendance.

On Thursday morning the Bottlers' Boosters of America, whose membership includes traveling men closely allied with the bottlers' organization, will meet at the Cecil hotel at 10

CHIEF BUSINESS AT EXTRA SESSION IS SHIP SUBSIDY

Signs of Opposition to Administration Measure, However, Grows Stronger as Members Return.

MAY BE FILIBUSTER AGAINST PROPOSAL

Appropriation Bills Will Also Prove Delaying. Anti-Lynch Bill Coming Before Senate.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, November 12.—Ship subsidy so far as the house is concerned will form the backbone of the legislative program for the extra session of congress called for November 20, by President Harding. The program being developed in conference among republican leaders calls for the president to address congress at a joint session Tuesday, November 21, or to send a message urging speed with the subsidy and supply bills in order to avoid, if possible, an extra session of the new congress next spring.

Doubt as to the fate of the ship subsidy bill increased as members returned. Signs of growing opposition, especially in the senate, were not lacking and the vote in the house, it was predicted even in republican quarters, would be close.

Many democrats and some republican leaders are asserting privately that the bill will not get through the senate by March 4. The crush of appropriation and other bills, with the certainty of bitter and determined opposition, even to the possible extent of a filibuster, was said to make the ship bill a most uncertain feature.

Budget Ahead.

Republican leaders are preparing to put pressure behind the appropriation bills. The budget will be submitted early in December. It has been "cut to the bone," republican leaders said, predicting that the reductions would make easier the passage of the annual bills, stripped of legislation as they must be under the new rules. The prospect that no substantial increase would be asked for or given for the army and navy was expected to expedite passage of these bills.

The regular appropriation bills cannot be taken up in the house until December 1, and precedence will be given the ship subsidy measure at the special session. The Liberian loan remains the senate's unfinished business and may be taken up during opening week. The Dyer anti-lynching bill, under a republican steer-

Clemenceau Spends Quiet Armistice Day Aboard Ship

BY FERDINAND TUOHY.

(Copyright N. A. N. A. and Press Publishing Co. All rights reserved.)

On Board S. S. Paris, November 12.—(By Special Wireless.)—Clemenceau spent Armistice day in absolute retirement from the passengers crowding eagerly to see him. The old man, mainly responsible for the armistice, clung to his stateroom calmly reading about tropical flowers while London and Paris celebrated the day. He retired at 8 as customary and arose at 5 this morning and worked on speeches, appearing on deck for the first time at 11 o'clock.

Attended by his valet, Albert, and fashionably clad in new clothes, the Tiger made several rounds of the deck. Under his cap he wore a grey wool scarf around his head, almost hiding his face, as protection against the staring promenaders, some of whom attempted to accost the veteran. Only one succeeded. He was an American who descended on the Tiger with gladdest hand and loosed a sally of breeziest stories to which Clemenceau only growled.

The Tiger attended no Sunday service but played with American children in the sandhill corner instead. In heartiest mood he chatted of the new America he will find, he said.

"I suppose I will be met everywhere by dowagers with their 'do you remember meeting me when I was 17?' on their lips." Clemenceau says he intends returning on the Paris in December, "if I am alive."

Many Thousands Without Food or Shelter. Extent of Disaster Grows as News Comes in.

OCCURRED AFTER DAY OF ABNORMAL HEAT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Santiago, Chile, November 12.—With partial re-establishment of communication, Chile's earthquake catastrophe is revealed in even greater magnitude than first reports indicated. It is estimated that at least 1,000 are dead, and many thousands are in distress, needing food and shelter.

In addition to heavy casualties of dead and injured at Copiapo and Coquimbo, it was reported today that 500 were killed at Vallenar and the surrounding district. Vallenar was virtually destroyed, and the survivors are in a critical condition. It seems certain that there have been casualties in other towns and villages around Copiapo, to the south, concerning which no news is yet available.

Already 24 bodies have been recovered at Coquimbo, where it is known there are 100 or more dead. At Chanaral, a number were killed by falling houses.

Phenomenal Movement.

It was earthquake and tidal wave combined that accounted for the vast destruction in the provinces of Antofagasta, Atacama and Coquimbo. The movement of the ocean is described as phenomenal. It gave evidence of a terrific disturbance in the bed of the Pacific itself. There must have been such a tearing at the bottom of the sea that immense quantities of water were sucked through, causing a tremendous recession of the waters along the Chilean coast.

Several times the ocean swept outward and came back in the shape of a great wave, flooding the seaports and in some instances sweeping away the waterfront.

Felt 1,200 Miles.

The violent effects of the tidal waves were felt from Antofagasta on the north to Valdivia on the south, covering about 16 degrees of latitude, or more than 1,200 miles.

All types of craft lying in the various harbors were swept on shore, wrecked, or left high and dry, and at scores of small ports wharves and quays were destroyed. Chilean naval vessels at Talcahuano, about 300 miles south of Valparaiso, when they felt the forces of the waters, slipped their cables and proceeded out to the open sea.

President Alessandri has ordered the various government departments to take all measures possible for the relief of the sufferers in the stricken districts, those most sorely afflicted lying between Coquimbo and Copiapo. The navy department has sent ships along the coast to aid in the work.

The report of the seismological institute says that the apparent focus of the earth shock was 200 kilometers from Santiago; the intensity of the movement was recorded between numbers 8 and 9 of the official scale, which runs up to 12. The total duration was 3 hours and 40 minutes, and the estimated radius 1,200 kilometers in a transversal direction to the Andes.

The meteorogical institute says that the earth shock coincides with the passage of a sun spot over the central meridian of the sun. The earth shock commenced at the termination of a day of abnormal heat. The sun spot referred to made its appearance November 5 and was the largest observed this year.

SLIGHT TREMOR FELT SUNDAY.

Buenos Aires, November 12.—Slight disturbances were again noted today by the seismograph in Buenos Aires. They were of Chilean origin.

TREMORS HAVE SUBSIDED.

Washington, November 12.—The disastrous earthquake in Chile which caused the death of at least 200 persons, according to reports from that country, seems to have entirely subsided. Director Francis A. Tondorf, of the Georgetown university seismological observatory, who early Saturday morning gave Americans their first indication that a heavy earthquake had occurred and located it very closely, said no vibrations had been recorded today and that the shocks of the Chilean quake ceased about 5 a. m. Saturday. The first indications of the severe earthquake were recorded on the Georgetown seismographs at 11:45 Friday night. The shocks reached their maximum intensity shortly after midnight between 12:06 and 12:10 a. m., continuing heavy until about 3:30 a. m. They then became weaker and ceased about 5 o'clock.

With three seismographs located in its observatory, Georgetown university has established itself as one of the foremost observing stations of the world, and its director, Dr. Tondorf, is known as an authority on seismology.

TIDAL WAVE PHENOMENA.

Valparaiso, Chile, November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—A curious feature of the earthquake was the tidal wave which occurred two hours later, indicating a terrific disturbance beneath the Pacific. The water were first sucked away from the coast and then hurled back. This phenomenon was repeated five times at Antofagasta before the equilibrium of the sea was restored. A similar occurrence took place at other points.

Rear Admiral Martin, director of the navy meteorological service, discussing the earthquake, said it was significant that it had occurred just as the conjunctions of Mercury and Jupiter and Neptune and the sun were approaching. The conjunction of Mercury and Jupiter occurred at 1:30 Saturday morning, and the other some hours afterwards.

MARY MACSWINEY CONTINUES HUNGER STRIKE IN PRISON

Dublin, November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mary MacSwiney is the only prisoner in Mount Joy on a hunger strike. Mrs. O'Rahilly, who was arrested with Miss MacSwiney and who broke her hunger strike Saturday, was released today.

At a public meeting of protest against the arrest of the women held today, it was declared Miss MacSwiney was determined to continue her strike regardless of the consequences. Today was the ninth day that she has refused food.

The woman's republican organization today sent a resolution expressing admiration and offers of support to Miss MacSwiney and the other women prisoners.

CRIME WAVE DEPLORED BY COLORED SPEAKER

"The crime wave among the colored people of the city and state is the result of misguided training on the part of the parents and of bad association," said Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes Institute, in delivering a special sermon in Cosmopolitan African Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning to a large audience of colored citizens.

"A survey was made of the colored boys and girls in the reformatories and detention schools of the state and the report showed that more than 95 per cent of their fathers and mothers are living. The curfew law of the city should be enforced, and parents who permit their children to remain on the streets at late hours should be arrested."

Rev. W. J. Williams, pastor, spoke on the financial drive of the Red Cross and urged the congregation to give liberally for the support of this organization. Rev. Horace Williams, H. D. Gorman and S. M. Montgomery delivered short talks.

PHONOGRAPH MAKING SHOWS BIG DECREASE

Washington, November 12.—The "talking machine," according to production figures just made public by the department of commerce, is losing much of its erstwhile popularity.

A decrease of 35.7 per cent in the number of workers engaged in the manufacture of phonographs, graphophones and talking machines in 1921 as compared with 1919 is reported by the department, while the total value of the products dropped 38.1 per cent, from $158,548,000 in 1919 to $98,161,000 in 1921.

No reason was advanced by the department for this tremendous decline in what generally has been considered a most popular addition to the average home.

1 1-16 STAPLE COTTON MAY BE RESTORED

Carload Lots of Long-Fiber Producing Seed Have Been Secured.

The one and one-sixteenth inch long staple cotton, much sought by domestic and European spinners, may again be grown in north Georgia.

The Atlanta Commercial exchange, co-operating with the State College of Agriculture and the Georgia Country Bankers' association, has secured an option on between 25 and 30 cars of cottonseed which, it is said, meets boll weevil conditions and produces a much longer fibre than the early maturing varieties now grown in the state in an effort to combat the dreaded weevil.

The one and one-sixteenth inch staple, before the ravages of the weevil made the northern part of Georgia famous. It brought a fancy price on the market, and was most desired by the cotton mills because of it's easy spinning qualities.

The seed secured by the commercial exchange will be shipped from the southwest, and will be sold to north Georgia at absolute cost, in an effort to produce crops of longer staple.

The commercial exchange already has received inquiries from several South Carolina mills relative to the plan to restore the long staple.

The shipment will arrive in ample time for distribution before the planting season in March or April. The country bankers' association is spreading the gospel of longer staple cotton and using its influence to induce the cotton growers to plant as much of the new seed as possible. A longer staple means more money to the farmer, they say, and increased prosperity for the entire state.

Experiments already completed have shown the new seed to be a producer of a splendid variety, and there is every reason to believe, it is said, that the same results can be generally produced.

Huge Migration Begun by People In Asia Minor

Wholesale Evacuation, in Fear of Turks, Bringing Terrible Sufferings.

Constantinople, November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—Reports reaching Constantinople show that the entire Christian population of Sivas, Angora, Cesarea, Konia and the other large centers in Asia Minor are in panicky flight towards the shores of the Mediterranean and Black Seas.

Samsun, in the Vilayet of Trebisond, on the Black Sea, has 10,000 of its own refugees and 40,000 others are reported headed for that port. Along every road and in every mountain pass are long winding serpentine columns of men, women and children, goading along sleepy oxen pulling wagon loads of their worldly goods. People are abandoning their homes, farms and everything in their eagerness to put the greatest possible distance between themselves and their mortal enemies—the Turks.

The difficulties and inevitable hardships of the wholesale evacuation have been increased by inclement weather, which is bringing sickness or death to thousands. James Crutcher, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., of the American Near East relief, notified Constantinople by courier today that the waterfront at Samsun was crowded with nervous or terrorized refugees waiting for boats. Mr. Crutcher states that the available ships will only embark 2,000 persons. He believes that not exceeding one-third of the refugees will be able to leave the country within the period set for them to do so by the Turks. He therefore is making efforts to induce the Angora government to extend the time limit.

Turks Hold Men.

Reports from other places in Asia Minor say the Turkish military is withholding permission for males from 19 to 55 years of age to leave the country and is allowing only women and children to depart. Deprived of their bread winners, these refugees present a problem beyond the efforts of the American relief agencies.

Rear Admiral Bristol, commander of the American naval force in Turkish waters, is concerned over the Angora government's order that all Christians must leave the country and is striving to have the nationalists modify this attitude.

By winter there is expected to be a million or more of the evicted inhabitants of Asia Minor on the bleak, shelterless coast of Asia Minor, begging to be rescued. No one nation has the facilities for the enormous task of expatriation, and it is admitted it is far too great for the limited means of the League of Nations. If in addition to the million and a half Christians in the interior and Constantinople the 45,000 Greeks, Armenians and other foreigners are forced out of the country, it is believed there will be a stampede of tremendous proportions, entailing endless misery and confusion. Already the best elements of the British, French, American and other nationalities have left Constantinople and the paralysis in business daily is increasing.

Send Relief Ships.

The Near East relief today sent the steamship Belgravian to Samsun to begin the embarkation of 7,500 Greek and Armenia orphans who are fleeing the country in consequence of the Angora government's orders for the evacuation of Anatolia in the next thirty days.

Relief ships are also being dispatched to Mersina and Beirut, which have become the two other extremities of the main lines of flight in Asia Minor.

MARINE OFFICER DROWNED SUNDAY ON HUNTING TRIP

New Orleans, La., November 12.—First Lieutenant Charles M. Portis, second in command of marines at the Algiers naval station, was drowned today while hunting near Pass-A-L'Outre at the mouth of the Mississippi river. The body was recovered and will be brought to the naval station. Major C. A. Lutz, commanding officer of the marine barracks at Algiers, stated that no details of the drowning had been received.

Lieutenant Portis was transferred to the Algiers station from Quantico, Va., last May. He served previous to his Quantico detail at various naval stations in the United States and was for two years with the marine forces in Santo Domingo. He was a West Point cadet and was commissioned in the marine corps on September 15, 1917.

He was born in Birmingham, Ala., where his mother now resides, November 27, 1895.

READY TO HANDLE WAR CERTIFICATES, SOON TO MATURE

Washington, November 12.—Arrangements for handling $625,000,000 of war savings certificates of 1918 which mature January 1 were announced tonight by Secretary Mellon, who said they were in the hands of millions of holders.

"For the convenience," the statement said, "the treasury is offering special facilities for cash redemption or exchange into treasury savings certificates of the series of 1923, including provision for presentation before January 1, 1923."

The proposed exchange is part of the treasury's program for funding the short dated debt, of which about $3,000,000,000 remains to be funded this fiscal year.

"Beginning November 15, 1922," Mr. Mellon explained, "holders of 1918 war savings certificates can exchange them at maturity value for treasury savings certificates dated January 1, 1923, and at the same time can get advance payment of any cash difference by taking the largest amount of treasury certificates that their war savings certificates taken at maturity value will cover. Holders will not be able to make cash redemption of their certificates before maturity but beginning November 15, 1922, may present them in advance for redemption as of January 1, 1923, and in that event will receive on or about January 1, 1923, checks payable to their order covering the redemption value.

"Registered war savings certificates must be presented to the postoffice where registered, but unregistered certificates will be received for redemption or exchange at any money order postoffice any federal reserve bank or branch of the treasury at Washington."

German Cigarettes Made to Counterfeit U. S. Brand, Charged

Washington, November 12.—Large tobacco company representatives have reported to government officials the activities of certain German manufacturers in marketing in Germany cigarettes made of European tobacco in wrappers cleverly counterfeiting an American brand with its distinguishing picture, even a counterfeit American revenue stamp is used.

Soldiers at Coblenz and American tourists reported the matter and various government agencies are co-operating with the American manufacturers to punish the German cigarette makers in the German courts under the commercial conventions safeguarding the marking of American goods. Separate prosecutions for counterfeiting American revenue stamps will be brought under provisions of the agreement with Germany for reciprocal protection of government issues.

ing committee decision, is to come up next in the senate, but is not to be passed to the extent of blocking other important bills, leaders said. There were private predictions that the Dyer bill would be laid aside early in the regular session.

Resume Probes.

Several investigations, adjourned over election, are to be resumed, including the senate inquiry into gasoline and oil prices. Impeachment charges of Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota, against Attorney General Daugherty are on the house judiciary committee's calendar.

A start on farm credit legislation is to be made by the farm blocs during the short session. Personal credit proposals of several bills already introduced are to be composed and an effort made to work out a reform measure to afford short-time loans to farmers. Reintroduction of soldiers' bonus bills also is in prospect, but action was not believed possible until the next congress.

chance of Great Britain and France being in general accord on questions on which Lord Curzon is extremely anxious to obtain allied agreement before the meeting with the Turks but there is no concealment of the fact that there is not entire harmony in the views of the French and the British. The French, in any case, think it is better to get to work with the Turks quickly in order to avoid any outbreaks around Constantinople, and to trust to luck to find time at Lausanne, or by wire, or through ambassadors, to agree on such a common course as still may be found at this late date.

TURKISH EDITOR SLAIN BY MOB.

Constantinople, November 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—Ali Kemal Bey, editor of the anti-nationalist newspaper Sabah, who was arrested at Ismid on the charge of subversible actions, was killed by a mob after having been officially condemned to death. He was taken before General Nureddin Pasha, military governor of Smyrna, now on a tour of inspection of the nationalist troops at Ismid, who pronounced the death sentence dramatically:

"In the name of Islam, in the name of the Turkish nation, I condemn you to death as a traitor to the country."

Ali Kemal remained passive, uttering no word of protest; his hands tied, he was led to a scaffold. Before he reached the gibbet, however, an angry mob of women pounced upon him attacking him with vines, stones, clubs, tearing at his clothing and slashing his body and head with cutlasses. After a few minutes of excruciating torture, the victim expired. His body was dragged through the streets by the infuriated mob and exposed to public gaze on the scaffold for several hours.

The editor's death has caused profound resentment and emotion in Constantinople, where he was known as one of Turkey's most enlightened and most impartial citizens.

LIKE VAST POWDER MAGAZINE.

Constantinople, November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Constantinople may be likened to a vast powder magazine, which the British are striving in the face of growing difficulties to keep from ignition. General Harington is urging the home government to hasten the peace conference as the best means of avoiding an open rupture. He believes that if the Turks can be held in leash until the Lausanne meeting begins, the danger of hostilities will be averted.

The exhaustless patience and moderation of General Harington in view of what is beheld to be the unreasonable and unconciliatory attitude of the Angora government has excited the admiration of Americans and other observers. In their earnest desire for peace the British are conceding every possible demand to the Turks. The latest concession is abolition of allied censorship of Turkish newspapers and withdrawal of supervision over the Constantinople-Angora telegraph lines and other internal and civil administrative machinery.

Rafet Pasha, the nationalist governor, now has an equal voice in all matters relating to security and order in the city. He has been invited to draw up police plans which would be acceptable to Angora, but the allies will insist upon retention of the control of passports until after the peace conference.

In spite of repeated and persistent reports circulated in Europe and America that the sultan has abdicated, the head of the Moslem world remains in the Yildiz palace. He receives visitors and discharges his usual duties. He participated in the usual Friday selamlik and acknowledged with his wonted courtesy the presence of foreign spectators. Americans were quick to note the sovereign attired in his customary military uniform as commander-in-chief of the Turkish armies, although the Angora government insists that he has been shorn of all but spiritual authority over the Islamic peoples.

SENIORITY RULE MAY BE DROPPED

Calder, New York; Sutherland, West Virginia, and Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, were defeated and Senator Williams, democrat, Mississippi, retired. It is predicted that Senators Wadsworth and Edge will succeed Senators Calder and Frelinghuysen.

Another important committee in which will be an unusual number of changes is interstate commerce, which will have to deal with efforts to abolish the railway labor board and to amend the transportation act and the Adamson eight-hour law. Six members must be replaced. Four republicans, Senators Townsend, Kellogg, Poindexter and Frelinghuysen were defeated with one democrat, Senator Pomerene, Ohio, while another democratic member, Senator Myers, Montana, was not a candidate for re-election.

On the foreign relations committees three republican members, McCumber, New and Kellogg and three democrats, Pomerene, Hitchcock and Williams retire. The foreign relations post is regarded as particularly desirable and vacancies always are the subject of sharp competition.

BOTTLERS TO OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

Charles V. Rainwater, president of the national organization, will preside at the convention sessions at the auditorium. Junior Owens, of Washington city, will act as secretary.

The delegates will be entertained at an old-time barbecue at the White company's plant on North Boulevard Friday at noon. Five quarters of beef, corn-fed shoats and prime mutton will be served.

A theater party at the Atlanta theater has been planned for Thursday night, when the delegates and their wives will be the guests of the Coca-Cola company.

Business Program.

The business program, beginning Wednesday morning, is varied and covers every subject of any consequence to bottlers, an industry that totals hundreds of millions in capital and valuation and affecting every city, town and hamlet in the United States and Canada. Among the more notable speakers, excluding association officials and chairmen of committees, are Dr. W. G. Campbell, acting chief of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, Washington; C. R. Atchinson, New York; Anderson Pace, Baltimore, and others.

On Thursday evening there will be a wiener roast at Taft hall and on the same evening there will be band concert in the auditorium. Scores of smaller parties have been arranged for, and special arrangements have been made with the officials of the various golf clubs to take care of the special tournaments that have been scheduled.

Biggest Convention.

"This is the biggest convention in the history of our organization," Mr. Rainwater said, "and every detail has been arranged in order that the event might be run off smoothly. We have planned to make the Atlanta meet one that will stand out among conventions of its kind. A tremendous amount of business is slated for the session at the auditorium and there seems to be no doubt that a staging volume of business will be transacted."

The exposition is in charge of James Vernor, Jr., of Detroit. Special machinery has been installed and every phase of the bottling industry and every process in the manufacturing and bottling of carbonated drinks will be shown.

CHAMBER WORKERS ON HOME STRETCH

seen that 30,000 was added to the population of this city in one year, and with her natural advantages, it is stated that Atlanta should easily come up with this record.

Memphis Plan.

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce is provided with an annual budget which makes it possible for its industrial department to send men of high executive and sales ability to prospective investors and persuade them to locate in the city. With the proposed industrial bureau for Atlanta, such will be the case here, and as soon as the information department of the chamber discovers that new capital is headed for the south, a high powered man from Atlanta will be put on the job to land it in Atlanta, according to the plans as announced.

The seven years between now and 1930, the time set for the "half million" city of Atlanta, a record to compare with the last year record of Memphis should easily attain the goal sought, say officials, and with the coming of these new establishments and the people necessary to operate them, business of every kind in Atlanta will be speeded up and the volume increased to practically double what it now is, especially in retail business, it is declared.

Through establishment of the proposed publicity department the chamber will have at its disposal funds with which to make known to the world the many advantages and attractions which are natural to Atlanta. This department is so highly approved of by some of the business leaders of the city that two prominent men have already pledged themselves to contribute $1,000 each toward a $10,000 fund for advertising the city, provided eight other citizens give $1,000 each.

The marketing bureau proposed under the enlarged budget program will bring a volume of business to Atlanta which has in past been diverted to other cities. The work of the chamber of commerce along these lines so far has resulted in placing in touch with each other approximately 200 buyers and sellers per month.

Safeguard Merchants.

Instances have been known where the business of the city was being injured by houses of questionable character handling products which were intended for legitimate marketing in Atlanta. A number of instances of this kind have been corrected by the body, even with its limited funds, and thus the name of the city was saved in that people attempting to do business here felt that they could safely deal with any concern endorsed by the chamber of commerce.

These three departments to be added to the chamber of commerce will make use of the enlarged budget being raised, and some of the most prominent business men of the city have approved the expeditures by publicly endorsing the movement now on.

A luncheon of those taking part will be held at 12:30 o'clock at the chamber Monday, and at this time the new teams will take the field for the second week in bringing the membership of the body up to the point decided upon.

VICTIM OF CUTTING AFFRAY MAY RECOVER

While still in a serious condition Sunday night, John D. Harris, 24, of 52 Bereau avenue, who was cut on the left side of the neck Saturday night by a man said to be Carl Dill, 19, of 38 Savannah street, has a good chance to recover, according to surgeons at the Grady hospital.

Dill fled before the arrival of officers and had not been apprehended up to a late hour Sunday night. His father and brother told the officers who investigated the cutting Saturday night that they would surrender Dill as soon as they got in touch with him.

Some of those witnessing the stabbing told the officers a "little man" did the cutting, while other stated that Dill, who is tall, was the man who stabbed Harris. However, all agreed that both Dill and the smaller man had knives.

RED CROSS DRIVE UNDER WAY TODAY

office boys will gladly give their dollar.

Mrs. Slaton in Charge.

The canvass for memberships will be in charge of Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, as chairman for the Atlanta chapter, assisted by Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Jr., as vice chairman. Mrs. Slaton's headquarters will be in Edison hall, at Peachtree and Ellis streets, and there any of the numerous chairman and committees working with her may report or consult with her regarding any problems or conditions which may arise.

The Red Cross makes its appeal only once a year. It is an appeal which is universally indorsed, and reaches every man, woman and child in the community. In its service for humanity, it knows neither creed, nor race, nor color. Its duty and pleasure is to lighten the burden of suffering of men, women and children, wherever its relief service is needed. Three of the fifteen nurses in the service of the Atlanta chapter are negroes, and minister to the needy and suffering among that race. This illustrates the broad service the chapter is rendering.

The Atlanta chapter needs and wants 40,000 members—more, if it can get them. It needs not only regular dollar members, but it needs and must have contributing members—those who will give all they can to the work. Many of these are now coming in; more must be had, if all the calls are to be answered. Not one single one of them should be omitted, and none will be, if Atlanta will make it possible for the chapter to do the work.

School Children Aiding.

School children of Atlanta, with the assistance of their teachers, are already lending a splendid help to the call. The Boy Scouts, too, have not only played their noble part, but many of them are wearing the buttons—a sign they have paid for membership.

Five of Atlanta's leading banks have opened windows in their lobbies for the enrollment of members. Services of tellers has been given over to Red Cross roll call, so that depositors may have easy opportunity of subscribing their 1923 memberships. These banks are the Atlanta National, Citizens and Southern, Lowry National, Atlanta Trust Co. and Fulton National. They will accept subscriptions at their windows from anyone desiring to make them.

While the school children and Atlanta's firms, offices, corporations, banks and departments, have already been doing good work in their own organizations, there are thousands of Atlantans who are not reached through these sources, and who are glad to enroll themselves as Red Cross members.

Firms and Chairmen.

Every firm and business organization has its own chairman who is looking after the work of enrollment among his associates. Eighteen firms and departments have already reported 100 per cent membership, and many others are only waiting to get the same good result before making their returns and sending in their checks.

The roll call dates are from November 11 to November 30, but the actual work was begun many days ago. Now comes the public solicitation, then the work of gathering in the reports from business organizations of every class, and, finally, bringing in the late ones who may have been out of town, or busily engaged when the call was actually on.

The Atlanta women's committees in charge of the work are enthusiastic over it, and feel they are going to get splendid results.

PAYNE MESSAGE FOR WORKERS.

Washington, November 12.—A message urging the 200,000 men and women actively engaged in the annual roll call to enroll "every American everywhere" on the American Red Cross roster was issued today by John Barton Payne, chairman of the organization. Telling the workers "you are to call the roll among your neighbors and friends from now until Thanksgiving day," Chairman Payne pointed out that "it is both your duty and your privilege to give every American the opportunity to consecrate himself anew to service under the banner of the Red Cross."

The stupendous task of relieving the misery of more than half a million men, women and children who have been driven out of Asia Minor and eastern Thrace by the Greco-Turkish war," he added, "is only one of the many grim tragedies which the Red Cross is meeting."

North Side Workers.

Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, chairman of the North Peachtree road committee of the Red Cross, appeals to the citizens of that section to enroll in the membership drive by applying at the booth to be erected in Jacob's Pharmacy, Buckhead, either Monday or Tuesday.

The committee in charge of this booth includes Mrs. Nicholes, chairman; Mrs. Walter S. Dillon, Mrs. A. L. Potter, Mrs. H. M. Godfrey and Mrs. T. B. Shropshire.

Memorial Session.

During the afternoon a memorial session of the conference was held, when memoirs of loving remembrance were read in honor of the ministers who have passed away during the year. Memoirs were read for Rev. W. J. Cotter, Rev. H. J. Ellis, Rev. W. C. Fox, Rev. W. R. Foote, Rev. A. J. Hushes and Dr. George W. Yarbrough.

At the night hour Bishop H. M. DuBose, of California, delivered the sermon. The bishop spoke on the text, Matthew 22:29, and presented the thought of the power of the scriptures. He said that the Pharisees and Jews boasted of the history of the scriptures, but had little knowledge of the deeper potencies of their meaning and the divine purpose in giving.

He said, when Jesus came to the temple He found in the Pharisees an incarnated ignorance of the scripture and spiritual anarchy as truculent to paganism, as that which culminated in the rebellion before, when the Jews were commanded to pay honors to the statue of Jupiter, set up by the Syrians. The temple Jews have their counterpart today in the pragmatic critics, who dissect the scriptures as dead bodies are, missing the underlying glory of indwelling power and the divine purpose in giving the scriptures.

The Scriptures originated in the power of God, since there was a time when there was no written word, but the power out of which the Scriptures came is eternal. The Scriptures came through the souls and lives of holy men, but their origin was in the eternal life and power of God. This point should be held with certainty, said the bishop, that the Bible came through men, but not of man. The power of God in salvation comes through Scriptures, convicting, enlightening, saving.

Men Are Ordained.

After the bishop's discourse the following men were ordained to elder's orders: A. P. Foster, C. M. Rogers, C. B. Drake, Q. L. Morgan, J. G. Lupo, C. P. Harris, E. C. Wilson, H. C. Holland and J. L. Moore.

The conference will hold its final session Monday, and final adjournment will come with the reading of the new list of preachers' appointments for the coming year. The exact hour when the appointments will be read cannot be stated, as the bulk of business to receive attention is so large that no one can say when it will be finished.

Some of the disciplinary questions are to be asked, the preachers of 11 districts are to have their characters passed, some resolutions are to be introduced and some 20 or more reports from boards are to be submitted and read for adoption. Among the board reports are those of the education board, the church extension board, the Sunday school board, the mission board and a number of others. Some of the reports will likely bring on some discussion. A minimum of time for each report to be considered will be at least five minutes.

Long Session Expected.

Should all these matters receive due consideration before adjournment, the conference will be forced to prolong the morning session, or call for a final session during the afternoon.

Report was made Sunday that all the preachers' appointments had been fixed late Saturday night. This is the first time in many years that the appointments have been arranged so far ahead of adjournment. Bishop Murrah has so directed the business of the conference that this is possible, and he is eager to finish all the work at the session Monday.

No announcement has been made as to the exact appointment of any peacher, and no official statement will be made until the actual reading comes.

Wild Rice

Pound $1.00

Wild Rice is one of the scarcest delicacies coming to this market and on account of a very short crop this season our stock will be more than usually short.

This rice grows in the fresh water lakes of Northwestern United States and Western Canada; is gathered by Indians who paddle out in canoes, bend the heads over and flail the grains out.

This year, in addition to being a short crop matured, there has not been the usual activity in the harvesting, resulting in our supply being very limited and little prospect for any more.

While a delightful dish in many ways, it is especially fine when served as a side dish with birds and other game, and those of you who remember that the bird season opens Nov. 20th, would do well to order your supply early.

FURTHER APPEALS IN EXPRESS THEFT

Attorney for 16 Convicted Express Robbers to Take Case to U. S. Supreme Court.

Macon, Ga., November 12.—Wallace Miller, counsel for 16 persons convicted of conspiracy to rob the American Railway Express company of approximately $1,000,000 worth of property, the conviction just having been affirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals, says that he will apply for a writ of certiorari as soon as possible and ask that the case be reviewed by the United States supreme court.

The mandate of the United States circuit court of appeals has not been received by the clerk of the United States district court, but lawyers in the case have received copies of the opinion from the clerk of the court in New Orleans. The mandate, to become a part of the record of the United States district court for southern Georgia, probably will be received here within two weeks.

This case has been one of the hardest fought in the history of criminal cases in the federal courts of the south, according to court officials.

Prosecution followed the disappearance of thousands of packages of express matter. Detectives were put to work on the case, some of them taking places as express messengers, until the alleged method of operating the wholesale robberies was disclosed. Developments then came in rapid succession. Conductors, baggagemasters, express messengers, agents and other employees were implicated in the plot.

Information was laid before the federal grand jury here early in 1921 and as a result 64 indictments were returned. Five of the accused persons pleaded guilty; 52 were put on trial, and two are still fugitives from justice.

Thirty-six persons were convicted of the charge of conspiracy, but only 16, those who received penitentiary sentences or heavy fines, decided to appeal from the decision of the court and jury in the United States district court. The late Judge Beverly D. Evans imposed sentences against each of the 36 men on April 30, last year.

Those fined and whose cases were included in those appealed, were J. N. Smith, conductor, of Macon, $3,000 fine; Charlie Johnson, conductor, Albany, Ga., $1,500 fine.

Others included in the list given a year and a day in the penitentiary, with the exception of Ed Knox, a negro, who was given four months in jail, are as follows:

Taking Inventory---

It's an established rule in the business world to take inventory at a stated time—tabulate the assets and liabilities of a business and know definitely its condition.

Many business men, at such times, set aside obsolete goods and dispose of them at a sacrifice, preferring to count their value, even though it be a small part of the original investment, in cash, rather than continue to carry in stock unsalable merchandise.

Many prudent housewives have adapted this same principle to the home and have found there is a way to dispose of household goods of various kinds that are no longer needed in the household.

Constitution Classified Ads are a great convenience for housekeepers who wish to sell or exchange articles of home equipment. By taking advantage of The Constitution Ads it is an easy matter to get rid of furniture, baby carriages, clothing, pictures, sewing machines and similar goods, turning them into cash or exchanging them for something that is needed.

Constitution Classified Ads have aided many prudent housewives in practicing domestic economy.

Would Make Tariff Beneficiaries Pay Bonus to Soldiers

McAdoo Urges Plan in Armistice Day Speech in California.

Fullerton, Calif., November 12. Payment of adjusted compensation to former soldiers and sailors at the expense of beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was urged in an Armistice Day address here by William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury.

Assailing those who have fought the soldiers' bonus on the ground that it would be a burden upon the country, Mr. McAdoo declared it was "sheer hypocrisy" to say that the nation can not bear this relatively insignificant burden when great subsidies are granted to private interests at the expense of the people and for purposes which can not be successfully defended.

"The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was recently passed by congress and approved by the president. It is estimated that the trusts, monopolies, combinations in restraint of trade and other beneficiaries of this measure will be able to take from the pockets of the American people $3,600,000,000 per annum, while the law is on the statute books.

"How can such conscienceless misuse of powers of government be justified when the soldiers and sailors who saved our institutions are denied a just recognition of $1,600,000,000 on the ground that to grant it would impose excessive burdens on the American people?

"Let an average of the net earnings of every trust, monopoly, corporation or beneficiary of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill be ascertained for five years, or for some reasonable period preceding the enactment of the law. Then take each year 50 per cent of all net earnings of these tariff beneficiaries in excess of this average, while the bill is in effect and apply it to the payment of the bonus.

"This is not an impracticable idea. It can be formulated into a law that can be administered. The plan is analogous to that adopted by the British government for raising money to carry on the war.

"There are some things that can not be measured in dollars. Justice is one of them. The nation must stand for justice and do justice no matter what the cost may be in blood or treasure."

Mr. McAdoo also suggested that the payment of adjusted compensation might be effected by issuing long term bonds if that method should seem the most desirable, with only the annual interest and the sinking fund to be paid.

WAYCROSS STREET PAVING PROJECT VETOED BY MAYOR

Waycross, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The fight between Mayor Cowart and members of the city council over the proposed paving project in Waycross goes merrily on with the mayor holding the upper hand at the present time.

At the called meeting of the council Saturday afternoon, the mayor won a temporary victory, when he vetoed the employment of a highway engineer to superintend the work for the city. The vote was three to two for employing E. V. Camp, of Atlanta. All of the aldermen stated they were in favor of the paving project, but failure to agree on the engineer gave the mayor the upper hand.

Waycross Strikers Still Are Confident Of Winning Fight

Waycross, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Although the strike of employees of the Atlantic Coast Line is now in its fifth month, the local strikers continue to hold daily meetings.

Promptly at 10 o'clock every morning the men gather at the Orpheum theater. At these meetings, talks by strike officials are head, reports on the local situation are heard, while communications from other strike centers are read. The men continue to feel profoundly confident that they will win, taking the position that the road is now facing a shortage of both cars and locomotive power.

The road officials on the other hand state that the men are being misinformed, and that the local shops are turning out just as efficient work, as was turned out on June 30. One of the officials in a talk before one of the local civic organizations recently stated that the Atlantic Coast Line would be glad to conduct a committee of strikers through the shops, and show them conditions as they exist.

JULIA COOK SMITH DIES IN FORSYTH

Forsyth, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Mrs. Julia Cook Smith, 81, widow of the late James H. Smith, passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Bartow, of Willingham, in Forsyth, Sunday morning. Mrs. Smith was the last member of a large family, the Cooks, who numbered among them men who were distinguished for their work for church and state.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bartow S. Willingham, of Forsyth, and Mrs. Lucius C. Upshaw, of Washington, D. C., and Forsyth; eight grandchildren, Miss Margaret Edwards Smith, of Atlanta; W. S. Edwards, Jr., of Birmingham; Frank Edwards, of Forsyth; Lucius and Marion Upshaw, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. William W. Greer, of Laurel, Miss.; Julian J. Willingham, of Douglas, and Frank B. Willingham, of Forsyth; three great grandchildren also survive her.

The funeral will be held from the home on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

MAN IS KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDS

Oscar Jones Dead and J. H. Mills May Die as Result of Crash Near Americus Sunday.

Americus, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Oscar Jones was killed and J. H. Mills dangerously hurt today in an automobile accident near the Stewart place on the Plains road, nine miles west of Americus, the accident occurred shortly after noon and was caused by their car skidding.

Mills, who was driving, sustained internal injuries and has been in a semi-conscious condition since. He is at the Americus and Sumter County hospital.

Jones was killed instantly, his neck being broken and his skull crushed. The body was brought here and prepared for burial. The car turned completely over but was not seriously damaged.

Jone was a car repairer employed by the Seaboard railroad here and Mills is maintenance of way supervisor for the Central of Georgia. The car belonged to Mills.

Jones was 39 years old and had lived in Americus 19 years. He was a member of Americus lodge, No. 202, Woodmen of the World, Sumter lodge of Odd Fellows and the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America. He is survived by his widow and six daughters, Mrs. L. R. Culpepper, of Macon; Miss Thelma Jones, Miss Annie Ruth Jones, Miss Ida Maude Jones, Miss Frances Jones and Miss Louise Jones. Two brothers, R. L. Marchman, of Perry, and Frank Jones, of Savannah, and a sister, Mrs. Minnie Wilder, also survive him.

FIRST DISTRICT EDITORS MEETING AT WAYNESBORO

Savannah, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The First District Press association will meet Tuesday, November 21, at Waynesboro, as guests of the president, W. L. Sullivan, of The True Citizen, and of the Rotary club of Waynesboro. Some unusually interesting and important items are to be upon the program of the meet.

U. D. C. CONVENTION OPENS ON TUESDAY IN BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham, Ala., November 12.—Delegates from almost every state in the union began arriving in Birmingham today for the annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy which opens here Tuesday. The meeting will continue in session through Saturday.

The first event of the convention will be a luncheon Tuesday which the local chapter of the organization will give in honor of Mrs. Livingston Schuyler, of New York City, national president and other officers. The convention will be called to order Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Among visitors at the convention will be General J. T. Carr, commander of the United Confederate Veterans.

SAVANNAH HOST TO TICKET MEN OF U. S. RAILWAYS

Savannah, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The advance guard of the seven or eight hundred delegates to the fourth annual convention of American Association of Ticket Agents, which will be in session here for several days this week, began arriving Sunday night on the Coast line. Representatives held a special meeting Sunday afternoon. A special train from Washington is expected later tonight and a Florida special will come in early Monday.

The DeSoto hotel will be official headquarters of the convention. Many elaborate entertainment features have been planned for the visitors. The railroad officials in Savannah, with the high passenger officials of the roads from all over the country who will meet with the ticket agents, are cordially co-operating to make the great meeting a success.

A post-convention trip to Florida and to Cuba has been planned for such of the delegates as desire to make such a trip. The sessions open Monday morning in the Municipal auditorium here.

OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY IN FITZGERALD

Fitzgerald, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Armistice day was celebrated here by a pageant at the Third Ward school at which about two hundred children of the seven grades of the First Ward participated. The pageant was staged on the schoolgrounds and hundreds of the citizens and children from the three other ward schools viewed the "story of our country" as it was pictured in song, story and action by several groups of children in the order of their historical period, from the birth of the nation to the armistice. The American Legion gave an oyster roast at the Blue and Grey park for members and families and Saturday two minutes of silent prayer was announced by the blowing of every steam whistle in the city.

PICTURES ARE SHOWN TO COLORED WOMEN

The Phyllis Wheatley branch of the Young Women's Christian association held a very helpful meeting yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium-theater. In addition to several addresses by leaders of the movement in this city two pictures were thrown on the screen: "The Care of the Baby" and the "Care of the Teeth." Both of these pictures were prepared by the Child's Bureau of the United States government. It will mean much to the children and mothers to get the message presented.

One of the national organizers of the Y. W. C. A. was present and told something of the financial campaign now on in the city for $3,000 to be applied to the budget for the coming year. Daily conferences are being held at the branch at 196 Piedmont avenue for reports and equipment.

THREE ARE INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Bristol, Va., November 12.—Three persons were injured, one probably fatally, when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telephone pole in South Bristol early today and was wrecked. Joseph Godsey, 22, member of a prominent local family, was injured internally and is in a hospital. Two young women, the other occupants of the car, escaped with minor injuries.

New Affidavit Refutes Story Of Mrs. Gibson

Self-Styled Eye-Witness of Hall-Mills Murder Contradicted on Story.

New Brunswick, N. J., November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—An affidavit refuting the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, farmer, of what she saw on the Phillips farm on the night of September 14 last, when the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills were murdered, has been obtained from a neighbor of Mrs. Gibson's and given to the authorities, counsel for the rector's widow announced tonight.

Deputy Attorney General Mott, appointed special prosecutor by Governor Edwards to investigate the crime, was not in New Brunswick today, and no official announcement of the receipt of the affidavit which was obtained by Timothy Pfeiffer, Mrs. Hall's attorney, has been made.

The affidavit is signed by Mrs. Nellie L. Russell, whose home is near that of the self-styled "eye-witness" of the Hall-Mills murder. It sets forth that on the night of September 14, during the time that Mrs. Gibson said in her statement to the authorities that she was near the scene of the shooting, she was at the home of Mrs. Russell.

Mr. Pfeiffer said the affidavit had been obtained after Mrs. Russell had written to Mrs. Hall telling her that Mrs. Gibson was not on the farm when she had said she was. Mrs. Hall, he said, received the following letter on November 7:

Letter Received.

"Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall,

"Madam:

"In regard to September 14, Mrs. Jane Gibson was not at the Phillips farm at 10 o'clock. She came over at 10 or a little before to tell me she had taken my dog from a man on Hamilton road. She sat on the steps of my shanty awhile and I gave her $1 for keeping my dog. Then I went with her to her home and got the dog. We talked a while and then I went home at 11 o'clock."

In the affidavit Mrs. Russell states that the conversation between herself and Mrs. Gibson on the steps of her home was in regard to a dog which Mrs. Russell had lost. At about 10 o'clock, she said, Mrs. Gibson came to her home to inform her that in the morning she met a man on Hamilton road who had a dog she believed was Mrs. Russell's.

Time Element.

Mrs. Gibson took the dog away from the man, the affidavit said, and kept it at her house. She asked Mrs. Russell to take the dog, fearing, she said, that the man might have her arrested.

This conversation, according to the affidavit, occupied a quarter of an hour. Then Mrs. Russell went to Mrs. Gibson's home where she found her dog locked in a chicken coop. The two women, Mrs. Russell's affidavit said, talked for several minutes in the yard, and when she reached her home again it was 11 o'clock.

In the absence of Mr. Mott or any of his aids no information in regard to what action would be taken on the affidavit could be obtained. Mr. Mott was in conference in Newark with other officials, it was learned, on plans for taking the case before the grand jury. It was the intention of the officials, it had been reported, to ask for indictments against the woman and two men named in Mrs. Gibson's statement.

ONLY QNE CONTESTED FITZGERALD OFFICE

Fitzgerald, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The entries for candidates for city offices have closed with five candidates for four places on the board of aldermen and one candidate for the water, light and bond commission. Judge D. E. Griffin, from the first ward; H. Milton from the third, and Dr. Frank Ward from the fourth ward are unopposed. Ennis and the present incumbent, C. E. Miller, are contesting the second ward. E. J. Hussey, for the past 10 years a member of the water and light commission, is unopposed for re-election. The primary will be held November 21.

325 LIQUOR CASES IN SAVANNAH COURT

Savannah, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—More than 325 cases charging violation of the prohibition laws with a score or more charging conspiracy will be on the docket for the federal court, which opens here, Judge W. H. Barrett, presiding, Tuesday morning. These cases are all on the docket for the first two days of court. It is predicted that nearly half the defendants may have their bonds forfeited.

ARMY FLIER DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Lieutenant Blaney Dies in Connecticut and Naval Aviator Is Hurt Near Norfolk.

Washington, November 12.—First Lieutenant John E. Blaney, army air service, was killed in an airplane crash near Hartford, Conn., Sunday according to word received by the war department here.

Blaney was attached to Mitchell Field, N. Y.

The machine which Lieutenant Blaney was piloting struck a tree, one wing crumpling in the impact. The aeroplane crashed to the ground and immediately burst into flames.

Lieutenant Blaney's plane is believed to have struck an air pocket, the right wing of the plane jamming into a tree by the sudden drop. The machine swerved around and then tumbled to the ground, crushing Lieutenant Blaney beneath it.

FLYER INJURED NEAR NORFOLK.

Washington, November 12.—Lieutenant Godfrey De Chevalier, one of the oldest aviators in the naval air service was seriously and possibly fatally injured in a plane crash at Lochaven, near Norfolk, Va., Sunday, according to word received by the navy department.

His recovery, it was said, is doubtful. A member of the staff of the commander of the Atlantic fleet air forces, Lieutenant De Chevalier was attached to the airplane carrier Langley. Recently, he gained distinction by hopping off the Langley and landed on the deck while the ship was under way.

Following the crash, De Chevalier was rushed to the naval hospital at Norfolk.

Latest advices to the department indicate that Lieutenant De Chevalier will recover.

Admiral Moffett, chief of the naval air service, upon hearing of De Chevalier's accident, communicated with Mrs. De Chevalier who was in Baltimore. She hurried to Washington and Admiral Moffett met her personally, rushed her in his automobile to the naval air station at Anacostia, D. C., where he placed an airplane at her disposal.

Mrs. De Chevalier availed herself of the opportunity and was taken by air to Hampton Roads, thence to the naval hospital.

Uncle Henry Reese, "Marrying Parson," Dies at Age of 95

Senoia, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Rev. H. S. Reese, familiarly known as "Uncle Henry," died at his country home six miles from Senoia at an early hour Saturday morning and was buried at Tranquil cemetery after funeral services at the Turin Baptist church. He is survived by six children; his wife having preceded him to the grave a few months ago.

Rev. Reese was 95 years of age and continued his services as pastor until last year. He was one of the old-time preachers, who served the church that needed him most, often receiving no pay for his work.

He married more couples than perhaps any man in the state, and the number he baptized into the church was in the thousands. He married more than 1,000 people.

S. Claus Rushed To Finish Toys For Xmas Trade

Lateness of Orders Is Putting Old Gentleman to Hard Work.

New York, November 12.—For the first time in a very long and honorable career, Santa Claus this year may run out of certain kinds of toys. Anyway, he is having a fearful rush filling the shelves of his store for the Christmas trade.

There has been a great importation of German toys by dealers who took advantage of the exchange rate and reports from Berlin state that the shipments to America exceed all previous years.

But Fletcher D. Dodge, secretary to the toy manufacturers of the U. S. A., who make most of the toys for Santa Claus, explained that many dealers delayed their orders perhaps awaiting action on the tariff bill.

The result has been a rush of belated orders to the factories, many of which are now running at night. Although there would seem to be plenty of time, from the shoppers' point of view, the delay has made great inconvenience to the manufacturers who ordinarily have 60 per cent of their orders on hand by the end of June. Dodge said the tariff would make little difference in the price of German toys in America.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE AT OIL TANK FARM

Over Million Barrels of Oil Already Gone and More Threatened.

Houston, Texas, November 12.—More than one million barrels of oil was consumed early tonight and indications were that a similar amount probably was doomed in a spectacular fire sweeping the Gulf Production company tank farm at Humble. Lightning caused the blaze.

Three enormous underground reservoirs said to have a capacity of 400,000 barrels each, already were ablaze and the boiling inferno was spreading rapidly toward three other nearby pits. The whole farm consists of twenty tanks, all of which may be lost.

The blaze can be seen for ten miles. Workers are handicapped in fighting the blaze, both from the heat and the condition of the field. Rains over the last two or three days, have almost flooded the section and fire-fighting apparatus cannot be moved quickly to the scene.

Shortly after 8 o'clock tonight it was said that some oil was being drained from three tanks not yet ablaze and efforts were being made to keep the blaze back by throwing steam against the leaping flames.

The farm is situated on a prairie and fears are entertained that oil will spread beyond immediate property. The site is three miles from Humble, however, and will not menace the town proper.

While the oil belongs technically to the Gulf Production company, the earthen storage belongs to the Gulf Pipe Line, a subsidiary.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN BOILER EXPLOSION

Corning, N. Y., November 12—Four men were killed and three injured late last night as the result of the explosion of a locomotive boiler at Moreland, 13 miles from here. The dead are Frank Fermer and Frank Harding, of Corning; W. C. Thomnson, of Penn Yan and C. W. Hostrander, of Dresden. The locomotive was one of two attached to a southbound New York Central freight train. The boiler was thrown three hundred feet ahead of the train. It landed on the rails and the head engine crashed into it. The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

TO RESUME TRIALS AT HERRIN TODAY

In Enlarged Courtroom, Five Men to Face Murder Charges for Mine Outrage.

Marion, Ill., November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—With the old Williamson county circuit court room remodelled and both the defense and prosecution having signified their readiness for trial, everything was ready tonight for the scheduled resumption tomorrow of the selection of a jury to try five men charged with first degree murder in connection with the Herrin mine killings. The trial began last Wednesday with an indictment naming 46 men docketed, but 41 of the cases were nolle prossed.

Court was adjourned Thursday for the enlargement of the court room. New arrangements made it easier for the attorneys and the jury.

One hundred and thirty talesmen were called last Wednesday and 30 of these were excused for sickness and other reasons. Both sides tonight expressed the belief that several jurors would be tentatively accepted tomorrow out of the 100 remaining talesmen.

Each side has 100 peremptory challenges.

MONROE BUSINESS PROPOSES FARMING PLAN FOR COUNTY

Juliette, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—A committee of bankers, business men, and agricultural advisers of Monroe county has just outlined a farming program for the farmers of Monroe county, which they consider safe and sound for both the farmer and the business men with whom he must deal.

The farmers are advised to make cotton a surplus crop and to stress dairy products, hogs, and chickens, establish permanent pastures, and not overlook soil-building. "The bankers and business men of Monroe county," states the committee, "will prefer to co-operate with farmers who follow this program."

Presidential Boom For Walter George Begins in Chatham

Savannah, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Following an advertised call by E. S. Fuller, an attorney, who declared recently his candidacy as an independent for mayor of Savannah, a "George for President" club was organized here last night. The report of the meeting as officially given out today is:

"The friends and supporters of Judge Walter F. George, United States senator-elect, are actively engaged in urging his candidacy for the presidency in the 1924 campaign. A meeting was held last night at 106 West St. Julian street and the George for President club in Savannah was organized with the following officers: William H. Leopold, president; B. F. Leadholt, vice president; M. B. Williams, second vice president; W. H. Butler, third vice president; L. A. Mathews, fourth vice president; H. E. Williams, fifth vice president; M. A. McKenzie, treasurer, and E. S. Fuller, secretary."

Reblocking Waycross.

Waycross, Ga., November 12.—The work of reblocking and renumbering the streets and homes of Waycross will commence early next week, with R. W. Davis in charge. Mr. Davis is now engaged in revising the map of the city, and marking off the numbers for houses on each block. The first block on each street will have residence numbers up to 100, the second up to 200 and so on.

SATISFYING EVERYBODY INTERESTED

SUCCESSFUL MANAGEMENT

On Sept. 1, 1915, we took over the estate of a lady, consisting of farming land, stocks and notes, appraised at $55,700.00.

Taking advantage of favorable conditions, we sold the stocks at greatly increased prices and invested the proceeds in tax free bonds, and sold the land at double the appraised value, thereby increasing the value of the estate, from profits and additions from unexpended income, to $92,196.00.

By our management we have added to her net income more than $2,000.00 per annum.

In a letter lately received from her son, he wrote:

"I have kept in close touch with your management of the estate of my mother and am writing to say that I consider her most fortunate in having placed it in the hands of the Trust Company of Georgia. I am pleased to express my mother's and my own gratitude for the manner in which you have promptly taken advantage of favorable opportunities for sale and reinvestment and the kindly and courteous way in which you have always looked after her personal as well as her financial interests."

Our Trust Officers will gladly explain in detail and assist you in every possible manner without charge.

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

Immediately following the congressional elections of last Tuesday, President Harding issued a proclamation declaring that "public interests require that the congress of the United States be convened in extra session;" and, in order to meet the exigencies of what he termed "an extraordinary occasion," he summoned the present members of congress to assemble on November 20—approximately two weeks in advance of the opening of the regular winter session.

During special session of congress only the specific business to transact which the session was called can be given consideration; and the expressed purpose for which the national legislators have been summoned to the capital in this instance is to enact the proposed ship subsidy bill.

This measure, which failed of enactment during the last regular session of congress, as pointed out by Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, in a statement issued following the publication of the president's call, "proposes to authorize the sale of the ships of the American merchant marine, which cost $3,000,000,000 for the sum of approximately $200,000,000, with an added bonus of $750,000,000; a loan of $125,000,000 at 2 per cent when overtaxed people are paying from 6 to 12 per cent; exempting the beneficiaries from taxation, and without requiring an accounting."

In other words, the fact that such a measure is not now on the statute books, together with the fact that at the polls last Tuesday the American people overwhelmingly repudiated the suggestion of a ship subsidy bill and elected a congress which is unalterably against it, constitutes the "extraordinary occasion" for a special session to put it on the books before the new congress is installed!

It is apparent that in the opinion of the American citizens who participated in the recent elections this proposed shipowners' bonus legislation is not, as the president stated, in the "public interests," but in the interests of a privileged minority class which would profit by it!

Also that the administration is determined, if possible, to put this onerous measure through to enactment regardless of the fact that such legislation is diametrically in opposition to the will of the people, as attested by the "landslide" verdict at the ballot-box last Tuesday.

As Mr. Hull goes on to say in his statement, "the people on Tuesday last expressed their emphatic disapproval of this measure and of the major legislation of the republican congress and the policies of the administration."

The national democratic chairman pertinently suggests that instead of ramming this interest-serving ship bonus bill down the throats of the unwilling masses of the people the administration would be doing more "to preserve the true spirit and policy of parliamentary government" if it were to "adopt the following legislative program at the short session"—which convenes on the first Monday in December:

"First, defeat the proposed ship bonus bill.

"Second, repeal the Fordney-McCumber profiteering tariff bill and send it back to the committee for revision in accordance with the expressed will of the people to be relieved of taxation instead of having it increased.

"Third, increase the farm loan credits from $25,000,000 to $100,000,000 as was originally attempted by democratic amendment.

"Fourth, remove the stain of Newberryism from the United States senate by unseating Truman Newberry, of Michigan, and declaring it to be the fixed and permanent policy of the United States senate that no person shall ever occupy a purchased seat in that body."

It is plainly evident that back of this bold move on the part of the administration to hasten the enactment of legislation which it knows the people do not want, is a demand on the part of a few whose interests are not the people's interests!

It is an example of high-handed and wholly undemocratic politics, and strikes at the very heart of the principle of popular government.

CANCER WEEK.

The week of November 12-18, inclusive, is to be devoted to a nation-wide intensive educational campaign directed against cancer.

Every man and every woman in the country should take a personal interest in this campaign, treat it as serious business and do everything within his or her power to make it a success, for cancer is, perhaps, the most deadly and dreadful of the unconquered diseases from which human beings suffer.

For centuries scientists have been endeavoring to discover or develop a cure for this malady, and it was only within recent years that they have been even measurably successful.

While they have not been able to prescribe an infallible cure for cancer, they have definitely established the fact that the disease can be controlled, its control being a matter more of prevention than of cure, and the further fact that, arrested in its incipient stages, cancer, like tuberculosis, can be eradicated from the human system.

The carrying of the knowledge of methods to pursue in the detection and elimination of incipient cancer are the purposes back of this educational campaign, which is sponsored and being promoted by the American Society for the Control of Cancer, with the co-operation and assistance of municipal, county and state medical associations throughout the country.

The campaign in Atlanta will be under the immediate auspices of the Fulton County Medical society and the Medical Association of Georgia.

These organizations have compiled statistics showing that during the world war 3,000 Georgia men and women died from cancer, while the state lost only 1,530 officers and men on the battlefields of France; and that, as their statisticians express it, "cancer annually takes a larger toll of human life than the war did in two years!"

This startling presentation of fact, together with the additional fact that no person, rich or poor, is immune to attack by the cancer germ, is calculated to impress upon the mind of every citizen the importance of personal attention to the lessons to be imparted during this week of intensive anti-cancer activity.

THE LONG MEMORIAL.

The Crawford W. Long Memorial association has been organized and will be chartered by the state, to complete a work begun by the Georgia legislature, but in which it has miserably failed of final accomplishment, although it has had more than a quarter of a century in which to do it.

More than twenty years ago the legislature decided, in response to the invitation from the president of the United States, that Georgia's two most distinguished citizens were Dr. Crawford W. Long, discoverer of anaesthesia, and Governor and Senator Alexander H. Stephens, who was vice president of the confederacy.

That was practically the end of it so far as the legislature was concerned, for, although several efforts were made to arouse sufficient enthusiasm to get an appropriation for putting statues of these two famous Georgians in National Statuary hall, in the capitol at Washington, not a dollar was ever given and nothing was ever done.

It remains for interested citizens of Georgia to complete the work, and they have taken it up with a determination that it shall be finished by January 1, 1923.

The movement has the active leadership of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, of Atlanta, who was a student under and an associate with Dr. Long, and who has personally guaranteed $2,000 of the amount required for the purpose in hand. Approximately $2,500, with Dr. Jacobs' guarantee, has been raised, although organization for the active statewide canvass is yet to be perfected.

It will require only $7,500 to $10,000 to put Dr. Long's statue in the often so-called "Hall of Fame" in Washington, and with the widespread interest among physicians, surgeons, druggists, nurses, patriotic women's societies, dentists, and citizens generally, there can be no question that this modest fund will be raised in short order and the contract for the statue placed..

It ought to have been done long ago. Georgia is about the only state that has remained a laggard in this matter, as visitors to Washington well know.

It will be done now, for the movement is in hands which are determined to see it through.

The amateur sportsman can save a lot of hard walking by hiring the guide to serve as a target in the vicinity of the hotel.

Life hath no more now to deny;
Thou hast the sweet reward of rest:
Goodnight—Goodbye!

II.

God knows—who giveth grief and moan,
What sorrow shadowed thy fair sky;
Thou didst not walk the way alone:
Goodnight—goodbye!

III.

Why shouldst thou shiver at the dark,
Whose life was Night—whose song a sigh?
The sails are spread: Embark! Embark!
Goodnight—goodbye!

Home-Town Gossip.

(From The Dahlonega Signal.)

Uncle Jord Whelchel, who is located at the Cane Creek electric plant which furnishes us lights, also has a little grist mill. At the start he rigged up his mill to run backwards, but he reversed the wheel and is all right now, if it would rain and give him more water so he can run his mill faster and furnish brighter lights. Neither can be done until it rains enough to raise the streams.

Occasionally they get a new lot of song books at the churches and Sunday schools. Why not get in some new prayers? The Lord has heard some repeated so often that he is perfectly familiar with them. We must not expect him to do things that we can and it is our duty to do. We must do our part. If we idle away our time instead of working and ask and expect the Creator to supply us with food, somebody is going to get left and go to bed with an empty stomach.

We're tired of hearing about cats that adopt mice, and chickens that take kittens under their wings and dogs that make friends with cats. A newspaper story telling how a dog chased a cat up a tree, or under the next door neighbor's porch, or a cat that really catches mice, or h hen mothering a brood of real, honest-to-grandma chickens, would be a day's leading thrill.

Highland Section To Become Mecca For the Nation

Editor Constitution: A great many of the scenic attractions of the Georgia mountain regions are now included within the national forest boundaries. Under government administration many scattered ownerships are combined into one huge tract, and their natural attractions made available for great numbers of people.

Take for example the Chattooga river watershed of Rabun county. Here is a great basin of approximately 80,000 acres, almost entirely surrounded by mountain ranges. On the east Chattooga ridge divides it from the flat countries of northwestern South Carolina. On the south Rainy ridge forms the divide between the basin and the Piedmont regions of the Tugaloo waters. The beautiful Blue Ridge forms the basin's confining walls on both the north and west sides.

The bowl is drained by numerous creeks whose united waters under the name of Chattooga river form the boundary line of Georgia and South Carolina. The "three forks," Holcomb creek, Overflow creek, and Big creek unite at one point to form the west fork of the river. Warwoman creek, famed in Indian lore and for it's beauty, rises beneath towering Rabun Bald and drains the lower or southern half of the basin.

It's rugged, surrounding topography, its distance from a railroad, and its poor roads have combined to effectively prevent the advent of sawmills to the basin. Its steep ridges, rising abruptly from the creek banks and leaving no tillable bottoms, have kept out the settler. And so today here lies one of the largest tracts of virgin timber and practically uninhabited land in the mountain sections.

Wild life abounds within its borders. Foxes, coons, rabbits and squirrels are plentiful. A few wildcats are found, and there natives who staunchly declare that they have heard the scream of the catamount or "painter" far up on the mountainside at night. That they speak the truth is by no means impossible. Of feathered inhabitants, wild turkeys, pheasants and quail are found in numbers. These are the game animals and birds. Millions of smaller furred and feathered inhabitants make their home within the basin and contribute their part to the natural attractiveness of it.

From the summit of Rabun Bald a commanding view of the whole basin can be obtained. This mountain is the second highest point in Georgia, but the magnificent panoramic view obtainable from its summit is second to none. The bowl lies like an open book at its base to the east. Beyond the basin can be seen a large section of Oconee county, South Carolina, with its deceptive appearance of flatness from that distance. To the west the panorama is truly magnificent. At the base of the ridge lies the wide and fertile Little Tennessee river valley. Beyond that is Blue Ridge again, trending northwestward for a short distance. And just where the state line of Georgia and North Carolina crosses the ridge, there breaks off the Nantahala range, probably the most beautiful range in the southern Appalachian system. Just over this point and dim in the distance can be seen the great dome of Standing Indian Bald. Northward, the vision includes rugged Scaly and the Fish-hawk range. Satula, with High lands on its slopes, and far in the distance, Whitsides, with its peculiar chopped-off appearance.

The top of Rabun Bald has long been the goal of the hardier visitors to the nearby resorts. Heretofore it's ascent has been achieved only after a strenuous and fatiguing 6-mile climb up an alleged trail. But through the efforts of the forest service it is soon to be made available to all. Even now an automobile can be taken within two miles of the top, and a graded and wide trail offers an exhilirating walk the remainder of the way. The road leaves the Tallulah Falls railroad at Dillard and winds up the mountain to Scaly postoffice. This road has been put in excellent shape by the forest service for an astonishingly small amount of appropriated money. A mile beyond the postoffice the road forks, one fork leading to Highlands and the other to Nichols Gap. There the trail begins, and winds along the ridge-top through a virgin chestnut forest to the mountain's crest.

The forest service has just completed the construction of an interesting lookout tower on the extreme summit, to be used in locating forest fires. It consists of a fourteen-foot tower with a real glass house surmounting. Though the house itself cannot be left open to visitors at all times, a platform 4 feet wide runs entirely around the house, enabling one to get the view in all directions, unincumbered by tree-tops.

There is no doubt but that as this place becomes more widely known it is destined to become the Mecca for visitors to the mountains. The service plans to place a register book within a glass case on the outside of the house, for the registration of all visitors to the tower. From it an idea can be gained of the number of people who visit the place during a season, and from what distances they come.

An Hour in the Library!

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

Sunday afternoon, instead of desk cleaning, as is a habit, I spent glancing through a most interesting little volume of war memories by Lieutenant Frank A. Holden, of Athens.

I am indebted to the author for an autographed copy; and, indeed, "War Memories" is the title, and a most appropriate one.

A great many books have been written by ex-service men on one feature or another of the world war; some of them historical, others intimate glimpses of the soldiers' life in France; and still others romantic, and others tragically chivalric but without any purpose to especially eulogize the work of a fellow Georginn, through sectional partiality or a desire to please or flatter—a trait of professional character in which I am wholly deficient—I do want to say that in the fascination of narative, intimately and faultlessly told; in the appealing heart-touch of a soldier boy who reflected in his recorded memories the joys and the sorrows, the trials and the tribulations, the temptations, the accomplishments, the hardihood, the endurance, the sacrifice, the suffering, the heroism—the grip on duty—of the average American soldier over there, whether an officer or a private, the book of Lieutenant Holden is particularly appealing.

And it is refreshing in that the author attempts no heroics; and refrains, even to a too modest degree, if I should offer any criticism, from the touch of personal exploitation.

* * * *

The book of Lieutenant Holden has a particular appeal for me, for there is recorded in it so much of the small big things of the war, from the day the recruit entered the training camp, through the period of soldier-making, embarking, transporting, debarking, moving to the front, fighting, falling, dying—so much that I personally observed that is not recorded in other books, though they literally unlatch the heart-string of the American home, and speak as a voice from a sacred past, and oftentimes from beneath the leaning crosses of the dead.

Just four years ago today I landed in New York from France after several weeks spent at the front during the heat of the Argonne drive.

I went over in a transport loaded with 3,000 boys. I saw them as they bade relatives and sweethearts goodbye on the pier at Hoboken. I saw them as they buried more than a score of their comrades across the gunnels; as they quivered with excitement at every floating derelict of the sea; as they rushed with glee and expectancy to the port or starboard as the great guns of the ship fired three times in a single voyage upon the lurking submarine of the Boche; as they tramped through the knee-deep mud at Brest; as they held the military road of the American sector in northern France; as they marched to the trenches with smiles on their faces; as they were being carried, wounded and dying, to the first aid hospitals behind the lines; as they visited Paris on leave; as they recuperated at the rest areas; as they performed every duty of patriotism with their faces to the front, their hearts steeled to action, their faces serene in thoughts of home and country and flag—heroes all.

And in the closer touches of soldier life, without word painting, without self-laudation, without glorifying, the author tells in a simple way—made the more graphic because of its simplicity—of what he saw and felt and thought and did, in every phase of that great conflict; and his story is the story of two million others who shouldered arms for a country's honor; and who enjoyed a great deal, suffered a great deal more; and at every call to guns fought and fought like hell.

I believe that Frank Holden's book will find its way into thousands of the homes of the fathers and mothers of other boys who were over there—for after all it is a message home from all of them.

* * * *

While I will not have time to get down to desk cleaning this afternoon I do want to say that I have received probably a dozen letters from readers saying, "amen" to a recent article about Senator Lodge.

I appreciate all of these expressions, of which the following is a sample:

Mr. James Hollomon, care Constitution, City—Dear Sir: Anent your article in Constitution of even date, I want to say that to everything you said about Mr. Lodge I would like to add Amen! Amen!

I am reading just now "The Revolt Against Civilization," by Lathrop, of Harvard. It is a fine illustration of fine scholarship, smug snobbery and absolutely fallacious conclusions.

Yours truly,
BERNARD SUTTLER.

Atlanta, November 10, 1922.

I have also received several letters, and a number of clippings from brother members of the press, regarding a recent article about boll weevil conditions, under the caption "Georgia Learning the Lesson."

I know that I may seem obsessed with this boll weevil problem; and I am.

And I am not ashamed of it!

The other day a letter addressed to "Boll Weevil Jim, Atlanta, Ga.," was very promptly sent to this office with the other Constitution mail, and the distributing clerk put it in my private box as though there was no further question about it.

And sure enough on the inside it began with the more dignified salutation "Dear Hollomon."

But that didn't jar me.

In the face of so great an economic problem as boll weevil control, or raising cotton under boll weevil conditions, I don't give a rap what they call me just so the farmers will begin now to follow the rules of reason that time and experience have proven effective—to "learn the lesson."

You can't find a substitute for cotton as a money crop; but it must be grown only as a surplus, under intense cultivation and reduced acreage, and in co-ordination with home-grown food and feed.

Just as well get the ABC's of the thing now.

THE PERILS OF THE MEDICINE CUPBOARD.

Some such epitaph as this might be written for a good many harmless, unsuspecting creatures who have risen in the night and gone to the medicine cupboard to get a dose of physic or saleratus:

His wife kept the lye in the medicine cubbard.

An adequate stock of household remedies, both for minor ills and for accidents, may be kept on hand without endangering any one's life even though blunders be made. There is really no good excuse for keeping poisons of any kind in the home, and particularly when there are young children in the house. Whenever a child gets hold of strychnin in pretty sugar coated pills or tablets and eats enough to bring on fatal convulsions, the guilty person ought to be punished, for in such cases somebody has certainly been guilty of reprehensible carelessness. Likewise it is criminally careless to keep such poisons as carbolic acid or corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) in the house. I would plead especially to mothers who may read this, that they destroy or properly dispose of any such poisons they may have in the house now, and in arranging the family medicine chest or cupboard see to it that nothing of a poisonous or dangerous nature is permitted to have a place on the shelves.

I am going to give here a complete list of remedies and articles sufficient and appropriate for the emergency chest and medicine cupboard, and from long experience I feel warranted in saying that my medicine cupboard is practically fool proof. At any rate I believe it has no fatalities to its credit, and that is more than most family medicine chests can boast.

It is well to have a separate cabinet or cupboard or box or chest which may be kept locked or at least high above the reach of a curious child—not so much for the child's safety in this case but to protect the remedies. Other articles, such as toilet accessories and the like, should not be kept in the medicine cupboard. Modern surgeons do a tall lot of hand washing and scrubbing, but they don't do it in the same room where they operate. The medicine cupboard may be kept in the bathroom, but that is as far as the intimacy should go. The medicine and emergency chest should be about one foot by 15 inches and some five inches deep. This should suffice for a regular old fashioned family, or for two or three modern families. Tomorrow I shall publish the list of contents for the family medicine chest.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ada, Anna and Lorna.

We are three school girls and we would like you to print a solution for removing superfluous hair. Please give complete directions when you print the solution—A., A. and L.

Answer—There is no such solution, I assure you, ladies. Of course there are chemicals powerful enough to dissolve off hair, but such chemicals are far too irritating to the skin. A safety razor will remove hair, when hair must be removed, as effectively and more safely than any chemical solution or other depilatory preparation. But my advice is that you should not start using any solution or shaving, for when you do you stimulate the hair and it grows coarser and all the more noticeable. Remember that a woman's skin is normally covered with a fine down hair which cannot be removed without stimulating the growth of coarse, visible hair. Many misguided girls make the mistake of attempting to remove this fine down from the skin, only to regret their foolishness later.

Hand Lotion.

Please publish the formula of a hand lotion you gave some time ago. It was wonderful to keep the skin soft and white. I used it two winters with great satisfaction, but I have forgotten the formula. It contained ragmenth or something like that.—E. B. A.

Answer:

Tragacanth in shavings	80 grains
Boric acid	3 drams
Glycerin	4 drams
Distilled or rain water	One pint

Three drams of boric acid would be about all the powder you can pile on a teaspoon, or two teaspoonfuls of the granular form. Four drams of glycerin would be about a tablespoonful. Tragacanth in shavings or small lumps is likely to be genuine; the powdered article is commonly adulterated. Boil all together, constantly stirring, until a clear, thin jelly is obtained. Water must be added from time to time to make up for evaporation. A few drops of any scent may be added to the finished lotion if desired. Rub a few drops on the hands two or three times daily, after you have washed the hands and before they are quite dry. The lotion may be made to dry more quickly by adding some alcohol, though alcohol is harsh in its effect on dry, rough or chapped skin.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

THE PLOUGHMAN.

The greatest realization that any human can come to is that he is primarily a servant.

Through service alone are men raised to usefulness and eminence. Even the selfish man has to render an indirect service. But only as it is given the touch of unselfish thought and love does service reach toward the stars.

I have been traveling over the country. I have talked with salesmen—serving their houses. I have talked with big newspaper editors—serving their readers. I have talked with business men—serving those who came to buy.

But I have in mind another servant—the one who ploughs the ground, prepares it for harvests and for those who come after him, and who thinks as he does it.

I have looked out of my car window and watched this ploughman and have been inspired by his service.

I think of him as I take my fruit or cereal in the morning, and as I eat my bread. This strudy man who toils in the sun or rain, who takes the weather as it comes and makes no complaint, who is all the time thinking ahead—should he not be included among such as Carlyle writes about in his book of heroes?

In this connection I think of Crom well, called from his plough to lead a nation through its peril; of Cincinnatus, and others.

There is another kind of ploughman—he who turns over new ideas, waters them, and cares for them until a world is able to appreciate them.

The ploughman's job is no easy one. Nor is the life of the pioneer attractive. He must be compensated for all his toil by the consciousness that he is building for others, who may not come along for a long, long time—and whom he may never know.

The shepherd serves the life of his sheep—and the dog delights in every evidence that he is beloved by his master. Together they make up a picture of happy service, willingly entered into.

Why not be a ploughman?

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, November 12.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up betimes. Sat at my window and watched a snow-flurry and dreamed of man-hunting with the mounted police in the frozen wilderness until my wife came from marketing, then pretended to be labouring.

To my tailor and ordered a gray surtout, very neat. Saw Winthrop Ames there but he paid me no notice nor did Jesse Livermore, the banker. Bought a few Christmas gifts, the best my poor purse can afford, and remained long in a toy store, flying a flying-machine.

Walked to W. Hogg's in the hope of remaining for lunch but found him out. So to the Dutch Treat club and found R. Brikerhoff, the limner, there and he tells me he is going to France to live a year as is also A. Roche, the pamphleteer.

In the evening to see "La Tendresse," very good, and greeted Frank P. Adams, the tayle writer, and Roy McCardell, the humorist. Then to a waffle place and so to bed.

There is a woman lawyer in New York who dresses in an extremely mannish style—derby hat, loose-fitting coat, waistcoat, wing collar and walking stick. In the building where she has her office she was riding in an elevator with six other women. The elevator dropped four floors. She was the only woman to faint. None was hurt.

New York becomes pretty drab sometimes but there are moments when it crackles with interest. On a block in West Forty-seventh street the other morning necks were stretched to the breaking point. Barney Oldfield was going into a flower store. Across the way Mary Pickford was leaving a jeweler's shop. A parade was passing up Fifth avenue and Lord Shaw, of Dunfermline, on a visit here, was feeding a delivery wagon horse a loaf of sugar in front of the Ritz.

The flashily dressed women who attempt to make a living in New York playing the races are a type distinct. They live as a rule in the apartments over shops in the Forties and gather in the hair-dressing parlors to discuss the day's fortunes. When they are winning they are the best spenders in the shops. Strangely, they are well dressed or rather over-dressed. Their laughter is just a bit louder than that of their sisters. Jockeys and trainers, in their eyes, are heroes. They apparently know nothing of the world about them. Their life is made up of "past performances" and their jargon is that of the tracks. They are birds of passage—in New York today and Havana tomorrow. Pawn-shops find in them their best customers. They have no interest in savings banks. They invest instead in jewels that can be quickly converted into cash.

The ghosts of 1812 are stalking at the Duncan Phyfe furniture exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum. The furnishings of the period—old mirrors, gilt vases, girandoles and silver plate—are shown in addition. Phyfe was a Scotchman and heir to the traditions of the great English cabinet-makers of the end of the 18th century—Adam, Heppelwhite and Sheraton. He made chairs, tables and sofas principally. His workshop was in what is now known as Fulton street, where the fish market is.

: PITHY PARAGRAPHS :

Graft, since the memorable day when Mr. Enloe sent the order for the removal of an unoffending molar, had not gladdened the heart of the editor of this Tower of Titters until the day's mail brought a box of ginger snaps from Mrs. Jessie Folsom Stockbridge with the following verse:

Ed. says to "say it with ginger."
He bids us make it snappy,
I've sent him a box of Zu Zus,—
That ought to make him happy!

With a mouthful of these delectable delicacies, (ad gratis) the editor is moved to remark feelingly,

Yes, say it with Zu Zus,
I like to be fed;
Or say it with flowers,
But wait till I'm dead;
But wouldn't I be in
A helluva fix
If unprinted Graphers
Should say it with bricks!

All of which brings us down to the announcement that E. R. Harwick and Mrs. N. A. Garner today win the two pairs of tickets to the Howard theater, where a Pithy Paragraph film is run at every performance. If you land on that film you win $5.

COMING EVENTS.

Democracy is coming back—
We've closed the switch and cleared the track.
Hurrah for nineteen-twenty-four—
We'll hold all gains and pull for more,
And never let the traces slack!

In twenty-four we'll bet our stack
Of poker chips and all our "jack"
The "gassed old party" falls before
Democracy!

The G. O. P.—alas, alack!
From past and future strains will crack;
And smeared with grime and crimson gore
Republicans will bow before
The onslaught of that lusty pack—
Democracy! —E. R. Harwick.

LAUGH AND GROW FAT.

I write to tell you, Pithygraphs,
I've had so many happy laughs
From your dear pages bright and gay,
That strange to say—yet true,
Almost two hundred pounds I weigh,
And growing fatter every day.—
Adieu.

Christians Can Unite On High Grounds Of Common Beliefs

Editor Constitution: I thank you for printing my two previous letters on Christian Unity, and beg that you will indulge me in pressing the subject some further. I do this in the hope that my suggestions will attract the attention of some of the great minds of the Christian world. I feel it is a matter of the very highest importance, and there ought to be a basis on which we can all get together. When Archbishop Ireland, who was one of the most profound thinkers of the Catholic church and one of its greatest men, wrote to his missionaries urging co-operation with missionaries of the other denominations, under existing conditions, he rose to a height entirely above all denominational considerations and his great church might well afford to follow his leading.

I do not ask or suggest that any Christian denomination should give up its special beliefs or practices, but that all should get together, in point of practical good works on grounds that are common to all, ignoring and passing by all points of difference. And the point I desire to urge and to which I wish to call the attention of all Christian thinkers and workers, is that there is no reason why they may not do this. I wish to challenge attention to this statement and to invite discussion. Why is there not room for all to work together when they all are willing to occupy broad ground, common to all, ignoring all differences or raising entirely above such?

Where All Agree.

Many of the great sermons that have been preached by the great preachers of all denominations, which have become the heritage of all Christian thinkers of their own and all other denominations, are illustrations of the great truth to which I am trying to call attention. In fact, it is a great truth, from the statement of which I believe no one will dissent, that no sermons or utterances of the great religious thinkers of the world have been profound enough to become a real addition to spiritual thought, where the one who gave them utterance did not rise to heights which were entirely above all denominations. In fact, to use one illustration, the great question of faith, so often used by our Lord in His great works and teachings, and so urgently and persistently set forth by the Apostle Paul in his pressing admonitions and utterances, cannot be made the subject matter of denominational difference. Here all are agreed.

And this is but an illustration of the great profound teachings of Christianity which will readily occur to all minds that are reverent and devout, and I do not hope for any one else to give attention to what I am trying to say. One who is not willing to approach this question in a spirit of reverence and devotion, as well as all other questions relating to profound spiritual truth, had better keep away from them and let them entirely alone.

I respect them and I desire to urge it with emphasis, that it is not necessary that any denomination of Christians should give up its peculiar articles of faith or its special theories and practices in order for all Christians to get together on common ground, and by reason of occupation of which they can be of immense service to humanity.

Leave Differences Alone.

And why not occupy this common ground, letting alone the differences? All will admit the immense, even prodigious benefit it would be to humanity. Then why not some of the great thinkers of the great denominations that are now in a sense warring against each other, set themselves to the task. That there are men with great minds and great hearts among them who are capable of taking up the problem and finding the solution, we cannot doubt.

All Christian denominations can unite, but only on high grounds. They can and they must get entirely above differences in denominationalism. They cannot and they need not unite except in great fundamentals.

But in these they can unite and stand shoulder to shoulder. And this is the problem for the great minds of the religious world to take hold of and solve. Let such men get together and talk and plan until they find a way. No great movement ever comes except by the heart union of great and consecrated men. I call upon such men of all Christian denominations to let the world know who they are, so that some means may be devised to put them in touch with each other.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

SUNDAY RECITAL HIGHLY PRAISED

Miss Whitney, Miss Blatterman, Miss Hecker and Mr. Warner in Classic Recital.

Another Sunday afternoon program that touched the high points of musical excellence was broadcast from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, yesterday. Miss Minna Hecker, Miss Mabel Whitney, Miss Kate Blatterman and Byron Warner were heard in a program of classics and ballads arranged by Mr. Warner. The pleasure with which listeners received the program was evidenced by the number of landphoned requests for special numbers, some of them coming from singers and teachers of music as well as from the general public.

The recital was opened by Byron Warner, who has a tenor voice of unusual quality. He sang "Harlequin's Song" from Pagliacci and "Beloved, It Is Morn." Miss Kate Blatterman played accompaniments.

Miss Mabel Whitney sang "Her Rose" and "Until I Awake" in a well pitched and pleasing contralto voice as the second group on the program. "Roses Are the Rhymes I Weave" and "Thoughts of You" was her other group. The latter song was written by Harry Pomar, talented young Atlanta musician and composer, who has been heard several times from Station WGM. Miss Whitney was accompanied by Mr. Warner in her two scheduled groups of song.

The most striking number on the program was the duet "Parigio Cara" from "Traviata" sung by Miss Hecker, soprano, and Mr. Warner, tenor, accompanied by Miss Kate Blatterman. The two singers reached heights of power and beauty of voice seldom achieved off of the grand opera stage and both sang the classic composition with a feeling and a grace that evidenced true musicianship.

Miss Hecker was heard in two beautiful solo numbers, "The South Wind" and "Ave Maria," both accompanied by Miss Batterman.

Rario listeners landphoned for encore numbers from Miss Hecker which were refused because the singer recently underwent an operation on her throat that made over-exertion in singing unsafe.

Miss Whitney responded to encores with "I Love You Truly" and concluded the recital with "Requiem" by Sidney Homer. Miss Blatterman, who is a teacher of music and an accomplished piano soloist, selected "Praeludium" by MacDowell out of several special requests and played it as an encore number.

Band, Orchestra, Organ And Voice Music Today

The ether is going to receive a powerful and exceedingly tuneful jolt at both of Station WGM's broadcasting periods today. "The ultima thule of musical excellence" is only too modest a phrase to describe it.

Charles Sheldon and his powerful municipal pipe organ, one of the grandest in the south and played by one of the section's superior organists, a 50-piece band directed by Enrico Leide, that peer among southern musical directors, and the new and tunefully marvelous 35-piece Metropolitan symphony orchestra, directed by Buel B. Reisinger, one of the outstanding musicians and directors of the theatrical world, are all going to be the unusual features of the day.

A lyric soprano of considerable talent, Mrs. W. H. Wrigley, a pupil of Signor E. Volpi, perhaps the best known voice coach in the south, will lend a more personal touch to the day's musical ensemble than can be found in such magnificent music as the organ, band and orchestral offerings.

This day of remarkable radio music will be opened by The Atlanta Constitution, Station WGM, broadcasting on 400 meters, at 6 o'clock, central standard time, today. Enrico Leide's band and Charles Sheldon's organ will alternate in a program of 45 minutes duration. They will both be playing for the fourth annual convention of the American Bottlers' association which will be attended at the city auditorium by probably 3,000 bottlers from all over the United States.

The evening program, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, will present the Metropolitan orchestra in an overture selection of airs from Donizetti's opera "Lucia" with a special offering of the famous "Sextette" by the brass section. The music is directed personally by Buel B. Reisinger.

LESSON NO. 198

The Eaton Oscillator.

Regenerative receivers with inductive feed-back arrangements of the tickler coil or variometer type are in common use at many amateur stations. Ther is another method of obtaining regenerative action which requires no coils or variometers and needs no adjustment. This method is by means of condensers usually in the form of an Eaton oscillator.

The diagram above illustrates one way in which the Eaton oscillator may be incorporated into a receiving set made up in two units. One unit (the one at the left) contains the tuning elements, and the other unit contains vacuum tube apparatus. The Eaton oscillator, which consists essentially of two condensers in series, is incorporated in the unit containing the tuning device, which is of the loose coupler or vari-coupler type. A secondary shunt condenser of the variable air type is also mounted in this unit to assist in tuning the secondary circuit.

The unit at the right contains a vacuum tube detector circuit of the usual type with a lead running directly fromthe plate to a binding post which is strapped across to one side of the secondary circuit. The other side of the secondary circuit connects to the grid of the vacuum tube through the grid condenser "C4," which may be of the variable air type. A bridging condenser "BC" is connected from the plate to one (negative) side of the filament battery. The condensers "C1" and "C2" constitute the oscillator or feed-back portion of the circuit, while the condenser "BC" is important in the adjustment of the system for the reception of damped or undamped waves. For receiving damped waves, condenser "BC" is set at a maximum, while for undamped waves it is adjusted to minimum. The circuit may be operated without employing the bridging condenser "BC," but spark signals will not be received with normal characteristic tone.

In operation there is a certain amount of the plate potential fed back and impressed upon the grid by means of the condensers "C1" and "C2" which form a capacity feed back in contrast to the inductive arrangement usually employed.

The circuit shown may be applied to any loose coupler and tube detector system without materially changing the circuits or dismounting the apparatus. The condensers "C1" and "C2" are two fixed condensers in series across the secondary terminals with the grid on one side, filament in the middle and the plate on the other side.

While not particularly adapted to short-wave work, it has been possible to get down to 230 meters with this device, and good regeneration is obtained up to several thousand meters. A receiver of this type is comparatively simple to operate, the receiving unit lacking the usual tickler coil control or the variometers which serve similar purposes.

In conclusion, it appears that there are three common ways of obtaining regeneration in a vacuum tube receiving system; first, by the inductive feed-back arrangement using a tickler; second, by means of the tuned plate and grid circuits, and, third, by means of the capacity feed-back arrangements described above and known as the Eaton oscillator.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS!

Radio Editor—Recently I heard that if a person owns a radio telephone transmitter he does not need a personal operator's license, but only must have his station license. Please tell me if this is true.
A. R. H.

This is not true. A radio station of any kind must be under the supervision of a person possessing an operator's license, the grade depending on the rating of the station.

Radio Editor—I have a crystal set which consists of a loose coupler, a variable condenser, and a crystal detector. I would like to know if it is possible to hook up a loop aerial with it. Please let me know.
C. Y.

You can not use the ordinary small loop as used with vacuum tube sets, but you can use a very wide loop with fair success. String a wire around your picture molding, for instance. Make the diameter as large as possible. Connect only one end to your set and connect the other set post to a regular ground.

ANOTHER SUCCESS SCORED BY VOLPI

Seven Unusual Singers Are Heard From Station WGM at Late Period Sunday Night.

Another of Signor E. Volpi's magnificent Sunday evening recitals was broadcast from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, at the 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock period last night.

It equaled, in quality of singing and in arrangement and selection of numbers, the best that Signor Volpi has ever directed for The Constitution, and many of his past programs have been complimented most liberally by listeners in Atlanta and in far distant cities.

The galaxy of stellar vocalists who sang included Floyd B. Fuller, tenor soloist of the Central Presbyterian church; J. B. Clotworthy, tenor soloist of the Trinity Methodist church; Thomas Dendy, baritone; Donald H. King, tenor; Frank Tindall, baritone; Miss Mary Lou Watts, soprano, and Miss Elsa Stenger, soprano. Each was heard in a group of two solos, ranging from the better class of ballad to the most magnificent of grand opera classics.

Signor E. Volpi, whose pupils the singers all were, played accompaniments for them.

Thomas Dendy opened the program with "Little Bit of Heaven" and "Your Eyes Have Told Me So."

Miss Mary Lou Watts sang "My Refuge" and "Sing On," executing some pretty cadenzare in the latter song.

Miss Elsa Stenger sang the aria, "Una Voce Poco Fa," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and "Schubert's beautiful "Ave Maria."

Floyd B. Fuller, who is being trained by Signor Volpi for concert and operatic work, sang "Pagliacci's Lament," from the famous opera by Leoncavallo, and "Let Her Believe," from the light opera, "The Girl From the Golden West."

Donald King sang "Mother, My Dear," and "Before We Say Goodnight," two pretty ballads in which his powerful tenor rang out with pleasing effect.

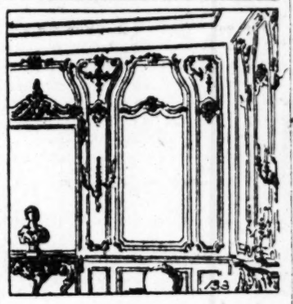

J. B. Clotworthy closed the program by singing two numbers especially requested following his solo of the preceding Sunday night, "When They Ring the Golden Bells" and "The Rosary You Gave to Me."

Several numbers requested during the recital last night will be sung next Sunday night.

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

By Harold Donaldson Eberlein

Joint Auther of "Practical Book of Interior Decoration," Etc.

No. 133—Walls.

Walls may either be decorative or used as a background to the furnishings of a room. Though decorative walls are more frequently found in ballrooms or rooms of a public character, a certain amount of decoration is permissible in smaller houses. In fact, where furniture is scant and simple walls of a decorative character are necessary; otherwise our rooms would have a look of bareness.

The easiest kind of decorative wall to manage in the ordinary home is the paneled wall, with inserts of painted decorations, of fabrics, or of ornamental papers. There are a number of imported Japanese papers in gold, silver and colors which, though not intended for wall papers, may be used with good effect.

Another method of treating a wall, which is suitable in many homes, is to have a frieze above woodwork peneling, or, with an otherwise plain wall, above a strong rail set two or three feet below the ceiling.

Where it is simply a question of two or three rooms, brightly colored walls may be managed, but strong colors should be used with discretion, as they are apt to become tiresome.

CATTS PEONAGE TRIAL SCHEDULED THURSDAY

Former Governor of Florida to Face Federal Indictment at Pensacola.

Pensacola, Fla., November 12.—Sidney J. Catts, who in 1015, a comparative newcomer to the state, upset its polltical equilibrium, by bolting the democratic party after losing the gubernatorial nomination and secured the governor's office as an independent prohibitionist, is scheduled to go on trial in federal court here Thursday on the second of two indictments growing out of alleged irregularities during his four-year term.

He faces two counts of a federal indictment charging that he held two negro ex-convicts in peonage on his farm in Walton county. It will be his second appearance on this charge. At the last term of court his counsel demurred to the 14 counts in the indictment and 12 of them were dismissed by Federal Judge Sheppard.

After Probe.

This federal charge and a state charge alleging that he accepted a bribe to influence his vote in the pardoning of state convicts came early in 1921 and followed an investigation by a joint legislative committee into Mr. Catt's acts during his tenure of office. The committee never made public its report but the federal and state indictments developed during its investigation.

The state charge relating to the pardoning of convicts was dismissed by Circuit Judge A. V. Long at Lake Butler, Union county, last spring. He upheld Mr. Catts' defense that the indictment was improperly drawn and vague in its purport.

When this indictment was originally returned in 1921; Mr. Catts whereabouts weren ot known. Subsequently he was arrested in Albany, Ga., on the federal indictment. He gave bond on that charge and returned to the state and gave bond for the charge.

Charges Peculiar.

Mr. Catts charges that the two indictments were the outgrowth of political persecution.

At the time he announced for the democratic nomination for governor in 1915 he had only been in the state a few days more than the required residence for office. The primary developed a close race between him and W. V. Knott, the result of which was contested when Mr. Knott apparently won. Mr. Knott was certified as the nominee, however, and Mr. Catts entered the field without party affiliation, basing his campaign largely on prohibition.

His term of office ran an unsmooth course from the beginning. It was marked by his wholesale dismissal of state and county officers and his frequent public controversies. In one of these he threatened publicly to take a shotgun and go after one of his constant hecklers.

James Kirkwood has the distinction of being a good leading man and at the same time a good director in motion picture work. For nearly ten years this well-known actor directed varied productions. In fact, he did one of the first real "all-star" casts. It was "Classmates" by William de Mille, and the cast included Blanche Sweet, Marshall Neilan, Henry Walthall and Antonio Moreno. Mr. Kirkwood has just finished one of the important roles in the George Melford Paramount production, "Ebb Tide," a screen version of the Robert Louis Stevenson-Lloyd Osbourne South Sea classic.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

LIFE WOULD BE ENDURABLE IF—

Said some old cynic once upon a time (I think it was Lord Byron, it sounds like him) "Life would be endurable if it were not for its pleasures."

Said a modern cynic to me at the dinner table last night, "if people wouldn't try so hard to have a good time, most of the time, they'd have a better one."

I suppose he and Lord Byron (if it was Lord Byron) meant much the same thing.

Do you think they were right?

Perhaps before you answer this, it would fairer to the modern cynic to let him expand his statement to you as he did to me.

On The Move.

"People think I'm queer because I say a lot of the chasing around after pleasures they do isn't worthwhile. They make me tired the way they try to kid themselves into thinking they're having a good time if they're on the move and away from home, no matter what they're doing.

"Think of the times you've been places just because other people were going and you thought you wanted to, or because someone said: "Come on, be a sport,' when you were bored and tired and would have had a lot better time at home with a good book or playing games with the kids.

"Planning too hard for good times kills them anyway. The best times you have are when you feel like doing something and just get up and do it at the time you feel like it, instead of planning to do it a week from Tuesday and then not feeling like it and going ahead because you planned it, and having a ghastly time.

The Eternal Picnic.

"That's one reason I hate picnics and excursions and that sort of thing. You needn't tell me I don't know about them. I've been at planty of them in my day when I used to think I had to do what other people did instead of finding out what I really wanted to do and doing it. And I've seen a lot of people start off enthusiastic and then when things don't turn out the way they're supposed to and they have a rotten time, they grunt and groan and wish they hadn't come. I've heard them. And they go home swearing they'll never go again."

"And then what happens?" I asked suggestively.

"Oh yes, I know what you mean. They begin to forget how uncomfortable they were and how tedious the whole thing was. It isn't so bad in retrospect, maybe it makes something to talk about, and by and by something else comes up and they do it again. But that doesn't mean they're not fools for letting themselves forget."

"Perhaps they do have a better time the next time" I suggested.

The cynic laughed me to scorn.

"But they do sometimes" I persisted, "and anyhow they always think they are going to."

"Hopeless" murmured the cynic.

Of course I wouldn't admit it to him, but while I think he takes a gloomly view of the possibility of having a good time in the conventional ways; on the other hand, I do think there is a lot in what he says about our letting ourselves be hypnotized into thinking we want to do things because they involve being on the move and being away from home, instead of putting our minds on it, analyzing the things that really give us happiness and not letting ourselves be dragged off into boresome pleasure chasing.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

Although most of us buy our tea by the package, it is well to understand the six standard grades of tea. First, flowery pekoe, which is the tip of the stem and the buds, and which grade seldom reaches this country; second, orange pekoe, which is the first open leaf; third, pekoe, second leaf; fourth, first souchong, which is the third leaf; fifth, second souchong, which is the fourth leaf; and sixth, Congou, which is the fifth leaf.

All dry, fresh tea leaves should be free from dust and broken bits of stems when you buy them. When the leaves are steeped, you can then judge their size. It is best to have smaller leaves. If your tea has leaves that are badly broken, or with many stems or midribs in proportion to the amount of leaf, you may rest assured that you have been given poor tea.

Sometimes, however, tea that contains many midribs is quite satisfactory and does not cost much.

In storing your tea, always put it in a glass or metal container, which is air and water-tight, otherwise your tea will lose its flavor.

Cotton Price Advance Is Feature of Week

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, November 12.—Continuation of the persistent improvement in industrial conditions is indicated by the business and financial indices which became available during the past week.

Loadings of railroad cars show further gains, both in coal and general merchandise. The total loadings for the week ended October 28 amounted to 1,014,000 cars which is only 4,000 cars less than loadings in the week ended October 15, 1920, when the high record was set. It is clear, furthermore, that an even larger volume of traffic might be moved if facilities were available.

Soft coal production has been established at approximately 10,700,000 tons a week and the whole fuel situation is growing easier. Stocks are returning to normal proportions. Some observers now state that the danger of coal crisis during the winter is past, in any event, the cessation of the movement of coal to the northwest under priority should further ease the car supply situation, which already has shown some improvement.

Help to Steel.

Meanwhile, better coal and transportation situations have been of distinct help to the steel industry. October's production of both pig iron and steel exceeded that in any month in the last two years and the country's steel plants are working more than 75 per cent of capacity. Despite the heavy rate of output and shipments, the steel corporation's unfilled orders increased more than 200,000 tons and the total stands at 6,900,000 tons as compared with 4,140,000 at the end of last February.

Confirmation of the many evidences of active fall trade are found in the money market and bank reports. Bill holdings of the federal reserve system are growing and the rate on bankers acceptances shows a tendency toward additional firmness. Similar indications are apparent in England and there, as here, commodity prices promise to go higher rather than lower. It remains abundantly clear, however, that ample credit resources remain in this country and that any sharp rise in the price of money is unlikely.

Cotton Rise.

As far as agricultural products are concerned the feature of the past week has been a further strong rise in cotton. Despite heavy profit taking, which had no serious effect until near the end of the week, the December future rose to 26.80 cents which is over 6 cents above the October price. Incidentally the census bureau's ginning report shows that 8,140,000 bales were ginned prior to November 1, out of a crop estimated variously at between 9,500,000 and 10,000,000 bales. That the high prices which have prevailed for this commodity mean better business conditions in the south is obvious.

Wheat prices have dropped somewhat from their late high, but have retained the greater part of their recent gains. It would appear that these gains were caused largely by foreign buying which now has been suspended on account of the foreign exchange situation.

Pronounced weakness in German marks and the currencies of the continental allies, has been in fact, one of the major features of the week's financial situation. While autumn purchasing and a speculation have played a part, most quarters consider that the unsatisfactory status of the German reparations problem has been the leading factor in the foreign exchange demoralization.

BIG COAL SAVING IN USING ALL METAL WEATHER STRIPS

Waste of fuel is never excusable, and with the great shortage of coal prevailing throughout the country today it is nothing short of criminal, especially when an easy and economical method of saving 25 to 40 per cent of a coal bill can be readily shown. And that is precisely what Floyd Bros., 399 Edgewood avenue, exclusive Atlanta agents for All-metal Weatherstrip, propose to do as to this product that is daily gaining in popularity with contractors, architects and all others identified with building operations.

Good health is a blessing appreciated most after it is lost, and for that reason the preventive influence of this product, the installation of which puts an end to the danger and discomforts of drafts, protects the family from the treacherous results of dust and the countless germs it may contain, and makes for an even, warm temperature so essential to health at this season of the year, cannot with justice to himself or others fail to be considered by anyone constructing any building intended for human occupancy. Every such building should be as nearly 100 per cent comfortable, healthful and economical as it is possible to make it, but the average house falls far short of this because of the door and window construction methods employed—the very feature that Allmetal Weatherstrip has most satisfactorily succeeded in remedying.

Economy, of course, enters largely into the consideration of any matter. Allmetal Weatherstrip, in two or three years in the coal-saving effected, pays for itself, to say nothing of the damage prevented to furniture, rugs, carpets, etc., by the dust that otherwise steadily accumulates, and the doctors' bills created because of sickness due to germ-laden dust that is free to enter unless prevented by the installation of this system. It never wears out. The first cost is the last, while storm sash have to be removed each season and invariably painted, and are also unsightly and a great inconvenience.

Millions of feet of Allmetal Weatherstrip are now in use in all sections of the country and are giving universal satisfaction. The building bureau of the United States postoffice department has given it the conclusive indorsement of adoption for postoffices in many sections of the country. It has also been installed in a number of the largest hotels, apartment houses, hospitals, schools, and other public buildnigs in Chicago, Philadelphia, Rochester, Akron, Cleveland, Memphis, and other cities, as well as in thousands of homes. Floyd Bros. will be glad to demonstrate at any time to those interested just how to save money, add to their comfort and protect their health by making their doors and windows draft-proof, dust-proof and water-proof by the use of this superior product.

LYNCH & JOHNSON GIVE PROMPT AND EFFICIENT SERVICE

Lynch & Johnson, plumbing and heating contractors, with offices and warehouse at 53 East Hunter street, have a large force of mechanics at work installing plumbing and heating equipment in a large number of residences, apartments and store buildings now in process of erection in Atlanta and suburbs. This enterprising firm carries a large stock of the very best material used in modern construction work, and with its fleet of trucks makes prompt deliveries to its various jobs and thus keeps up with its work in a most efficient manner. This prompt service does away with delay in the construction of buildings and has proved quite a factor in increasing the rapidly growing business enjoyed by the firm.

Lynch & Johnson purchase all their matrial in large quantities, and their heavy volume of business lowering their cost of operating expenses enables the firm to take plumbing and heating contracts at moderate prices. Both gentlemen are very optimistic concerning the growth of Atlanta, and their present plans indicate that they expect a continuance of an extensive and growing business.

GEORGIA WOOL STOCK CO.'S BUSINESS IS TRULY WORLD-WIDE

A business established in 1895, by K. Koplin, and incorporated in 1918 with that gentleman as president; John W. Russey, secretary, and P. Koplin, treasurer, has grown to such magnitude that the offices and plant now occupy 140,000 square feet from No. 1 to 35 Grant street, and the Georgia Woolstock company would be clearly justified in adding the word "International" to its name. With its established trade in steel, rags, paper, army goods, etc., covering every state in the union, the Philippine Islands, Cuba, China, Porto Rico and Canada, orders are at times received from countries least expected to send them in.

Recently one of the company's catalogs fell into the hands of a leading firm of Kobe, Japan and resulted in a large order coming to Atlanta for a shipment of army merchandise of all kinds. In addition to this the company has the distinction of having furnished the Boy Scouts of Belgium with the "pup tents" used by that organization. Its mailing list of 76,000 names is truly an international one and contains only the names of persons and firms that have demonstrated an interest in the various lines carried.

The company is most capably officered and everybody concerned in its management is enthusiastic as to the future of Atlanta. It has 150 persons on its payroll and the extent of its growing and steady business is responsible for bringing many a dollar to Atlanta that but for it would be lost to the city.

There are more women than men taking extension courses at Columbia university this year.

Auburn Continues to Lead Dixie Grid Scorers

Rivals Finding Centre's Goal Line Easy to Cross, But Colonels Manage to Stick In Front of Procession.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Ability to run up high scores on opponents does not always determine success on the gridiron is shown by the records of leading southern football teams, for a check tonight of the total scores of the five teams that have not yet lost to a Dixie rival shows that only two of them, Auburn and Centre, rank within the first five high scoring elevens of their section.

Auburn leads the south and ranks high in the nation, according to tabulations to date with a total of 264 points to 35 for its opponents in eight games, and Centre is second with 254 to 47 in the same number of contests. Georgia Tech, North Carolina university and Vanderbilt, the other three major elevens which have not lost a game that would affect their standing in the south, are led in total scores to date by Virginia Military Institute, Alabama, Virginia Polytechnic and half a dozen other highly coached gridiron machines.

Vanderbilt, which tied its intersectional match with Virginia, is the only southern team which has not lost any game this year, for Alabama which earned a brilliant victory over Pennsylvania had previously been downed by Georgia Tech and Texas, but the most striking feature of the season which comes to an end in less than three weeks has been the frequency with which Centre's Colonels have been scored upon and the comparatively low total of Georgia Tech.

The games of Saturday, however, showed hardly an upset, barring South Carolina's decisive victory over Furman, for the veteran North Carolina machine that wiped V. M. I.'s off the list of undefeated, had gone into the contest with a record of having overcome a much more impressive list of opponents than had the Virginia Cadets.

The Other Results.

Georgia Tech's triumph over Georgetown University was the fourth consecutive. Vanderbilt defeated Kentucky although held to a low score. Auburn was easy victor over Tulane, Florida piled up a tremendous total on Mississippi college, Tennessee and Clemson ran true to form in winning from Mississippi A. & M., and the Citadel, respectively and Virginia and Georgia added another tie game to their annual gridiron meetings.

Davidson exhibited clear superiority over Wofford, V. P. I. added to its long string of victories over N. C. State and the crippled Washington and Lee Generals, while defeated, registered themselves as the fourth team to cross Centre's goal line this season.

Although Texas A. & M. defeated Centre 25 to 14 during the Christmas hollidays, the Colonels went through the regular season last year with the St. Xavier college team of Cincinnati, which was played in a preliminary game as the only one to violate the Colonels' goal this year. Harvard, Virginia Polytechnic and Louisville university have crossed it in addition to Washington and Lee, while Kentucky has scored a field goal on the Colonels.

Better matched games among southern teams, not only was shown by the work of Centre's opponents but was demonstrated in the play against Georgia Tech, which up to this time last year led the south and probably the nation with a total of 346 to 56 points for its opponents in eight games, but can muster a total of only 126 to 53 points in this year's seven games.

Tabulation of the five leading scoring machines through yesterday's games with number of games played scores and opponents' scores shows:

Auburn 8-264-35, Centre 8-254-47, V. M. I. 7-243-16, Alabama 7-231-78 and V. P. I. 8-214-29, while North Carolina and Vanderbilt rank further down the list with the Tar Heels 7-141-59 and the Commodores 7-140-16.

Vanderbilt and V. M. I. each with 16 points scored against it, take rank for defensive work, while Maryland which has made only 13 points to its opponents 131 in seven games trails, but the fact that the Marylanders' seven games have been with Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, V. P. I., N. C. State, Richmond and the Third Corps Army teams, accounts in large measure for their standing.

The south's football teams have reached the homestretch, or at least the turn leading into it and some mighty good entries are thundering to the finish.

Saturday's results prove that this business of awarding the championship is going to be as simple as exploring the ocean's bottom without getting wet.

Many Candidates.

Every state in the south, except Mississippi, where winning teams have gone out of style since "Goat" Hale left school and Louisiana, where the boys are growing beards, has something to offer for the title.

From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light, as the politicians say, come nominations of Georgia Tech for the honors. The Jackets have found competition with other southern teams remarkably simple.

Alabama is satisfied to let the Auburn Tigers carry her banners in one of the greatest battles Dixie football teams have ever staged for the championship.

Politicians Agree.

Republicans and democrats in Tennessee have agreed on one subject, at least. They believe Vanderbilt has the best team in the south and a victory over Georgia Saturday will settle matters so far as the Vol state is concerned.

The University of North Carolina seems to have a clear title in the south Atlantic sector, and you can lay your last dollar that Tarheel supporters are out to cover considerable more territory when the championship is discussed.

The approaching Saturday should clear the situation to a certain extent. Important games are slated and we will get a chance to see just how good are some of our neighbors.

Unconquered Meet.

Two undefeated southern teams meet at Birmingham, Centre and Auburn. The Colonels are favored, although all dopesters are agreed that the Tiger machine is one of the best that has graced southern gridirons in recent years.

The Georgia Bulldog has a chance to put an end to dreams of supremacy being experienced by followers of the Vanderbilt Commodores. Vanderbilt made an impressive showing against Michigan and followed with a victory over Texas, a team that defeated the University of Alabama. Georgia can afford to be careful Saturday.

North Carolina, the other candidate for championship honors, should have no trouble solving whatever problem Davidson is capable of offering, thus leaving the Tarheels with a clean slate for the season, if you will except that 18-0 defeat suffered in the Yale bowl.

Form Players Profit.

The form players, given severe jolts in other sections of the country last Saturday, prospered in the south, where surprises are generally dished out with abandon.

Most of the dopesters believed Georgia would defeat Virginia, but the margins they selected were so narrow that no shock was experienced when the game ended in a 6-6 knot. One well-known southern football writer hinted at this result in a pre-game discussion, while an eastern writer saw a Virginia victory by one touchdown.

Failure of Tech to score a point after touchdown and Georgetown's successful try deprived this column of the glory that comes with picking a score exactly. The count was 19 to 7. In the Saturday edition, this conductor in the first prediction he has offered the public this season said the score should be 20 to 6.

Same Old Story.

The Centre Colonels were scored upon by Washington and Lee, but scoring isn't rated as much of an accomplishment in these days of forward passing and reckles fumbling. The Colonels won easily enough, which keeps them in the running for the title. Attendance at Birmingham next Saturday was given a boost incidentally.

LITTLE ROCK GETS SMITH

The pruning knife President Jack Corbett is using on the roster that brought Atlanta a cellar championship in the Southern league's race last summer was brought into use again yesterday when "Doc" Smith, Cracker catcher, was sold to the Little Rock club.

President Corbett announced Saturday that "Dutch" Bernsen, Atlanta manager when the campaign drew to a close, having inherited that position from Bill Rariden, who was given the air, has been traded to the Nashville Vols for Mike Burke. There was no cash involved in this transaction, but it is generally believed in baseball circles that Corbett made a splendid deal.

Corbett seems to be losing little time in getting rid of his players. He and Kid Elberfeld, who by the way is visiting Atlanta with his family, put their heads together yesterday and completed their business in jig time. Kid believes Smith will look good with the bunch of youngsters he is hiring for the next grind, while Corbett is convinced that "Doc" would be of no assitance in getting Atlanta back to winning stride.

NEBRASKANS CLINCH TITLE

Kansas City, Mo., November 12.—Nebraska's not unexpected victory over Kansas by a 28 to 0 score yesterday leaves it with a stranglehold on the Missouri valley conference football championship.

The Cornhuskers' title is still technically disputed by the Kansas Aggies and by Drake. Neither of these teams have lost a game but the Drake eleven has not made the impressive showing Nebraska has. The Kansas Aggies also remain undefeated, but two tied games cut considerably into their championship possibilities.

The only unexected victory yesterday was that of Oklahoma over Missouri. It was the Sooner's first victory and from past performances she was not rated to get the long end of the 18 to 14 count against the Tigers.

Although Ames had met defeat at the hands of two other conference teams, the 10 to 2 defeat by the Kansas Aggies was somewhat more lopsided than was expected.

MERCER NEXT FOR PETRELS

BY BILL MORROW

The turning point in the Oglethorpe schedule seems to have been reached Saturday when the Petrels, tossing off their jinx, circled the ends and smashed the line for a victory over Camp Benning. The victory over the officers was a hard earned one and came at a time that was most opportune. Suffering defeat after defeat, and falling in the last battle to Trinity by a point after touchdown margin, had sorely tried the spirit of the Oglethorpe warriors and their stubborn fight at Columbus speaks well for the morale of the clan from Peachtree Road.

With their first victory of the season acting as an appetizer, the Petrels will journey to Macon Friday and attempt to get Mercer's scalps. Whether they have acquired the knack of winning will be put to the test when the Petrels visit the would-be capital of the state.

An interesting sidelight to the Oglethorpe victory over Camp Benning is the fact that the Petrels have yet to lose their first football game in Columbus. Out of three battles the Petrels have turned in a perfect score. Two verdicts over the Camp Benning officers and one over the University of Florida's machine totals the Petrels activities in that community.

Close Game Certain.

In meeting the combination of Josh Cody, the Petrel clan seems headed for another storm. There is much doubt as to the outcome of the fray of Friday. Under the guiding hands of Cody and Strupper the students of Mercer have placed a rather powerful eleven on the field, that is, when all of the players are in good shape.

One of the main troubles with which the coaching staff has been forced to concern itself is the injuries of the players. The warriors are either brittle or playing in hard luck and it has been a rare occasion when Mercer was able to throw its whole strength into a game.

While Oglethorp was getting her 14 to 3 victory over the officers, Mercer was falling before the fourth period rally of the University of Chattanooga. Leading for three periods by 6 points and then to have their foes turn the tables, seems more like a northern invasion by a southern team.

The passing game was used a great deal in the battle of Saturday, and Mercer seems to have had the better of this phase of the game. Especially dangerous were the passes from Erwin to Smith and Simmons, Mercer scoring her lone touchdown on two well executed passes.

Oglethorpe has defeated the Mercer representatives for the last two years on the gridiron and a determined eleven will attempt to stop the advance of the Petrels Friday. Last year the Petrels were victors by the lone point after touchdown. Oglethorpe had scored early in the second quarter and Morris had booted the oval between the goal posts for the extra point, when a beautiful 45-yard pass from Erwin to Smith caused the Petrels to wake up to the fact that a tie was possible. The attempt of a Mercer back to gain the needed point went wide and Oglethorpe had won by a slender margin.

U. S. G. A. HITS HUGE PURSES

New York, November 12.—The United States Golf association today issued a warning and protest against the growing practice of offering large purses as an inducement to professionals to compete in open tournaments and exhibitions.

"While the U. S. G. A." says a statement of the executive committee, has no desire to hinder or hamper any professional from competing in prize money tournaments or from earning money to the limit of his ability, nevertheless the present officials feel that if the practice now in vogue is not checked, great harm will be done in creating a class of professional players who will devote their entire time and attention to attending tournaments.

"The executive committee is aware of the great development of the game of golf within the past few years, both by professionals and amateurs.

"It is also aware of the keen desire of the ordinary golfer, throughout the country, to witness the performance of the leading professionals and we assume that the growing interest in the game is partly responsible for the money inducements offered in open competitions.

"The committee feels that in their efforts to promote and keep alive the best interests of the game, they cannot allow this practice to continue or increase without a protest.

"It is therefore earnestly requested that member clubs and sectional associations give this matter their earnest consideration and, in the future, when contemplating the staging of such tournaments, that the question of moderate prize money awards be carefully considered, bearing in mind that if this pastime is allowed to be commercialized by the professionals, as in other sports, the phenomenal interest now taken by the ordinary golfer in the game will be nullified to a great extent."

A. U. WILL BATTLE MOREHOUSE COLLEGE

What promises to be the classic of the "1922" football season will be the game between the Atlanta university eleven and that of Morehouse college, to be played next Saturday at Ponce de Leon park for the southern intercollegiate championship of negro universities.

Neither team has been defeated this season by any southern team. Atlanta has six victories to her credit, while Morehouse has five to their credit. The question is, when these two undefeated elevens meet, who will win? Come to Ponce de Leon next Saturday and see a real scrap.

Tickets are on sale at the University drug store, 455 West Hunter; the Gate City drug store, Auburn and Butler streets; Aiken & Faulkner Realty company, 138 Auburn avenue, and Bob Wilson's cafe, junction at Tatnall and West Mitchell.

Penn Star Dies.

Philadelphia, November 12.—Andrew Lang, of Binghamton, N. Y., quarterback of the University of Pennsylvania freshman football team, died today from injuries received in a game with Mercersburg academy, November 4. The remainder of the freshman schedule has been cancelled.

Lang's fifth vertebrae was broken.

Ansley Park's Feminine Golfers to Start Today After Constitution Cups

Qualifying Round Starts at Nine O'Clock And Record-Breaking Field of Starters Expected by Those in Charge.

BY MRS. CLARENCE BRADLEY.

The Constitution's third club handicap tournament for the feminine golfers of Atlanta will be staged at the Ansley Park Golf club, the qualifying rounds to begin at 9 o'clock this morning. Only members and associate members of the Ansley Park Golf club are eligible to play in this tournament, and a large number will start this morning.

The Constitution has offered some beautiful trophies for the winners and runners-up in the eighteen and the nine-hole, or baby flight. There will also be trophies for the low gross and the low net in the eighteen hole and nine-hole flights.

The main object of these tournaments is to encourage the beginners and to help them improve their play and at the same time force the best players to play a better game. With the liberal handicaps allowed the beginners it is certain that some very close matches will be played throughout the tournament. Some fine golf has been shown in the previous tournaments but as a rule the beginners aided by their handicaps show a tendency to carry off the honors.

One interesting feature about the trophies offered in this tournament is the fact that when you succeed in winning one of the handsome prizes it becomes your own forever and a day, and will always be a reminder of "that day you shot such wonderful golf."

A number of the golfers are very anxious for The Constitution to stage an inter-club tournament in order that the feminine golfers of Atlanta can settle the question of just "who's who." If such a tournament should be staged it would be played between the following clubs: Druid Hills, Brookhaven, Ansley Park and East Lake. One of the clubs has already established a club foursome and will exchange a challange to the other clubs as soon as The Constitution's tournaments are completed. The inter-club tournaments would be conducted under the rules applying to the tournaments going on now, namely, they will be of the handicap variety.

Ansley Park Favorite.

Ansley Park Golf club is a favorite of the feminine golfers of Atlanta and the perfect condition of the fairways and greens should lower the scores of the participants to a great extent. The golfers have been assured by Stewart Chalmers, Ansley Park professional, that the course will be in the best possible condition.

As there are no ladies' tees at Ansley Park there should be no confusion as to which tee to play from. All clay tees will be used.

The enthusiasm shown in recent tournaments was great, but the interest in the Ansley Park tournament has caused even more excitement and talk among the fairest of the fair golfers of the city.

The Constitution has received congratulations from a number of feminine golfers who have played in recent tournaments, for the smooth and efficient manner in which these tournaments were conducted, and the Ansley park golfers can rest assured that the tournament at the popular club will be conducted in the same manner and under the same rules as the former tournaments.

A small entrance fee of $1 will be assesed each golfer and can be paid to Mr. Chalmers when you tee off this morning.

The feminine golfers of Ansley park can qualify any time during the day, but the club officials request that the qualifying be done as soon as possible and play off the matches in the morning.

Miss Lucy Marvin Adams, Mrs. Allen Artley, Mrs. R. N. R. Bardwell, Mrs. William Akers, Mrs. R. M. Barnett, Mrs. G. W. Bielfuss, Miss Katherine Bleckley, Mrs. Clarence Bradley, Mrs. Allen H. Bunce.

Rickard's Mayhem Bazaar in Danger; Monopoly Depends on Court Ruling

Many Real Fights Being Held Up as Fighters Wait to See How Tex Comes Out.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, November 12.—Tex Rickard's big store in Madison Square Garden, the greatest and busiest mayhem bazaar in the world, will become the notion counter of pugilism if a decision goes against Rickard in the supreme court this week. The court will say whether it shall be legal or otherwise to operate a smashing academy in a tax-free state armory. Thus far, in its administration of the state boxing law, the fight commission has refused to license professional shows in the armories, of which there are about a dozen in New York city and seven in Brooklyn. If the supreme court decides that fighting is the thing to do in an armory, Rickard's big house will compare with the new clubs like a telephone booth in the Grand Central Terminal.

Seating 13,000 people with scaffold benches rigged across one end of the main floor, Madison Square Garden has been the main topic for nearly three years under the Walker law. The Pioneer, Broadway, Rink and other little joints have been mere side-shows or "kokonut shies" as Jem Driscoll would have called them.

But whenever anyone suggested how nice it would be to stick in a fight club at one of the armories with a seating capacity of 35,000, William Muldoon, the unpaid commissioner, yelled: "Rurra! Turn out the guard and repel ganifs." Knowing the fight game pretty well he didn't want to contaminate the resorts where the young idea learns how to shoot without shooting curves.

Lease Big Expense.

Armories opened through the decision in this week's injunction proceedings against the commission, Tex Rickard will find himself holding a rattlesnake by the tail. His leases will prevent him letting go and the rent, taxes and overhead will sting him full of poisonous expense.

Until the issue is decided on appeal from the decision which is to be made next week there is almost no chance at all of seeing Jack Dempsey fight indoors. There is a big match in the cooker, between Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, but Dempsey naturally prefers to fight before 35,000 taxpayers if the court says he may. His take would be more than twice as big as the most that Rickard could pay him.

Gibbons may have to whip Bill Brennan before he can have Dempsey. Tommy dodged old Bill who is extremely tough but seldom aggressive. He could have had Brennan for a fight in the garden in December, on the strength of the pasting he gave Billy Miske a month ago. But Tom's manager, Eddie Kane, let the thing go by and now Floyd Johnson, the young fellow from Iowa, has caught on for the December date with the old trial horse. Gibbons may yet have to meet the winner of that fight for a chance at Dempsey.

All the champions of the time except Georges Carpentier, Jimmy Wilde and Johnny Kilbane have defended their titles in the garden in the last three years and great pleasure has been put forth by the pitchers and catchers at all weights.

CRIQUI WILL COME TO U. S.

Paris, November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—"We will go to the United States the day the featherweight championship situation in Europe is absolutely clear," said Robert Eudeline, manager for Eugene Criqui, the boxer, to L'Auto in connection with a cable dispatch received from Jack Kearns inviting Eudeline to bring Criqui to the United States if the Frenchman defeats Matthews, styled "champion of Europe." Kearns desires to arrange a fight between Criqui and Johnny Dundee.

"So long as a single adversary remains who is capable of putting up a claim to Criqui's featherweight championship," Eudeline continued, "we will remain here. After all the difficulties we have had to win the title from Arthur Wyns, the Belgian (who was knocked out by Criqui in Paris September 9) Matthews is now claiming the crown. Ciqui will settle that question December 2. Then there will be only the winner of the Frush-Handley bout for Criqui to meet to definitely settle the championship.

"It is useless to discuss Matthews' claim to the championship of Europe. The only official champion is Criqui. I cannot prevent Matthews from calling himself champion of Europe, of the world, or anything else he likes. Let him beat Criqui December 2, and then we shall see."

SENOIA YOUTH KILLED BY TRAIN AT A., B. & A. DEPOT

Senoia, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Walter Garrison, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Garrison, was killed at the A., B. & A. depot at Harlason about 7 o'clock Saturday night by being knocked down and run over by a box car, which a southbound freight train had "kicked" in on the side track.

Garrison was assisting the depot agent with some of his work and failed to notice the approaching car.

The youth was buried Sunday afternoon, after funeral services at the Methodist church by Rev. S. B. Strout.

A. A. U. PLANS RULE CHANGE

New York, November 12.—Abolishing of registration fees for athletes admitted to membership in the Amateur Athletic union is one of the most important of proposed amendments to the A. A. U. constitution which will be acted on at the national convention of the organization here November 19, 20 and 21.

This amendment, proposed by officials of the South Atlantic A. A. U., also would eliminate the annual renewal clause in the registration requirements. Under the present system, a charge of 25 cents is made for each registration and athletes are required to register each year. Economy has been urged as the reason for doing away with the method, investigation having revealed that it costs the association 37 cents for each individual card issued.

Disqualification as amateurs of lifeguards and bath or playground attendants who receive compensation for their services is sought in another proposed amendment included in the report for the A. A. U.'s legislative committee and made public today. Athletes holding such positions, who do not coach, instruct or give exhibitions in connection with their duties would be permitted to retain their amateur standing but, under another section of the amendment, be ineligible to competition until disociation from such employment. Such a change, it is pointed out, would affect the status of a number of leading swimmers, particularly those in college ranks, who accept employment on beaches during summer months.

Deal With Club.

Another proposal proposes that organizations seeking out of town stars at meets must deal with the club or organization with which they are affiliated, instead of the individual. In the case of unattached athletes, it would be compulsory on the part of the organization holding the meet to negotiate with the chairman of the registration committee of the A. A. U. with which the athlete was registered. This proposal, it was asserted, is aimed at minimizing the possibility of exhorbitant demands for expenses by athletes.

Important among changes urged in swimming competition is a proposal to hold all outdoor championships as one meet at a centrally situated place, extending over a period of three days, instead of the custom of awarding title events to clubs and organizations all over the country. The Metropolitan branch of the A. A. U. also has recommended that international diving rules, with slight modifications, govern in the future all A. A. U. competitions in this specialty.

Numerous minor changes in boxing, wrestling, gymnastic, handball and volley ball rules also are among those sought.

BILLIARDISTS START TODAY

New York, November 12.—Six of the world's greatest 18.2 balkline billiardists, three Americans and three Europeans, are entered in the international professional championship tournament beginning tomorrow at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The tourney will last eight days and to the victor will go a cash prize of $3,000 and 46 per cent of the net gate receipts, besides the trophy emblematic of the title.

Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, youthful titleholder, will open the tournament tomorrow night with Erich Hagenlacher, champion of Germany and the "dark horse" because it marks his debut in international championship play.

The other contestants are Willie Hoppe, of New York holder for a decade of the title he lost last year to Schaefer; Welker Cochran, of Iowa, who finished third last year; Roger Conti, 21-year-old champion of France, the only player to defeat Schaefer in the 1921 tournament, and Edouard Horemans, Belgian.

Conti and Cochran will play the second match Tuesday afternoon and in the evening, Hoppe and Horemans are paired. Except for the opening day, two matches will be played daily. The games will be for 500 points, 100 more than prevailed last year.

BIG TEN TIE FORECASTED

Chicago, November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—A triple tie for the western conference football championship between Michigan, Chicago and Iowa was the most prominent possibility on the football horizon tonight as a result of Illinois' 3 to 0 victory over the heretofore undefeated Wisconsin team Saturday.

Iowa passed another barrier in defeating Minnesota 28 to 14 while Chicago was scoring a 14 to 9 victory over Ohio State. Michigan was idle but Northwestern, by defeating Purdue 24 to 13, won its first conference game in two years and Indiana lost 33 to 0 to West Virginia, this being the only game involving a conference team.

Iowa's chances appear better than those of either of her rivals for the Hawkeyes finished the hardest part of their schedule yesterday. Ohio and Northwestern, two of the weaker Big Ten elevens, are the remaining barriers to Iowa's championship hopes.

Chicago has yet to meet two dangerous opponents in Illinois and Wisconsin while Michigan meets Wisconsin and Minnesota. On form to date the leaders should all emerge victorious.

Northwestern will be the only other conference team to take the field Saturday and anticipates an easy victory over Monmouth.

Wins Tennis Match.

Paris, November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—Henri Darsonval, the French professional tennis champion, today won the first match in what is called the world's professional tennis championship competition, by defeating the British professional champion, Albert Burke, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2. The second match will be played at Cannes and the third, if it should be necessary, in Paris, next spring.

Presbytery Meeting.

Savannah, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The Savannah Presbytery, comprising 34 counties in the southeast section of the state, will convene in the First Presbyterian church here Tuesday for three days' session. Dr. L. R. Scott, of Valdosta, is moderator; Dr. J. S. Sibley, of Waycross, will preach the opening sermon.

Head Coach at New York University Is Against "Try for Point" Ruling

Tom Thorp Says Experimental Years of Football Have Been Passed and Permanent Rules Should Be Adopted.

BY TOM THORPE,
New York University Coach.

Tom Thorp, famous captain of the Columbia eleven in his collegiate days, has been identified with football as coach and as referee in important games, for the last ten years. This is his first year as head coach of the N. Y. U. team.—EDITOR'S NOTE.

Since its inception football has experienced a great many changes in its rules. Such changes were to be expected and they have only been the natural result of such a rapid growth. No one man or set of men ever formed a code of rules for anything that did not need many changes and corrections before it could be used as a standard. And football has proven no exception.

However, I think that the time has come when this changing of the important phases of the game should be done away with and permanent rules established. The experimental years have passed. Football today is being learned by boys in every school and college in the country. The public is following the game very closely. It is no longer wise to change important parts of the game and thus make a great army of players and fans learn the rules all over again. Baseball has had but very few changes since the start of the present century, and baseball, having become standardized, has reached a popularity that was never dreamed of by the players fifty years ago.

AGAINST TRY FOR POINT RULE.

Much has been said for and against the "try for point" rule which is in use this season. Coaches and players seem to be about evenly divided in the matter. Those who dislike the present rule base their opinion on the theory that it does not give the teams an equal chance. They state that two teams that are of even strength as far as scoring ability is concerned, when such scoring is done in the open field, may become unequal opponents by the present of a good drop kicker or place kicker on one team and the lack of such a player on the other. And in this way an inferior but luckier team might win. But why not? Is it not the uncertainty of the game that makes it so fascinating?

Even so I believe that the new rule is weak and that it should be changed. To my mind one of two things should be done. Let us either go back to the old rule of kicking the ball from a point corresponding to the place where the runner was downed behind the goal line or let us cut out the extra point altogether.

EASTERN CONFERENCE IMPROBABLE.

Despite the fact that there has been an effort made each season for many years to establish an eastern football conference, I do not think that such an organization will be formed for many years, if it is ever formed at all. There are too many things standing in the way of the formation of such an institution.

In the first place there are certain colleges that would not for one moment entertain such an idea. At least from their present attitude it is reasonable to say that such would be their stand. It has been in the past, and it will probably be so in the future. And without these colleges in question listed among its members, the conference would not have the prestige that it should have. There are several cliques among the eastern colleges. Each clique looks upon those colleges not tied up with it as outsiders. For some reason or other there seems to be a class distinction between several of these groups and the funny part of it is that each clique thinks that it is superior. Perhaps some day a man will come along who has a practical scheme for making all the eastern colleges of any importance join in an eastern conference. It would be a great thing for football, but I am afraid that such a man will not be found for many years.

FAVORS THREE-YEAR RULE.

Most of the colleges are coming to realize that the only way to save college football is by having it absolutely free from any taint of professionalism. One of the best ways that this can be accomplished is by establishing a one-year residence rule and then making it impossible for a man to play more than three years of college football. In this way one team could not have an unfair advantage over its opponent which allowed its men to play only three years.

The roaming athlete should also be forced to quit. By "roaming athlete" I mean the player who plays one year at one school, the second year at another, and sometimes his third year in a third college. When such a switch has been made there has been often an ugly charge of professionalism or bribery. Perhaps in a few cases these may have had foundation, but for the most part they were unwarranted. Most of these players who switched did so because they felt that they had more chance to obtain experience and prestige at a larger university.

These men looked ahead of their college career; they wanted to become coaches. They realized that a man who played under Haughton Warner, of Bezdek, for example, would be much more in demand than a man who came from some small college whose football team was practically unknown. However, switching colleges is a practice that is none too good for football, and it should be done away with. Rules should be made and enforced that would make it impossible for men to change from one college to another for the sake of playing football.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES EXCELLENT.

Ther are a great many followers of football who do not believe that intersectional games are good for the general health of the sport. With these people I can not agree. From my point of view these intersectional games are the means of making the interest in the game national instead of sectional, and I believe that this new interest will bring football more followers annually.

Stegeman Has Accomplished Much

BY HOMER GEORGE

Arnold Is Brilliant Halfback

Boy take off your hat to old Georgia. They've got a he-team over at Athens and don't ever forget it. Stegeman, in his first year as sole responsible coach, has performed wonders. He has what Georgia has always had, a strong defense; but more than that he has an offense that will bear watching. It proved itself at Columbus and again Saturday.

Best of all, that offense is getting better with every game and my hat is doffed in a triple salute to Stegeman. This offense may not win the other two games scheduled but it will take a powerful defense to stop it. And this with Randall, one of the best fullbacks in the south, practically out of it on account of an injury at Chicago.

For two years I have wondered at Georgia's lack of offense and "cussed" Stegeman. But it seems that Stegeman was not altogether to blame. No matter what the reason, Georgia had no offense worth while. It's another story now, for she has one of which every Georgia man may well be proud. And with the strong members of that backfield, Stegeman has worked out plays which carry an awful threat at all times. I have seen it work twice and am very strong for it.

Collings' Fine Game.

Dave Collings played a smart game Saturday and I failed to give him credit for one good piece of work. When Virginia tried for a drop kick it was Dave who broke through and blocked the kick, and he nearly got the ball for a touchdown. In several other plays Dave downed runners for losses. Yet it was Dave who let Foster get away when he had tackled him for a 10-yard loss and Foster's run resulted in Virginia's touchdown.

A Smart Team.

Virginia had about the best coached and smartest set of players I have seen this year excepting solely Notre Dame. At all times the Old Dominion boys were on their toes and the general opinion of experts who saw the Auburn and the Virginia games of Georgia was that Virginia was twenty per cent stronger than Auburn. This gives you an idea of what they offered against Georgia. Russ Cohen, 1915 Vanderbilt captain, was there Saturday scouting Georgia and he was wildly enthusiastic over Virginia. He declared they showed more skill in blocking and were better coached than any team he had seen in many years. I agree with him.

Arnold Real Star.

In Arnold, Virginia has the sweetest halfback in the south with the sole exception of Red Barron and I am not sure that I would trade him for Red, mighty though the latter be. Arnold is as fast as Red; is as smart and carries the old triple threat, as he runs, kicks and passes with consummate skill.

He is not as heavy as Barron, but aside from that he is a wonder. By all odds, he was the best man on the Virgina team. He is also a fine receiver of passes and has a head. He is due to go far in southern football and is bound to be the choice of many this year as an all-southern halfback. He is Virginia's ace of aces. Every official, coach and scout in Athens Saturday raved about him.

S. C. CLASSIC IS SHIFTED

Clemson College, S. C., November 12.—(Special.)—Due to the condition of the field at Anderson and the inability to accommodate a very large crowd for the Erskine-Clemson game Saturday, November 18, it has been satisfactorily arranged between the Clemson and Erskine authorities that the game be played on Riggs field on that date.

There is a large crowd expected to witness this game from the supporters of both teams. With the Citadel game out of the road the Tigers returned to the campus Sunday, ready to begin work in Monday's practice to get revenge for the defeat they suffered last year at the hands of "Doc" Phillips and his associates.

It is dangerous to predict the outcome of a football game, but with the Ironmen's victory of 14 to 0 of last year staring the Tigers in the face it is likely to be a scrappy affair.

Deb fears this man, but is advised that in movies you must cater to those with "pull." It is also said that a girl who is married is less annoyed by men . . . so Deb secures a wedding ring and presents herself at a Long Island studio as "Mrs. Deborah Demarest." An "invisible husband" causes complications, especially since the name Deb has chosen is that of Miss Gay's leading man—

Larry Demarest, who is also attracted by Deborah's warm eyes and quaint manners. He advises her against going in pictures, but she loses her heart and head! . . . Ingenuously she reveals her love for Larry, and dares him to kiss her. Larry is not a cad, but later . . . when the company is on location in the mountains she falls into the clutches of Finkenberg. Deb leans to Larry for protection; there is a jealous scene with Phyliss . . . Larry declares he is going to marry Deborah . . . Next day Deb is ousted from the picture.

Johnnie, a happy-go-lucky extra girl.

Fritz, an able director who is opposed to "sheik methods" in the studio.

Bertie Reeves, the press agent.

Finkenberg has invited Deb to paddle up the river on the promise that he will put her in a camping scene. She soon discovers that he has planned only a "picnic for two!" He plans to stay over for supper at Eagle Nest . . . Alarmed when Deb does not return to the inn, Larry follows in a motorboat. He carries a gun.

INSTALMENT NO. 43.

You Can't Get in for Nothing.

"I don't want to go to Eagle Nest," Deb protested.

Finkenberg laughed carelessly—"Well, what can you do about it? You can't swim back, can you?"

"I can wait here—in the canoe. You go ahead and get your supper."

"Oh, what a clever trick, milady! Then you'll paddle off by yourself and leave me high and dry, eh?"

"No—I can't paddle. Nor swim." Deb admitted dully.

"No? And you're trying to get in the movies! Can't paddle nor swim! Didn't you read the list of questions on your application? Gotta swim, dive, dance, drive a car—all that society stuff! Bet you can't even smoke a cigarette."

"No—not even that." Deb sighed rather cynically. She was beginning to realize that what Fritz had said was true—

You can't get in for nothing!... Takes pull or—beauty, prowess, brains—everything!

"Perhaps I'll give up the movies," Deb continued dully, as though timidly hopeful that such an admission might, even at this perilous point of her career, save her from the advances of this horrible director.

"Give up? You're too pretty to give up!"

She was too pretty, too amusing! He did not intend to let the little mouse go. . . .

Deborah could do nothing but follow him blindly along the narrow, wooded path. . . Finkenberg continued to enhance the prospect of the lodge, where, from all accounts, entertainment was always spelled with fowl and wine—

"Wonderful Chianti . . . Like Chanti?

"No—not much." Deborah murmered. If it pleased him, however, to make taunts against her innocence and inexperience, she would pretend to be more sophisticated!

"I thought you said champagne."

"Oh yes, champagne, too."

"Will your friend be expecting you?"

"If he isn't there, his man will know enough to give us a good dinner."

"Oh."——

Deborah trembled and prayed silently that something would happen! Unconsciously she murmered half aloud—"Oh Larry, Larry!"

A Shot.

Even then Larry was in pursuit. He was cutting through the waves in his little launch at top speed. Once he fired a wild shot into the air. The sound of it might herald his approach—penetrate as a warning to Finkenberg and assure Deborah that she was not to be without a rescuer.

"A shot!" Finkenberg halted in fear.

"Maybe some one hunting", Deb hazarded.

"It's the closed season—no shooting now."

The expression on his face was none too easy as he continued to press through the woods. "Gotta hurry, it's getting dark."

"You say we'll go back by moonlight?" Deb asked rather pathetically. She wondered what she could do now to save herself. She couldn't run away she was afraid of the woods. She couldn't paddle or swim. The people in the camp might—but what would they think of her? And besides they were his friends.

Deborah trudged along painfully until by a sudden turn a handsome lodge was sighted. She was amazed at the elegance of this estate appearing in the middle of the woods!

"Is this—do you call this a camp?" she marveled.

Finkenberg only laughed. "I told you they drink champagne, and butler's carry in your fish!"

Deborah froze at the touch of his arm about her waist as he escorted her up the stairs. Such steep and and stately stairs for a lodge in the woods! A very imposing house it was—large enough for a hotel. Deborah thought cynically. And one selfish old bachelor lived in it!

A man servant opened the door suspiciously, reluctantly almost, but when he saw who it was, he hurried back to slip on the jacket of his livery and bowed respectfully.

"Good evening, sir."

Finkenberg flopped down into a rustic chair and kicked his heels out against the fire. "Looks fine here—cozy!—guest Oliver's out hunting, eh?"

Deborah noticed that the man seemed to grin; but she pretended to be interested in a quaint cabinet filled with taxidermic specimens. Birds—bugs!

"Great lover of nature—our host." Finkenberg commented.

"Ugh—he must be!" Deb shuddered. "Kills everything! Stuffs these poor little birds and things—for exhibition!"

"Well, they're dead—they don't know the difference."

"I wonder." Deb sighed as she walked to the window. The wind was howling as only wind can howl when it comes hurling through a forest of giant trees, the sky was getting blacker and blacker, with flashes of lightning cutting through.

"A storm, I guess," Finkenberg yawned. "May have to stay over."

The servant appeared obsequiously to attend them—to Deborah he bowed to suggest—

"If madame would like to refresh herself before dinner—"

"Yes—yes, thank you!" Deb assented, glad of an escape from Finkenberg, a chance to think the thing out! Only then a plan of escape was entering her mind—the telephone. Somewhere in that big house there was a telephone!

SLOWLY BUT SURELY, TORTOISE ADVANCES

The tortoise never has been noted for its speed but when it saw that browns were leading all other colors this fall it got up gumption enough to hurry along thinking to win everlasting fame by composing some very smart jewelry to harmonize with the new brown tones. And Mr. Tortoise arrived just in time, for amber is running tortoise shell a close second—these two being the newest notes in jewelry.

Poets and Artists give best work to latest books for children

DRAWINGS BY THE PETERSHAMS FOR "ROOTABAGA STORIES"

BY VIRGINIA BOWMAN.

In the world of books some years are notable for one thing, some for another. To those of us who had begun to despair of an imaginative American literature, this year of 1922 is notable for an all-American book. Written by an American, living in America, for Americans of all ages, Carl Sandburg's "Rootabaga Stories" is at once the most arresting and delightful reading since Hugh Lofting's "Story of Doctor Dolittle."

When a poet lets his fancy play in the cornfields and prairies of our middle west he finds not only corn fairies and golden buckskin whinchers, but also a host of very real people. Old Man, Gimme the Ax, who let his children name themselves, the Potatoe Face Blind Man and his friend, Any Ice Today, Bevo the Hike father of Bimbo the Snip, are characters with stories as rich and inexhaustible as the Rootabaga country itself. Fascinating pictures by Maud and Miska Petersham have caught the naive spirit and humor of these tales. The only thing to do is to get the book and read it aloud to the family!

Other poets, as well as authors and artists, are making real contributions to our children's books, the fall publications showing a wealth of material from which to choose Christmas gifts and select new books for the home library. There is a real opportunity during this week devoted to "Better Books for Children" for visiting the exhibits in libraries and bookshops, to examine first hand both old favorites and new titles and make lists from which to purchase throughout the year.

Rainbow Gold.

Sara Teasdale has brought together in "Rainbow Gold" poems "as treasureable as the fabled gold at the rainbow's end." It is a collection made for a child's pure enjoyment. "Poetry, like music," she feels, "should not be explained. It should be all things to all men. A child may as well realize at once that the melody of the words of a poem should give him as much pleasure as their meaning. He should enjoy a poem just as he enjoys a ride in an automobile, without understanding the mechanism of the machine and without needing to know what was in the inventor's mind when he made it." Her collection, the result of a year's careful selection and shifting, is neither too large nor too small, but just a convenient size, making a most attractive gift book with its blue and gold binding and charming illustrations by Dugald Walker.

Rose Fyleman in "The Fairy Flute" has again captured in poetry the fairy lore that has made her "Fairies and Chimneys" a favorite little book of verse.

Hilda Conkling adds a new collection to her "Poems of a Little Girl." "Shoes of the Wind" reveals her less often as the playful child and more as the thoughtful and introspective young girl.

Children who follow the poet, Padraic Colum, will this year join "The Children Who Followed the Piper" and learn from Mr. Colum what happened to Browning's girls and boys after the Pied Piper lured them away with his strange music.

A London Doll.

"The Memoirs of a London Doll" should find its way to the book shelves of every little girl's playhouse. It is a story of Maria Poppet, "a doll of character who kept her eyes open and who never neglected an opportunity to learn from every event of her varied life." The happiest event is the rediscovery of her story written long ago, lost for many years, but found and reprinted this fall with attractive illustrations by Emma Brock.

"The Velveteen Rabbit" is a picture story book with a Christmas story that every child will love. It is hard to say which is the more fascinating, the story by Marjory Williams, or the pictures, by William Nicholson. Combined they make the most distinctive book of the year for little children.

Not a nursery squirrel, but a real little animal, is "Bannertail," whose life story is told by Ernest Thompson Seton and illustrated with sketches from the author's own clever pen.

Boys' Stories.

Boys who have read Jack London's "Call of the Wild," and who found "Shasta of the Wolves" a stirring tale, will read and think equally thrilling Olaf Baker's latest book, "Dusty Star." There's a good story well told in James Schultz's "Trail of the Spanish Horse," while Boy Scouts will herald Dan Beard's first story for boys, "Black Wolf Pack."

The book of the Indian, with illustrations by Frederick Remington and accompanying text by Hamlin Garland, is a colorful addition to books on the American Indian. "Taytay's Tales," a collection of Hopi Indian folktales, are retold by Elizabeth Willis De Huff, Taytay beng the Indian grandfather who usually relates the stories to Indian children. A real feature of this book are the illustrations by two Indian boys, the drawing being unusually graphic and made with a fidelity to truth in details, which is always interesting and satisfying to curious young readers.

For girls and boys who have enjoyed "The Shoemaker's Apron" and "Czechoslovak Fairy Tales," there is in store for them Parker Fillmore's new collection of folktales from Finland. "Mighty Mikko" is the title of this collection of stories and fables illustrated by Jay Van Everen and retold by Mr. Fillmore, who is not only a student of folklore, but what is more interesting to children, a born story-teller.

An interesting selection has been made from the old-fashioned stories of Mrs. Molesworth by Sydney Baldwin. The book is illustrated by Edna Cooke and forms a companion volume to "Stories by Mrs. Ewing," published last year.

"Wisp," the story of a girl of Dublin, is by Katharine Adams, who gave us in "Midsummer," not only an interesting story but a most realistic picture of life in Sweden.

Young girls reach an "awkward age" between their last fairy tale and their first novel. There has just been published a book as full of whimsical charm as of romance and chivalry—one that will lead a girl straight to Barrie's lands of enchantment. Give her "Martin Pippin in the Apple Orchard" and the book of verses selected by Mary Davis especially for girls and she will come into her rightful heritage of poetry and romance.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BAD FEMALE MANNERS.

One often hears that the manners of the young modern woman are so bad that they could not get worse. Yet, every year, we are told that they are getting worse, and terrific catalogues of crime are laid before our affrighted eyes. We are told that the modern woman speaks badly, uses the most vulgar forms of the vernacular; that she is rude to her elders; that she is unduly familiar with young men; that her forms of dancing should be controlled by the police; that her clothes are unmaidenly, to put it at the mildest; that she has no taste for home life; that she cares only for pleasure; that. . . . I have no space. You all know the rest.

Now it is quite true that the manners of the young woman of today would appear most unseemly to the shade of Martha Washington. But it is fair to point out that the manners of your grandmother may have appeared unseemly to her grandmother. It is true that the modern generation is slangy and curt, and I do not see this as an evil when I compare it with the endless circumlocutions and ceremonies which made up social intercourse fifty years ago. I do not think that the manners of the modern woman are bad. She says what she thinks bluntly; never mind, if it is really what she thinks. I had rather she were familiar with young men than sit giggling in the corners as she used to do; I had rather she were rather short with her elders than flatter them as did her grandmother . . . and take her own course behind their backs. The manners of the young girl express her personality. They are manners which fit the period. Therefore, they are not bad; the manners of the day are the manners fit for the day.

MAKING YOUR BID

BY JOHN R. BAWKER

Today's Rule—With ace, king, queen in two hands, keep one high honor on each side after first round of suit.

Q. My partner bids one spade. I hold 7 and 4 of spades; jack and 9 of hearts; ace, queen, 7 and 4 of diamonds; ace, king, queen, jack and 9 of clubs. We are 16 on the rubber game. What should I do?

A. Bib 2 clubs, as you surely can go game. Besides, you have the 8 honers to help the score. If your partner should go two spades do not overbid him, as you then know he has got a solid spade suit and can go game with your assistance.

Q. My partner bids 2 hearts. I hold ace, king, 9, 7, 6 and 2 of spades; 7 and 6 of hearts, king, 8 and 5 of diamonds; 9 and 5 of clubs. Should I overbid with 2 spades?

A. No; your partner ought to be better in hearts than you are in spades with at least six to the ace, king, queen and 10; surely 8 honors in one hand and a couple of outside trcks. He can surely go game.

Q. I am fourth hand. Everybody has passed. Holding the following cords, what should I do? Ace and queen of spades; king and 9 of hearts; queen, jack, 10 and 7 of diamonds; queen, 8, 5, 4 and 3 of clubs.

A. Pass. This is one of the hands that you would bid an original no trump, but being fourth hand it does not look like a game hand. Fourth-hand bidder must be at least 25 per cent stronger than that of original bidder, as many times a weak fourth hand is started only to get the secondary bids from the opponents, who will bid up until it is impossible to go game.

Q. Dealer bids one heart. Second hand passes. Third hand holds the following cards: King and 7 of spades, 6 of hearts; king, queen, 10, 7, 6 and 4 of diamonds; queen, 9, 7 and 3 of clubs. Should third hand pass?

A. No. Third hand should bid 2 diamonds, warning partner thereby that there is no help in hearts. Therefore if the dealer has bid on 5 hearts he knows there must be either seven or eight hearts against him.

Q. Dealer bids 1 heart, holding the following cards: Queen and jack of spades; ace, king, jack, 10 and 9 of hearts; jack, 9, 7 and 6 of diamonds; ace and 7 of clubs. Partner overbids with 2 diamonds. Should dealer overbid with 2 hearts?

A. No. Partner has warned that he has either one or no hearts, and as dealer has got four diamonds they surely will not get set at diamonds. This is possibly a game hand if partner has a good strong diamond hand. Your hearts will be of value to give your partner discards.

WOMAN COULD NOT WORK

Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tired, worn-out feeling and painful periods. I used to get up with a pain in my head and pains in my lower parts and back. Often I was not able to do my work. I read in your little book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it. I feel so well and strong and can do every bit of my work and not a pain in my back now. I recommend your medicine and you can use this letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. PHIL. MASER, 801 Winslow St., St. Paul, Minn.

Just another case where a woman found relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many times these tired, worn-out feelings and pains about the body are from troubles many women have. The Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for just this condition. The good results are noted by the disagreeable symptoms passing away—one after another.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Woman's Medicine for Women's Ailments. Always reliable.

BEAUTY CHATS

TAR APPLICATIONS.

One of the very best treatments for a stubborn case of dandruff is a tar application. Some beauty shops sell tar preparations in bottles all ready to be applied to the scalp. If you can get these you will find them convenient and not very expensive. If you can not, however, you can fix the tar for yourself.

Buy a little bit of just ordinary black sticky tar. One woman I know gets it from a builder and roofer, though most drug stores will carry it in some usable form. Heat a few ounces of olive oil, as much as will almost fill the bottle you decide to use for the tar. Add the tar to the hot oil and stir with a small stick until it melts and blends. I can't give you exact proportions, so much depends on the thickness or stickiness of the tar that you have bought. The result will be a black looking mass of about the consistency of thick syrup.

This should be kept and used as needed. When ready for the shampoo pour a little tar mixture into a warm saucer and dip into it an old toothbrush. Part the hair and rub the brush along the parting. Part the hair in another place a few inches away and rub again. Do this until you have completely covered your scalp with the tar preparation. It will wash off because you have used only a small amount of tar to a large amount of olive oil. These proportions are, I should say, from one-eighth to one-quarter as much tar as oil.

When the scalp is thoroughly covered let the tar stay on for about ten minutes. Then begin to wash, using very hot water and good soap. Castile soap or cocoanut oil soap is always best and particularly good if melted to a liquid. Use the soap several times. Rinse well.

Bobbie—It is quite a common occurrence to have the ends of the hair dry up and split after a summer's exposure to strong sunshine. Braid the hair in many small braids and then ruff out the ends by loosening the plaits. Clip or singe these broken ends. Repeat this procedure every week until you have finally caught most of them.

Kitty T.—When the hands and feet are inclined to get cold it shows that your circulation is defective and that you are possibly in need of building up. Aim to counteract this tendency by keeping the feet warm overnight, even though you must take a hot water bag to bed; or wear very loose woolen stockings during the night.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the Beauty Chats department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question. —The Editor.

Wanted---Two Husbands

—To save one. Young wife whose husband is in the clutches of two unscrupulous flappers desires to meet two bachelors between ages of twenty and forty. Object: Matrimony

BY INEZ KLUMPH

Illustrated by Marguerite Neale

CHAPTER I—A BOMB IS EXPLODED.

Cynthia Moore sauntered into the breakfast room feeling that the world was a very nice place indeed. Life just suited her. Roger would come down in a minute, and they'd have a delightful chat before he went to the office, and perhaps she'd run down town and have luncheon with him, and if he could get away they'd go to a baseball game; it was the very tail end of the season, and every game was worth seeing. She felt perfectly happy, and rather scornful of the friends who thought that she was an old-fashioned little fool because she always had breakfast with her husband.

She was glancing through the paper when he came in, with the blue and yellow parrot chattering at her. Roger, carrying a handful of mail, bent to kiss her before he took his place at the table.

"I've got a bomb for you, angel," he announced, tossing her one of his letters. "That's from Monica Lane; she and her sister want to spend a year with us."

"A year with us—oh, Roger, no!" cried Cynthia, jumping up to run around the table to his side. "I don't remember who Monica Lane is, but I wouldn't want anyone in the world here!"

"Well, she happens to be the one person we've got to have if she wants to come. You see, it's a sort of debt of honor. Her mother took me in when I was a youngster of eight; it was when my mother died, and dad was in Europe, and I was about the loneliest kid in the world, I suppose. If somebody hadn't been good to me it would have made me bitter always. But Aunt Sue was so kind that being with her softened the blow, and after dad got back he and I stayed in her home for a long time; he felt that I needed someone like her to look after me. So I've always been grateful to her. She died several years ago, and the girls have been living on in the little town with their stepfather. He died a year ago and now—well, they want to have a good time. Monica's nineteen and

Cynthia was old-fashioned enough to breakfast with her husband.

Lucile's two years younger, and they want to see life in the big city." He smiled down at his wife, whose blue eyes were tearful. "Don't mind so much honey; they may be company for you, and you'll have a lot of fun showing New York to two little country girls."

"Yes, I know, and of course I don't want to be horrid and selfish," she answered slowly. "But somehow—oh, you and I have such awfully good times all by ourselves, even though we have been married almost two years, that I hate to have anyone else in our home. Why we won't even have breakfast alone!"

"Well, that'll be a national calamity," Roger laughed, but she knew that he really minded it as much as she did. She looked up at him wistfully—surely Roger must realize that it was going to be awful to have two girls always around! No more nice long talks in his study after dinner, when they both sat in one big chair and looked out into the night and were so blissfully happy. No more absurd little celebrations, no more foolish presents tucked under one's plate at dinner—the girls would think such things crazy!

Roger Moore knew how his wife felt; he looked down at her tumbled, red gold curls, her piquant little face with its pouting mouth and deep blue eyes, and wished as ardently as she did that their home might be undisturbed.

"Perhaps the girls will be company for you," he suggested, hopefully. "You're only two years older than Monica."

"What terrible names they have!" she commented by way of reply. "Monica and Lucile—so awfully fancy!" she concluded, with the scorn of one whose own quaint name had come down to her from generations of charming women.

"Don't like a thing about 'em, do you?" he remarked, laughing. "Well, I don't blame you, dear. But perhaps it won't be so bad as we think. And now how about pouring my coffee?"

A Pleasurable, Profitable Pastime Costs Nothing to Try Fairness to Everyone

Every possible step will be taken to insure perfect fairness and square dealing to each contestant.

Three independent judges—prominent Georgia educators—will judge all lists.

The "correct list" will be made up from all applicable words submitted—NOT from any predetermined or "master list." This gives everyone an equal chance to find all possible "P" words.

The WINNERS' list, together with the final CORRECT list, will be published in The Constitution, so each contestant may check his or her own answer in comparison.

Announcement of winners will be made in the December 24 issue of The Constitution—the day before Christmas.

TRY THE CONSTITUTION'S NEW FUN PUZZLE! Nothing hard—just an easy test of your observation. Take a look at the picture and see how many visible objects you can find that begin with the letter "P," like "Pumpkin," "Parasol," "Parachute," etc. There's nothing hidden. You don't need to turn the picture sideways or upside down.

Anyone can play in this game. It costs nothing to try. To the 15 best lists submitted we are going to award 15 prizes. Why not put YOUR LIST at the top?

You can't win unless you TRY, so put on your "thinking cap" and join in the fun right away. Once started you won't quit. Our "P" game is fascinating and educational, and offers YOU the opportunity to win $1,500 cash!

YOU CAN WIN $1,500

Study the "P" Word Picture closely, and then make up your list. When you are pretty sure you have found all the objects beginning with "P," send your list in. It costs nothing to try. If the judges find your list FIRST PRIZE winner you will be awarded $35. You can win $35 without sending a subscription. But if you want to win $1,500, $1,000, or one of the large prizes, read the following:

If you send one six-months' subscription to The Daily and Sunday Constitution at $5.00 and win FIRST PRIZE you will receive $500 instead of only $35. (See second column in prize list.)

Your BIG OPPORTUNITY is made possible by sending two six months' subscriptions at $5.00 each, or one yearly subscription to The Daily and Sunday Constitution at $9.50. Then, if you win FIRST PRIZE, you will receive $1,500. (See last column in prize list.)

Either new, renewal or future subscriptions will be accepted. Your own or a friend's or neighbor's order will count.

NOTICE—In sending remittances, use checks, money orders or bank drafts payable to The Constitution, not to individuals.

Observe These Simple Rules

1. Anyone may compete, except our employees or their relatives. Prize winners in other similar word contests are also ineligible.

2. Use only one side of the paper in writing your answers. You must number each page and each word submitted consecutively—1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address in the upper right-hand corner of each page. All answers must be mailed by December 2, 1922, to The Atlanta Constitution. A 5 per cent additional prize will be awarded for promptness as specified in the prize list.

3. The answer having the largest number of words which correctly name objects shown in the picture wins First Prize, etc.

4. In the event of ties, the full amount of the prize will be awarded each tying contestant.

5. The winning list will be made up from applicable words in all answers submitted and not from any predetermined or master list. One credit will be allowed for each correct word in your answer, and one credit will be deducted for each incorrect word or omission.

6. Three independent judges will judge the answers and award the prizes. Webster's New International Dictionary will be used by the judges as authority for all words. It is understood and agreed that participants entering this game will accept the judges' decision as final and conclusive.

7. Do not use obsolete, compound or hyphenated words, or any word made up of two or more complete English words.

8. Words of the same spelling can be used only once. Where the singular is used the plural must not be used and vice versa. You can name each object only once; however, you may also name any visible part of an object.

9. Only one answer will be accepted from a family or from a group of persons who have worked on the picture together.

10. Every answer will receive the same consideration, regardless whether or not a subscription has been sent in. Neatness, style or handwriting will have no bearing on judging the winners.

11. Announcement of the prize winners and the winning list of words, together with the correct list determined by the judges, will be made in the columns of The Constitution just as soon after the close of the game as possible.

"Bailey!" she cried. "Whatever brings my little Bailey here, when he ought to be working like a good boy in Wall street?"

"Ruth, kindly answer me one question. Aunt Lora informs me that you are going to marry this man Winfield. Is it or is it not true?"

"Of course, it's true."

Bailey drew in his breath. He gazed coldly at Ruth, bowed to Mrs. Porter, and smoothed the nap of his hat.

"Very good," he said stonily. "I shall now call upon this Mr. Winfield and thrash him." With that he walked out of the room.

He directed his cab to the nearest hotel, looked up Kirk's address in the telephone book and ten minutes later was ringing the studio bell.

While Bailey was driving to the studio in his taxicab, Kirk, in boxing trunks and a sleeveless vest, was engaged on his daily sparring exercise with Steve Dingle. At the end of the final round, Kirk lit a cigarette.

"If you want to use the shower, Steve," he said, "you'd better get up there now. I shan't be ready yet a while. Then, if this is one of your energetic mornings and you would care to give me a rubdown—"

'Sure," said Steve obligingly. He picked up his clothes and went upstairs to the bathroom, which, like the bedrooms, opened onto the gallery. Kirk threw himself on the couch, fixed his eyes on the ceiling, and began to think of Ruth.

"Mr. Bannister," announced George Pennicut at the door.

Kirk was on his feet in one bound. The difference, to a man whose mind is far away, between "Mr. Bannister," and "Miss Bannister" is not great, and his first impression was that it was Ruth had arrived.

He was acutely conscious of his costume, and was quite relieved when he saw, not Ruth, but a severe-looking young man, who advanced upon him in a tight-lipped, pop-eyed manner that suggested dislike and hostility.

"Mr. Winfield?"

"Mr. Bannister?"

"That is my name. It is familiar to you. My sister," said Bailey, "has made it so."

"Won't you sit down?" said Kirk.

"I can say what I wish to say in two words, Mr. Winfield," said Bailey. "This marriage is quite out of the question."

"Eh?"

"My father would naturally never consent to it. As soon as he hears of what has happened he will forbid it absolutely. Kindly dismiss from your mind entirely the idea that my sister will ever be permitted to marry you, Mr. Winfield."

"Are'nt you a little premature, Mr. Bannister? Aren't you taking a good deal for granted?"

"In what way?"

"Well, that Miss Bannister cares the slightest bit for me, for instance; that I've one chance in a million of ever getting her to care the slightest bit for me?"

"You need not trouble to try and fool me, Mr. Winfield," Bailey said. "I know everything. I have just seen my sister, and she told me herself in so many words that she intended to marry you."

To his amazement he found his hand violently shaken.

"My dear old man! Kirk was stammering in his delight. "My dear old sport, you don't know what a weight you've taken off my mind. You know how it is. A fellow falls in love and instantly starts thinking he hasn't a chance on earth. I hadn't a notion she felt that way about me. I'm not fit to shine her shoes. My dear old man, if you hadn't come and told me this I never should have had the nerve to say a word to her.

"Make yourself at home here. Have your breakfast? George! George! Say, George, I've got to rush away. See that Mr. Bannister has everything he wants. Get him some breakfast. Goodbye, old man." He gripped Bailey's hand once more. "You're all right.

He sprang for the staircase. George Pennicut turned to the speechless Bailey.

"How would it be if I made you a nice cup of hot tea and a rasher of 'am, sir?" he inquired with a kindly smile.

Bailey eyed him glassily, the found speech. "Go to hell!" he shouted. He strode to the door and shot into the street, a seething volcano.

CHAPTER IV.

Old John Bannister returned that night. Learning from Bailey's trembling lips the tremendous events that had been taking place in his absence, he was first irritated, then coldly amused. His coolness dampened, while it comforted, Bailey.

"She said she was going to marry him!"

Old Bannister opened the nut-cracker mouth that always had the appearance of crushing something. His pale eyes glowed for an instant. "Did she?" he said.

Silence falling like a cloud at this point, Bailey rightly conjectured that the audience was at an end and left the room. His father bit the end off a cigar and began to smoke.

"Are you busy, father? I—I want to tell you something."

"I think I have heard it already," he said. "I have just been seeing Bailey."

"What did Bailey tell you, father?"

"That you fancied yourself in love with some actor or artist of other whose name I have forgotten."

"It is not fancy. I do love him."

"Yes?"

"Are you very angry, father?"

"Why should I be? Let's talk it over quietly. There's no need to make a tragedy of it."

"I'm glad you feel like that, father."

"Tell me all about it," he said.

Ruth found herself surprisingly near tears. She had come into the room with every nerve in her body braced for a supreme struggle. Her father's unexpected gentleness weakened her, exactly as he had foreseen.

"How did it begin?" he asked.

"Well," said Ruth, "it began when Aunt Lora took me to his studio."

"Yes, I heard that it was she who set the thing going. She is a friend of this fellow—what is his name?"

"Kirk Winfield. Yes, she seemed to know him quite well."

"And then?"

"Well, that's all," she said. "I just fell in love with him."

"You just fell in love with him," he repeated. "Pretty quick work, wasn't it?"

"I suppose it was."

"And what did he do? Was he equally sudden?"

"He would have liked to be, poor dear, but he felt he had to be cautious and prepare the way before telling me. If it hadn't been for Bailey, he might be doing it still. Apparently, Bailey went to him and said I had said I was going to marry him, and Kirk came flying round, and—well, then it was all right."

Mr. Bannister drew thoughfully at his cigar. "Well, my dear," he said at last. "I think you had better consider the engagement broken off."

"Father!" she cried.

"We needn't get worked up about it," he said. "Let's keep right on talking it over quietly."

"Very well," said Ruth. "But, after what you have just said, what is there to talk over?"

"You might be interested to hear my reasons for saying it."

"And I will argue my side."

Mr. Bannister waved his hand gently. "You don't have to argue. You just listen." Ruth bit her lip.

"Well?"

There was a hurried knock at the door. Bailey burst in, ruffled and wild as to the eyes.

"Father," he cried, "I don't want to interrupt you, but that infernal woman, Aunt Lora, has arrived, and says she won't go till she has seen you. She's downstairs now."

"Not now," said Lora Delane Porter, moving him to one side and entering the room. "I thought it would be a comfort to you, Ruth, to have me with you to help explain now matters stand. Good evening, John. Go away, Bailey. Now, let us discuss things quietly."

Mr. Bannister rose. "There is nothing to discuss," he said shortly. "I have no wish to speak to you at all. As you appear to have played a large part in this affair, I may as well tell you that it is settled. Ruth will not marry Mr. Winfield."

Lora Delane Porter settled herself comfortably in a chair.

There was a pause. John Bannister glared furiously at Mrs. Porter, but her gaze was moving easily about the room, taking in each picture in turn in a leisurely inspection.

An exclamation from Ruth broke the silence. She sprang up, her face working, her eyes filled with tears. "I can't stand it!" she cried. "I cant' stand it any longer! Father, Kirk and I were married this afternoon."

Mrs. Porter went quickly to her and put her arm around her. Ruth was sobbing helplessly. The strain had broken her. John Bannister's face was leaden. His mouth twisted dumbly.

Mrs. Porter led Ruth gently to the door and pushed her out. Then she closed it and turned to him.

"So now you know, John," she said. "Well, what are you going to do about it?"

"Take her away," he said quietly. "Take her out of here. Let her go to him. I have done with her."

William Bannister Winfield was the most wonderful child. Of course, you have to have a certain amount of intelligence to see this. To the vapid and irreflective observer he was not much to look at in the early stages of his career, having a dough-like face almost entirely devoid of nose, a lack-luster eye, and the general appearance of a poached egg. His immediate circle of intimates, however, thought him a model of manly beauty; and there was the undeniable fact that he had come into the world weighing nine pounds. Take him for all in all, a lad of promise.

Kirk's sense of being in a dream continued. His identity seemed to have undergone a change. The person he had known as Kirk Winfield had disappeared, to be succeeded by a curious individual bubbling over with an absurd pride for which it was not easy to find an outlet.

Steve, excellent fellow, was always glad to listen to him on his favorite subject. He had many long talks with Steve on the question of William's future. Steve, as the infant's godfather, which post he had claimed and secured at an early date, had definite views on the matter.

Here, held Steve, was the chance of a lifetime. With proper training, a baby of such obvious muscular promise might be made the greatest fighter that ever stepped into the ring. He was the real White Hope. He advised Kirk to direct William's education on lines which would insure his being, when the time was ripe, undisputed heavyweight champion of the world.

The White Hope, as Steve called his godson—possibly with the idea of influencing him by suggestion—grew The ailments which attacked lesser babies passed him by. He avoided croup, and even whooping cough paid him but a flying visit hardly worth mentioning. His first tooth gave him a little trouble, but that is the sort of thing which may happen to anyone; and the spirited way in which he protested against the indignity of cutting it was proof of a high soul.

Such was the remarkableness of this child that it annoyed Kirk more and more that he should be obliged to give the exhibition of his extraordinary qualities to so small an audience. Ruth felt the same and it was for this reason that the first overtures were made to the silent camp which contained her father and her brother Bailey.

Since that evening in the library there had come no sign from the house on Fifth avenue that its inmates were aware of her existence. Life had been too full till now to make this a cause of trouble to her; but with William Bannister becoming every day more amazing the desire came to her to try and heal the breach. Her father had so ordered his life in his relation to his children that Ruth's affection was not so deep as it might have been; but, after all, he was William Bannister's grandfather, and, as such, entitled to consideration.

It was these reflections that led to Steve's state visit to John Bannister—probably the greatest fiasco on record.

Steve had been selected for the feat on the strength of his having the right of entry to the Fifth avenue house, for John Bannister was still obeying his doctor's orders and taking his daily spell of exercise with the pugilist—and Steve bungled it hopelessly.

His task was not a simple one. He was instructed to employ tact, to hint rather than to speak; to say nothing to convey the impression that Ruth in any way regretted the step she had taken, to give the idea that it was a matter of complete indifference to her whether she ever saw her father again or not, yet at the same time to make it quite clear that she was very anxious to see him as soon as possible.

William Bannister was to accompany Steve and be produced dramatically to support verbal arguments. It seemed to Ruth that for her father to resist William when he saw him was an impossibility. William's position was that of the ace of trumps in the cards which Steve was to play.

Perhaps the real mistake of the expedition was the nature of its baggage. Willian Bannister had stood out for being allowed to take with him his wheelbarrow, his box of bricks, and his particular favorite, the dying pig, which you blew out and then allowed to collapse with a pleasing noise. These properties had struck his parents as excessive, but he was firm; and when he gave signs of being determined to fight it out on these lines if it took all the summer they gave in.

Steve had no difficulty in smuggling William into his grandfather's house. He was a great favorite below stairs there. His great ally was the English butler, Keggs.

"He ain't ready for you yet, Mr. Dingle. He's lookin' over some papers in—for goodness' sake, who's this?"

He had caught sight of William Bannister, who, having wriggled free of Steve, was being made much of by the maids.

"The kid," said Steve briefly.

"Not"—

"Sure. His grandson."

Keggs' solemnity increased.

"You aren't going to take him upstairs with you?"

"Surest thing yo know. That's why I brought him."

"Don't you do it, Mr. Dingle. 'E's in an awful temper this morning—he gets worse and worse—he'll fire you as soon as he looks at you."

"Can't be helped. I've got me instructions."

Steve gathered up William Bannister, the wheelbarrow, the box of bricks, and the dying pig and made his way to the gymnasium.

The worst of these prearranged scenes is that they never happen just as one has figured them in one's mind. Steve had expected to have to wait a few minutes in the gymnasium, then there would be a step outside and the old man would enter. The beauty of this, to Steve's mind, was that he himself would be "discovered," as the stage term is; the onus of entering and opening the conversation would be on Mr. Bannister. And, as everybody who has ever had an awkward interview knows, this makes all the difference.

Steve was just saying to himself for the fiftieth time that he was a fool to have come, when Keggs arrived with the news that Mr. Bannister was too busy to take his usual exercise this morning and that Steve was at liberty to go.

It speaks well for Steve's character that he did not go. He would have given much to retire, for the old man was one of the few people who inspired in him anything resembling fear. But he could not return tamely to the studio with his mission unaccomplished.

"Say, ask him if he can see me for a minute. Say it is important."

Kegg's eye rested on William Bannister, and he shook his head.

"I shouldn't, Mr. Dingle. Really I shouldn't. You don't know what an ugly mood he's in. Something's been worrying him. It's what you might call courting disaster."

"Gee! Do you think I want to do it? I've just got to. That's all there is to it."

A few moments later Keggs returned with the news that Mr. Bannister would see Dingle in the library.

"Come along, kid," said Steve. "Gimme hold of the excess baggage, and let's get a move on."

So in the end it was Mr. Bannister who was discovered and Steve who made the entrance. And, as Steve pointed out to Kirk later, it just made all the difference.

The effect of the change on Steve was to make him most rollicking in his manner. He breezed into the library, carrying the wheelbarrow, the box of bricks, and the dying pig, and trailing William in his wake. Wit

"One moment, Dingle," he said, and turned to the secretary again. A faint sneer came and went on his face.

The delay completed Steve's discomfiture. He placed the wheelbarrow on the floor, the box of bricks on the wheelbarrow, and the dying pig on the box of bricks, whence it was instantly removed and inflated by William.

"Referring to your letter of the eighth"— said Mr. Bannister in his cold, level voice.

He was interrupted by the incisive cry of the dying pig.

"Ask your son to be quiet, Dingle," he said impassively.

He resumed his dictation. Steve wiped his forehead and looked helplessly at the White Hope, who, having discarded the dying pig, was now busy with the box of bricks.

Margaret Anglin.

(At the Atlanta)

Margaret Anglin opens an engagement of three nights and Wednesday matinee at the Atlanta theater tonight, in her famous play, "The Woman of Bronze," in which she has been playing in New York city the entire year, having seasoned the drama previous to its Broadway premiere by many months in the leading cities of the country.

Adapted by Paul Kester from the French of Kistemaecker, the play tells the story of a man, his wife and another woman.

Leonard Hunt is a successful sculptor who is competing for the honors and the million dollar prize offered to the world's sculptors for the greatest memorial of the great war. His wife is a woman of rare intelligence and a wonderful ambition that is centered in her husband's success, but in the final analysis she is just a woman. There enters Sylvia Morton, a slip of a violinist with black hair, compelling fingertips and yearning eyes. She is a guest at the Hunt studios and has been loaded with many kindnesses by her hostess, only to throw herself into the arms of the husband. But the wife's love and her desire to see her husband become famous are greater than her sense of wrong and humiliation. In a superb scene where her heart battles with her head, Miss Anglin in the role of the wife is afforded one of the greatest emotional opportunities of her career.

"There is no other actress today," writes one critic, "who can approach her in the interpretation of those medleys of changing passions. She is the most richly endowed of all our native actresses in intelligence, in ability and experience. And no better proof of her superlative attainments could be asked than her complete triumph in "The Woman of Bronze." Valuable associates such Fred Eric, as the husband, Frances Edmere, as the girl, Marion Barney and Dorothy Johnson in important roles, will support Miss Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze." Others in the cast are Joseph Sweeney, Vera Berliner, Max Montesole, Sally Williams, Arthur Fisher, William Street, Alice Coburn, Harry Barfoot and Hannam Clark.

"The Broken Wing."

(At the Forsyth)

There has never been a scenic effect in the history of the theater that excels that of the great airplane scene in the big Broadway success, "The Broken Wing" which is to be offered as a special attraction, by the Forsyth Players this week.

The story of "The Broken Wing" revolves about a little Mexican girl and an American aviator. Primarily the play is a love story but there are all sorts of dramatic moments and a splendid supply of laughs.

"The Broken Wing" affords, in addition to its unusual scenic effects, a splendid opportunity for great acting and Belle Bennett, the brilliant Broadway star and new leading lady of the Forsyth Players, will have every opportunity to display her art and charming personality.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

Keith's Lyric opens its doors today on a bill particularly well-balanced. In addition to the regular headline act, Innis Brothers, with much comedy, the management has secured the appearance of Mme. Jean Arnal, international prima donna, as an extraordinary attraction. These two acts, in themseves, insure the popularity of the program.

But fortunately, there are others with great quantities of merit. Carson and Willard, a pair of comic lads, Ed Blondell and company, with yet more comedy, Lynch and Stewart, with something distinctly novel in the vaudeville realm, and Alanson, a novelty equilibrist who will incite much acclaim.

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At the Grand)

As the feature of the new vaudeville at Loew's Grand theater for the first half of the week starting today, William A. Weston and company will present a unique playlet called "The Attorneys." This act comes to Atlanta direct from the New York Hippodrome and is filled with clever comedy and musical novelties. The act is presented by six capable vaudevillians and terminates in a surprise situation that adds greatly to its entertainment value.

Olga and Nickolas, on the same bill, are dancers and as exponents of the terpsichorean art have reached the pinnacle of their profession. Their numbers are executed with grace and agility and include ballet, classical, whirlwind and novelty dances.

The balance of the bill brings Bayes and Smith in a musical sketch "Keep on Singing," Connors and Baynes in their original laugh episode "A Piece of Lace," and Frear, Baggett and Frear in comedy club swinging and hat spinning.

Assistance Given To Young Mother In Hour of Need

Incident Shows Value of Red Cross to People of Atlanta.

Clothed in a faded gingham wrapper and lying upon a mattress with naught but newspapers for sheets, a young expectant mother awaited the crucial hour. Her husband had gone upon the streets to continue peddling; the prospect of a new-comer and increased expense, made necessary harder effort in the conduct of his little business.

Business did not come. His mind was not upon it; he was thinking of the lonesome wife in the humble home, and her impending crisis. It was a problem he knew not how to solve. He told his trouble to a sympathetic policeman.

"Why don't you call in a Red Cross nurse?" the kindly officer suggested.

"Would she come?" he asked. It sounded too good to be true. He did not know they would help such as himself and—her.

Doubtfully he called upon the visiting nurse service of the Atlanta chapter. Nurse and doctor reached the bedside of the sick woman in due season, and most careful preparations were made for the coming of the child.

Clean sheets and bed covering, fresh clothing for mother and baby, were supplied from the Red Cross loan chest. Medicines were supplied. Proper nutrition was looked after. And when the Red Cross finished with that case, mother and child were left comfortable and happy, and progressing finely.

This is just one of nearly 300 cases of child birth in which a single nurse in the service of the Atlanta chapter, since the beginning of the present year, has met with experience which run the gamut of the tragedy of poverty.

This is just one of the many reasons why citizens of Atlanta and Fulton county are asked to give their dollar in response to the sixth annual roll call, and to become members of the chapter for 1923.

EVANGELIST RADER PREACHES THREE SERMONS SUNDAY

Rev. Luke Rader, the evangelist preached three sermons Sunday at the Gospel Tabernacle, to congregations that filled the buildings to capacity. Mrs. Rader sang.

"The time has come," the evangelist said, "when we in America should cease to be ashamed to proclaim the Son of God. This man Jesus, I submit to you, is the greatest character that has ever crossed the pages of history. In his own life he fulfilled ninety-seven prophecies. There is nothing in the world so gloriously attested as the resurrection of the Christ, and the greatest proof of Christ's resurrection and divinity is the coming of the Holy Ghost."

The annual convention for the southeastern and southwestern districts will begin today, and will continue for one week. Rev. R. A. Forrest, of Toccoa; Rev. E. J. Richards, of New York, and Rev. P. Heigberg, missionary to India, will be present at the conference.

MINISTER LAUDS RED CROSS IDEALS AND ACTIVITIES

The activities and ideals of the Red Cross were highly commended Sunday morning in a sermon by Dr. A. R. Holderby, of the East Point Presbyterian church.

"The principles for which the Red Cross stands are clearly outlined in the gospel," Dr. Holderby said. "The organization was made possible by the cross. The work is the very heart of gospel, and it was for this cause that the Son of God came into the world.

"All nations, tribes and races everywhere, whether they believe in Jesus Christ or not, are aided by this splendid organization, and every man, woman and child who answers the Red Cross roll call acts in conjunction with the teachings of Jesus Christ."

FALL CEREMONIAL OF KHORASSANS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Headed by the Khorassan band and drum corps, the Kibla Temple No. 123, Dramatic Order of Knights of Khorassan, will parade Atlanta streets Wednesday evening. The procession will be the initial event of the fall ceremonial program.

The parade committee is composed of Fred Turner, chairman; Lee Terrell, Professor J. A. Scharfe, drum major; J. B. Grant and R. M. Foote. Officers and members have been instructed to be at the lodge hall at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Officers have announced a large number of new applicants for the ceremonial. Special membership teams have been at work.

MONROE FARMER SHOOTS BIG BEAR IN FRONT YARD

Juliette, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Henry Chauncey, farmer of this section, has bear steak for sale. Early Friday morning, when he walked out in the front yard, he spied a Mr. Bruin up a tree in the yard. He quickly secured a shotgun and shot the bear several times. It weighed about 200 pounds.

Religion Is Measure Of Man's Patriotism, Declares Minister

"The strength of a man's patriotism is measured by the strength of his religion," declared Rev. H. I. Hendrix, of Warrenton, in a stirring sermon on "Patriotism and Religion" delivered Sunday evening at Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church. He defended America's stand during the world war and declared that a nation has the same right to safeguard itself that a man has to safeguard his home.

The need of closer relations between church and state was stressed and it was pointed out that higher ideals should animate our law-makers.

A condemnation of our standards of valuation was made by Rev. H. C. Clark, of Douglas, Ga., Sunday morning, when he showed that clothes, prestige, money and other accepted standards fail to approach to the requirements of humanity. Both Rev. Hendrix and Rev. Clark are attending the North Georgia conference which holds its last session Monday, and will return to their homes Monday evening. Rev. E. G. Thompson, pastor, will preach at 11 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock next Sunday.

NEW STOCK COMPANY FORMED IN ATLANTA

Under the direction of Mrs. Morde Foote a stock company of players has been organized, with headquarters at the Jewish Educational alliance.

This company will present during the ensuing winter season a series of light dramas and comedies. Preparations are now being perfected for the initial performance to be given in the near future.

THREE STORES ROBBED HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Army Store, at 398 Edgewood avenue, Atlanta Linen Supply company, 119 Walker street, and J. F. Leatherwood's grocery store, at 361 Peters street, were burglarized Saturday night, according to detective records.

It is not shown just what was taken from Leatherwood's grocery store, but 23 bolts of towel linen—40 yards to the bolt—were reported missing from the Atlanta Linen Supply company's place, while a watch, 2 raincoats and some leggins are among the articles that had been missed from the Army Store.

Records at detective headquarters further show that Jack White, of 98 Connally street, was robbed by three men of a gold watch.

Burglars stole a pistol, kodak, several shirts and other articles of clothing from E. T. Rutledge, 92 South Delta street, according to police records.

MRS. PEEL REPORTED IMPROVING ON SUNDAY

Mrs. William Lawson Peel, one of Atlanta's most widely known women, is ill with dengue fever at her residence, 1339 Peachtree street. She is reported to have passed the danger stage.

Reactionary Bond Prices Follow Drop in Exchange

New York, November 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Although a number of issues were held back until this week or later because of the election, new bond offerings last week totalled $66,600,000, as compared with $72,325,000 the week before and $48,578,000 two weeks ago.

Prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange were again reactionary. Foreign bonds were particularly weak in response to the further depreciation on continental exchange, the French, Belgian, Italian and German remittances establishing new low levels for the year during the week. Most of the French bonds sold at or near their lowest prices in all time. failure of the Berlin reparations conference to decide on a definite program, bringing out a large volume of offerings.

Demand Is Good.

Local bankers have had little trouble in disposing of new offerings. The Chilean loan of $18,000,000, one of the largest put out last week, was oversubscribed within 24 hours. These bonds, which run for 20 years and bear 7 per cent interest, were offered at 97 1-2 to yield 7.25 per cent. The largest issue last week was the $18,-895,000 30-year first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent gold monds, series A, of the Louisville Gas and Electric company, which were offered at 91 1-2 to yield 5.60 per cent.

Sharp competition has developed between two large groups of bankers for the $50,000,000 Cuban loan which is about to be awarded. Representatives of J. P. Morgan and company and Speyer and company were in Havana last week in an endeavor to obtain the business.

Wall street also heard during the week that new negotiations would be opened for a loan to Argentina, which is seeking long term funds, totaling $212,000,000. Under the original bids, American bankers agreed to an immediate issue of $50,000,000, which was to be used for the redemption of a loan of similar amount due here at the end of the year. Another $80,-000,000 was to be issued later, part of the proceeds of this to be used to redeem $27,000,000 in bonds due in 1923. The balance was to be issued at the option of the bankers, the time to be determined largely by market conditions.

Many Big Offerings.

Among the large offerings last week were : $6,000,000 20-years, 6 1-2 per cent first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of the Standard Textile Products company, offered at par; $6,-000,000 20-year, 7 per cent first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of the Camapuey Sugar company, of Cuba, offered at 97 1-2 to yield 7.25 per cent, and $4,000,000 10-year, 6 per cent mortgage gold bonds of the Boston and Maine railroad, offered at 95 1-2 to yield 6.62 per cent.

Conference Sidelights

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Andy Gump, recently elected to congress from America at large, attended church at Wesley Memorial church Sunday morning, and worshipped with the Methodists of the North Georgia conference. Yes, Andy was there, but Chester and Min failed to accompany him. It remained for the keen eyes of the reporter to see him, and point him out to others sitting nearby. They all corroborated the reporter's judgment. Andy came in early, took a seat on the front row, the sixth seat from the right, and the fifth seat from the left. He looked tired and weary, and was thin as though he had lost flesh during the campaign. His forehead was sloping, his nose was long and pointed, his moustache was as usual, and his hair was thin.

He left off his glasses in coming to church, and also left at home his usual four-in-hand necktie. He wore a bow tie Sunday, thinking perhaps the the new tie and the absence of the glasses would secure his disguise. Andy seemed deeply interested in the sermon being delivered by Bishop Murrah, for he frequently nodded his head in approval. He took interest in the singing, joining in with each tune.

Andy evidently knows there is a hard road before him in congress, and also knows he must have help to resist the temptations that will befall him to forsake the people, and forget that he is the 100-per-cent-for-the-people representative, hence he went to church to have his moral ideals enlarged and strengthened. Yes, Andy was there. If it was not Andy, then, if Andy should meet the fellow who was there, he would judge himself to be made in double.

One feature of the conference session this year that has been greatly enjoyed is the new pipe organ at Wesley Memorial church. The instrument, which cost $25,000, is indeed one of rare quality. Mrs. A. C. Boatman, organist, is complete master of the giant musical machine. The organ has been of great benefit in the confreence services, and has inspired the ministers to sing their best.

The United States department of commerce issues statistics regarding the working men's families of the city of Atlanta. The statistics show that the average working man's family of this city spends annually on churches, $10.13; on movies, $7.81; for tobacco, $16.56. The undertaker receives less of the average Atlanta workingman's family money than anybody else.

It was estimated Sunday that at least 500 out-of-town Methodists were here for the day, to attend services at conference and greet pastors of other days. Young couples sought out the ministers who married them; older men and women sought out pastors of yore who had visited the home in sickness, and officiated in the time of sorrow, when a loved one went into the beyond. Many glad greetings were exchanged and, sometimes, tears of joy filled eyes of especially close friends. People were observed here from near Macon, near Dalton and Rome, near Augusta and Blue Ridge. Truly the Methodist bond is one that binds closely, but which will bind yet more and more so in the decades to come.

Somebody asked which church in the southern connection has the largest membership. In the connection there are 148 churches that have more than 1,000 members each. The rating of the seven largest congregations are: First church, Dallas, 3,215; Centenary church, St. Louis, 2,700; First church, Birmingham, 2,687; First church, Houston, 2,647; St. Paul, Atlanta, 2,645; First church, Fort Worth, 2,202; First church, Memphis, 2,025. In the entire world there are between 36,000,000 and 38,-000,000 Methodists.

Funeral Services For Veteran Officer To Be Held Tuesday

Funeral services for Alfred Eugene Blackstone, 54, superannuated police officer, who died early Sunday morning, will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning from the chapel of Barclay & Brandon, and burial will take place in West View cemetery.

For 21 years Officer Blackstone was in active service on the Atlanta police force and had made an enviable record for efficient service. He was never cited before the board of police commissioners or superior officers on complaint of any one, but was commended several times for distinguished service.

Officer Blackstone became a member of the Atlanta police department at the time of the merger of West End with Atlanta, in January, 1894. Before that time he was on the West End police force.

He was retired on pension March 14, 1921, due to failing health, since which time he had been confined to his home a considerable part of the time.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Louella Blackstone, two sons, A. E., Jr., and L. J. Blackstone, and a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Lloyd, survive him.

Police will form an honorary escort at the funeral, which will be headed by motorcycle officers. Police Captain W. F. Terry will be one of the active pallbearers.

Parent-Teachers Meet.

The Ira Street Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, November 14, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. All mothers of pupils attending the school have been requested to attend the session.

PARENT-TEACHERS PRAISE SUTTON, SCHOOL LEADER

The Tech High Parent-Teachers' association in a communication forwarded to Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, expressed appreciation for his achievements, and regrets should Atlanta be deprived of his services.

"We all deeply feel," the letter stated, "that you are the one man under whom we can all rally in the common work of lifting Atlanta's schools to that enviable position which the generosity of our people and the wise policy of our school board has now made possible."

MME. ARNAL SINGS AT SCOTTISH RITE HOSPITAL SUNDAY

Unique and exotic was the appearance Sunday afternoon at the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children of Madame Jean Arnal, international prima donna, whose specially arranged program was the most recent diversion for the tots at this famed Atlanta institution.

Sensing the usual child's love for bright colors and things out-of-the-ordinary, Mme. Arnal appeared in the native Hindu costume of the Siranagar woman, in whose country she has spent much of her life, principally in the storied Vale of Kashmiri, in northern India. The costume was of bright green and its splendor was enhanced by oriental jewelry worn by Mme. Arnal, especially a jeweled girdle which created much comment.

The jewelry of Mme. Arnal was particularly intriguing to the children. A ruby given her by the rajah of Kula and jewels from the rajah of Kandy, in Ceylon, were also worn by the soprano and shown to the children, who were vastly and widely-eyed interested.

Mme. Arnal sang for the children Frank L. Stanton's "Mighty Lak a Rose," a Japanese song, "Garden of My Dreams, "Swanee River Moon," and "The Sunshine of Your Smile." She was accompanied by Byron H. Warner, leader of The Constitution orchestra, at the piano, who played "Kitten on the Keys" and sang several child songs.

She said that she should record her experience at the hospital Sunday afternoon as her most enjoyable and unusual experience.

"The institution is not a hospital," she said, "it is a home, and although I have sung before in circumstances that made it a pleasure to appear—I have never before been so touched or felt so gratified at being able to give the children pleasure."

Mme. Arnal will appear at the Lyric this week.

Cotton Boom Continues On Short Crop Reports

New Orleans, La., November 12.—While there were many reactions from the advance in the cotton market this last week, the trend was still strongly higher and on two sessions out of the four sessions of the week new high records for the season were made, prices first crossing the 25 cent level and then the 26 cent level.

At the highest of the week December traded at 26.27 with the active positions 130 to 150 points over the close of the preceding week. Reactions many times amounted to only about a dollar a bale and most of the wider setbacks did not exceed two dollars a bale. The close was 75 to 90 points net higher on the week with December at 25.65.

Spots Are Strong.

One of the main reasons why the reactions were not wider was the strength of spots, which constantly led contracts at the advance and refused to give ground when contracts reacted. Spots closed at the highest quotations for the week and season, 26.37 cents a pound for middling, and at net gains on the week of 187 points on that grade.

A year ago middling in this market closed at 16.25.

Reports from the interior noted equally as strong a position in the spot centers there, most messages claiming that there were more buyers than sellers for all grades. The demand for cotton with any staple at all in it was especially strong.

The ginning figures of the week, issued by the census bureau, greatly stimulated bullish sentiment as the production of 8,139,839 bales to the first of November was well under all but extremely bullish predictions and was even slightly lower than the lowest estimates given out on the bull side of the market. This report on ginning immediately was followed by a fresh crop of very low estimates of the total yield, most of the guesses being around 9,500,000 bales.

Lowest Estimate.

One estimate that attracted a great deal of attention came from a private bureau in Washington and placed the total yield at only 9,350,000 bales. Foreign news continued to be regarded as highly unfavorable but it was completely offset, in its influence on the market, by the ginning report and the news from the spot department.

This coming week it looks as if the ginning of the crop again will furnish much of the incentive for trading since the fifth ginning period of the session will end with the close of business on Monday. The early part of the week probably will bring forth private estimates of production from bureaus and interests who keep close tab on ginning.

Should ginning show a further falling off it would clinch extremely small crop claims and probably lead to further important operations on the long side of the market, but should the expected slump in ginning not to be indicated the tendency of the market probably would be strengthened.

WAR IN IRELAND ENTERS NEW PHASE

De Valera Adherents Confining Attacks to National Troops Without Molesting British.

Dublin, November 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—Since the resumption by Eamon DeValera of his title of president of the Irish republic and the reconstruction of the republican council of state, backed by the republican army, the war in Ireland has entered a new phase.

Captured correspondence has revealed proposed war measures which have been submitted to DeValera for approval, and it is assumed that whatever is now done is with his sanction. One proposal, calling for the burning of the private houses of two newspaper proprietors, is believed to have been vetoed by DeValera. The policy now seems to be to attack barracks and Irish government armed forces on the ground that they are, in effect, British strongholds and British forces. The speeches of the cabinet ministers in the British election campaign, claiming that the effect of the Anglo-Irish treaty has been to secure the aid of the Irish government in suppressing the republicans, has helped to stiffen republican resistance.

Irish national troops are being treated exactly as if they were British, and throughout the country men suspected of giving information to the government are declared in government circles to have been executed as spies. There is still a considerable body of British troops in Ireland and the khaki-clad "Tommy" is a familiar figure. But except in a few instances, the British soldiers have not been molested, the attacks of the republicans being confined to the Irish national troops.

The campaign against the national troops is rather more intense than it was against the Black and Tans, but it is of the same type. Military lorries in Dublin and other Irish cities are considered fair marks for bombs and revolver shots. Hardly a day passes without some such attack, and in expectation of attack, preparations have been made for resistance, for the soldiers in every lorry are fully armed.

Some of the lorries are protected with wire coverings which in the Black and Tan days were called "hen coops." Safety requires the lorries to travel at high speed, and traffic has to make way for them. Citizens having learned this prefer streets which are not frequented by the lorries.

The old danger points are reappearing. The narrow-necked passage known as "the Dardanelles" has been the scene of repeated bombing, and the moving picture theaters and the tradesmen in this neighborhood are suffering through the unwillingness of the public to risk their lives in passing through the thoroughfare. There also has been an increase in sniping lorries from housetops. The most important streets and squares in the city often are most dangerous points.

TO DISCUSS FUNDING RUMANIA DEBT TO U. S.

Washington, November 12.—Preliminary negotiations for the funding of Rumania's $41,000,000 war debt to this country, including $5,000,000 interest due, probably will be conducted this week by Secretary Mellon, chairman of the American debt funding commission, pending return to Washington of other American commissioners.

The Rumanian debt commissioners are scheduled to confer with Mellon tomorrow. The only members of the American commission here are Secretaries Mellon and Hughes and Senator Smoot, republican, Utah.

Toronto Beauty Spurns Wealth To Wed Young Motor Mechanic

Clifford Splan and his bride, formerly Miss Marjorie Smith, of Toronto.

(By Central Press.)

Toronto, Ont., November 12.—Clifford Splan in his greasy overalls whistles these days as he tinkers with the obstinate "innards" of the flivvers and limos that come into the garage, where he's employed here, for repairs.

Most of the time his hands are greasy and grimy and by quitting time his face is also, but the more the merrier for it just seems to lubricate his perpetual smile.

After work Splan loses no time in getting to a cozy little love bungalow where the "sweetest" little wife greets him with a resounding kiss with utter disregard for such little things as grease and oil.

Miles away in a gorgeous suite of rooms in one of the most fashionable hotels of America's best known playground, Atlantic City, a millionaire, accustomed to the gratification of every whim, is disconsolate.

For the girl wife of the greasy motor mechanic was none other than Miss Marjorie Smith, the beautiful Canadian girl who represented the Ontaria capital at the Atlantic City pageant of progress.

But back here in the dingy little garage she could see a struggling mechanic, minus millions, but adorable in overalls.

Miss Smith was only 18, but all the wealth and luxury of the millionaire counted for nothing in the balance against her youthful sweetheart. Not even her parents could convince her of the advantages of a golden marriage.

She returned a $1,000 diamond her wealthy suitor had given her and received in return a mere chip from her mechanic. The wedding followed.

FORSYTH ELECTION AROUSING INTEREST

Juliette, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—The election for the nominations of a mayor and three aldermen of Forsyth will be held Friday, November 17. Much interest is shown in the election as Mayor James A. Tribble, who has held the office two terms, is being opposed by B. H. Mitchell, merchant. There are five candidates for aldermen, G. C. Saunders, W. W. McMullan, J. M. Moore, E. S. Tucker and J. H. Stuart.

In the general election in Monroe county November 7, Robert Grubbs was elected coroner to succeed the late T. J. Grant. Mr. Grubbs received 209 votes, while his opponents received votes as follows: R. W. Trippe, 194; I. M. Shepperd, 150; C. T. Kimbell, 95, and T. M. Shaw, 29. All of the four proposed constitutional amendments were defeated. The Peach county amendment received 147 votes for and 488 against.

ARMY AVIATION POST THREATENED BY FIRE

Mount Clemons, Mich., November 12.—Hangars and barracks buildings at Selfridge field, the army aviation post near here, were threatened with destruction by fire tonight. The fire originated in one of the hangars which stretched for more than a mile around the field, and was soon beyond control of the Mount Clemons fire department. A call for aid was sent to Detroit and all apparatus that could be spared from that city was ordered to the field.

CUP CHALLENGER CALLS AMERICANS FINEST OF SPORTS

New York, November 12.—"Are Americans bum sports? Sir Thomas Lipton was asked apropos of Secretary of War Weeks, baning of an American lecturer at West Point because he once wrote that Americans couldn't play fair in anything.

"Well," said Sir Thomas, just back from greeting the boys in Sing Sing, "a lady once wrote me that she was sure the Americans were putting something in the ocean so my Shamrock could not win the America's cup. I wrote back to her and said I thought she was right. The Americans were putting the Reliance in the water.

"But speaking from the bottom of my heart I say that no cleaner, more honorable or more wholesome people exist than the Americans and I don't except the British."

Case closed.

HUSBAND SAYS WIFE "KIDNAPED" CHILD

P. H. Campbell, 332 Kirkwood avenue, told the police Sunday night that his wife, from whom, he said, he was separated, came to his house and "kidnapped" his 12-year-old daughter, whose custody had been awarded to him by the courts, according to his story.

He said his wife's name was Emma Campbell, but was unable to give the police her place of residence. He said his daughter's name was Rose.

Rum Car Escapes With Two Tires Needing Repairs

Officers Find That Trying Three Times Has Lost Its Charm.

Three times three officers encountered a rum running automobile early Sunday morning, and just as often the whisky-laden car eluded them, the last time running on two good tires, the others having been punctured by a volley from the officers' pistols.

The police squad had been sent in search of the car and the occupants shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night. They sighted their quarry the first time on Garnett street, between Forsyth and Madison avenue.

The car was parked alongside of the curb. The uniformed trio which included Officers W. F. Milam, O. M. Morgan and W. F. Allen, gum shoed to the rear of the car, and announced their intention to search the tonneau for liquor.

Officer Milam approached the side of the car, and started to open the side door, when one of the occupants said, "What are you trying to do old top—kid us a little?"

At this juncture the officer's comrades stepped to the front and their spokesman thusly reinforced, announced that the party was under arrest. Technically they were, but according to the report the car started suddenly and the officers were lucky to escape with their lives.

Thwarted, the three policemen gave pursuit. They discovered the car again in front of a Mitchell street hotel. They noticed a woman occupant lounging in the back seat as they approached but before they could get close enough to make an arrest the car again sped away. This time Officed Milam fired and the car went bounding away on three good tires and one bad one.

The persistent trio then decided to lay in wait at a place specified on Garnett street near Madison avenue. Their vigil had not been of long duration when the car hove into sight again.

Officer Milam stepped boldly to the center of the street, flashlight in one hand and his shootin' iron in the other. Onward the car speeded. He flashed his light, first slowly then vigorously because he discovered he was being made the objective of the driver. The car gathered speed and it is said, so did the officer. He lowered his pistol and light, and jumped towards the sidewalk, reaching the haven of safety just as the car brushed his flying heels.

His two comrades, who had stood guard on either side of the highway, realizing they were again cheated of their prey, emptied their guns at the speeding car, puncturing the one remaining good tire on the rear wheels of the automobile.

Officer Milam commenting on the incident, said, "Well, it is better to be safe than sorry." The other two said "just wait until we run across that car again, you can bet it won't get away."

MARYLAND TURKEY THIS YEAR WILL PROVE BIG FAKE

New York, November 12.—The Maryland turkey offered for Thanksgiving trade this year is likely to be South African parrot, Jersey Jabberwock or Mexican macaw. Buyers are warned against this bird, which sells at about 20 per cent above the ordinary price for turkey, by P. Q. Foy, editor of The Daily Market Report, a well-known New York authority on food supply. Foy declared that the Maryland turkey has become almost as scarce as the fabled dodo. Nevertheless, he said, there will be plenty of birds on the market counters posing as Maryland turkey, for 10,000 "Maryland turkeys" are sold for every one raised.

The Texas turkey, which comes from Cuero, Texas, is the most plentiful of all. The price over the counter should be 50 cents a pound, which is 10 to 15 cents cheaper than last year, according to Foy. This price will allow all hands a fair profit.

BIBB DEPUTY SHOOTS NEGRO; HE MAY DIE

Macon, Ga., November 12.—(Special.)—Deputy Sheriff Homer Hardison shot and seriously wounded Locy Rogers, a negro, on Hazel street today when the negro attempted to draw a pistol on the officer. The the negro underwent an operation at the Macon hospital tonight and it is stated his condition is critical.

The sheriff's men had been called to Hazel street to arrest Rogers, who is alleged to have entered a house and threatened the lives of other negroes. As the officers approached, Rogers walked off with his hand on his hip pocket. He refused to obey a command to halt. Deputy Hardison shot in the air to frighten the negro and as he did so the negro drew a pistol from under his shirt, but before he could fire Hardison shot him.

FAMOUS CHORUS SEAT SALE WILL OPEN WEDNESDAY

Music lovers enjoy good concerts, no matter how simple may be the surroundings and settings, but still the fact remains that an appeal to the eye may be just as effective on the concert stage as on the operatic. This has been proven during the successful coast to coast tour of the Ukrainian national chorus, under the directions of Max Rabinoff. This world-famous chorus appears in the picturesque national costume which gives the proper atmosphere to the soul-stirring songs of the steppes.

These costumes visualize a rich

symphony of color that is in perfect harmony with the soulful melodies that delight the ear. They consist chiefly of a red satin skirt over which is worn an embroidered silk apron and a silk blouse covered with a sleeveless jacket of black velvet. Elaborately worked poinsettias of rich red velvet with sequins adorn the jacket, while the apron, blouse and full sleeves are emblazoned with artistic cross-stitch embroidery.

The flowered head dress, worn turban-like, and the trim boots of soft leather add to the flaming and exotic charm of the costume, as do also the vari-colored strings of beads that encircle the neck. The color scheme is rounded out by the solid green, blue and brown kaftans and the white wool Cossack coats, set off with orange frogs and bindings, worn by the male members of the chorus.

The seat sale will open Wednesday at the Cable hall.

Women in Roles Of "Bluebeards," Believe Police

Chicago Officers Are Probing Mysterious Deaths of Husbands.

Chicago, November 12.—Charging an amazing poison plot which may involve twelve deaths, the Chicago police are canvassing matrimonial agencies here in the belief that Mrs. Tillie Klimek and Mrs. Nellie Koulik, alleged "women bluebeards," may have survived numerous other husbands beside those whom they are alleged to have poisoned.

Orders have been given to seize the records of several matrimonial bureaus, it was learned Sunday night.

The police claim to have information that both women used one or more marriage agencies to gain the acquaintance of men, and at least two of Mrs. Klimek's four known husbands are said to have been obtained by the woman through such an intermediary. Mrs. Koulik is believed to have met several men in this way.

Having found traces of arsenic in Mrs. Klimek's present husband, who is seriously ill, in the bodies of former husbands of both Mrs. Klimek and Mrs. Koulik, the police are investigating the deaths of nine other persons, all of whom are declared to have died under mysterious circumstances. They are husbands, children or relatives of the accused women.

Meanwhile the two women stand alone. Friends and relatives have deserted them.
